

Freight trains will haul 75-763 lengths of 40-ft. long steel pipe to Western Canada this summer for construction of the prairie section of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines. The first 46 of a total of 8,500 railway carloads of the large-diameter pipe is on its way through Ontario today en route to the Alberta section of the line. Each railway car (left) carries eight lengths of pipe. It requires 132 of these lengths, weighing a total of 235½ tons, to construct one mile of pipeline. The 34-inch diameter pipe, unavailable in Canada, being brought in from three steel mills in the United States, will weigh a total of 204,000 tons. The 1263 miles of 30-in. diameter pipe required for the section of the all-Canadian line from Winnipeg to Toronto already has been ordered from Canadian and British companies. Some idea of the size of the pipe can be gained from the comfortable resting spot found by Train man Jim Clark.

Eggs May Soar to $1 A Dozen By This Fall

Many imported from Poland There is a shortage of eggs in Canada which may show the price up to $1 a dozen by fall. The retail price for grade A large quoted in Stouffville this week is 66-71 cents a dozen. Last year at this time it was 51-55c.

Supply is so short, one hatchery man said, that in recent weeks 10,000 30-dozen crates have been imported from Poland.

In addition, since the first of the year 4,137,000 lbs. of poultry meat have been brought into Canada from the United States. At the rate which poultry eats grain to produce meat, this represents import of 20,000,000 lbs. of grain into a country which has a large glut of grain in the western provinces.

Hatcheries over the country have reported a 13.4 percent increase in hatchings this year. A great percentage of the hatch is going into broiler production. Figures from the Canada Department of Agriculture show that poultry meat production in Canada rose last year to 443 million pounds from 421 million pounds the year before. At the end of the year there was a large carryover of unsold poultry meat.

Poultry men regard it unusual that the large amount of imported meat should hit the Canadian market when there is such a large carryover in storage. American poultry sells somewhat cheaper.

Turkey men have won a small concession in the new tariff agreement with the U.S.A. At Thanksgiving and Christmas they are confronted by a yearly flood of American birds. The tariff has been raised to a minimum of five cents a pound. It cannot go over 10 cents a pound.

The high egg price amazes poultry men. One operator said he had "never seen it go so high for this time of the year." Others attribute higher prices to the sudden heat wave. It probably stems from the fact that the number of hens in Canada dropped about 1,000,000 last year and laid 2.4 percent fewer eggs.

Several years back the surplus egg situation was such that many poultry men disposed of hen flocks when the price stayed well below the 38-cent floor price for a long time. The 38 cents is guaranteed to egg grading plants by the federal government.

Later the egg price hit a high of 85 cents. Hatchery men expected to see a large increase in numbers of eggs hatched for laying flocks but somehow only a very small increase materialized.

One reason for the small increase when the price is good is that some farmers believed they weren't going to have a crop this year.

Report from Parliament

June 13, 1956

My Michael Starr, M.P., Ontario Riding

The great pipeline debate is now over. The result is that the government passed the bill, and will finance the Trans-Canada Pipelines to build the western leg of this line from Alberta to Winnipeg. What the impression left with the general public in Canada is, remains to be seen in the days to come, and particularly when Canadians are called upon to exercise their franchise in selecting a government at the next general election, which is expected to be held sometime in 1957.

The debate did, however, arouse the interest of the people of Canada in a great national issue; and where many people did not even know that parliament was sitting in Ottawa, they became acutely aware of our presence here and interested themselves in the issue being evolved in the House of Commons.

The next order of business immediately following the pipeline debate was the motion proposed by the opposition. It was a motion of censure of the Speaker of the House of Commons, in particular regarding a reversal of a decision in respect to a motion proposed during the heat of debate. This motion of censure was of course defeated by the government.

A few anxious days were experienced by the government on interim supply since it was running close to the deadline for civil service and army pay and the funds of the government were depleted to the extent that these obligations could not be met. The whole matter posed a difficult problem. However, this was overcome when the opposition parties agreed to allow the government sufficient funds to operate for another month with the assurance that the business now before the House will be proceeded with rather than adjourning parliament and reconvening in the fall of this year in order to consider particularly the estimates of the various departments of the government. The result is that parliament will sit well into the month of July in order to properly complete the business before the House.

One of the outstanding departments still to be considered is the Dept. of National Defence which spends in the neighborhood of $2 billion per year. A full-dress debate is expected to be launched when the estimates of this department are presented to the House for its consideration. It is expected the opposition will direct an attack on the inadequacies of this department in its effort to provide sufficient protection against any formidable attack.

There have been but a few departments considered up to date. The opposition, during the pipeline debate, challenged the government to go to the people, who would be given an opportunity to decide whether the issue of this pipeline and the course followed by the government were in the best interests of the people of Canada. The government, however, sidestepped this challenge, and it looks as though the probability of an election this year is now gone. This will give the government an opportunity to counteract any dissension that may exist in the minds of the people of Canada and, most important, it will present it with an opportunity to bring down a budget next spring that will greatly benefit the taxpayers of this country.

About two weeks ago, the House had the pleasure of listening to the President of Indonesia who appeared before both Houses and gave an excellent address. In his speech, he outlined the ideals and aspirations of the people living on 3,000 islands which form the country of Indonesia. These people, until recently, have been living under conditions of colonization. Now that they have attained their sovereignty, they are making great strides in their standards of living, and particularly in education. Prior to the attainment of their sovereignty, less than 20% of the people had any education at all. This standard has been raised to such an extent in the last three years that over 50% of the population have obtained some measure of education. It was indeed very interesting to hear of the progress made by people of whom we hear very little in our everyday lives.

Real business is one of the most important keys to good business.

MODERN MECHANIZATION SOLVES FARM LABOUR PROBLEMS

With more and more ease of handling and work-capacity being engineered into modern machines, farmers are being relieved of much of the worry and expense incurred through the scarcity and high cost of experienced farm help. And there is such a wide range of sizes and styles of tractors and implements and tools that today every farmer can avail himself of the advantages of modern mechanization.

The wise and practical use of up-to-date machinery is a most important part of today's farm operations. In the 1956 Massey-Harris and Ferguson lines are tractors and implements engineered to promote the efficiency of farming—your local dealer will be glad to give you full particulars.

CEDAR GROVE

June 14th

The quick switch from winter to summer with no spring to break us in has left everyone in Cedar Grove a little melted. It is hard on the farmers, who are very busy making up for the time lost.

Winn Bridges, having completed three years of study, was ordained this week and became the seventh woman minister in Ontario. Her first church as a fully ordained minister will be in Swastika.

Mr. and Mrs. Jo Reesor, Shirley and Dorothy, left Cedar Grove recently to live in Markham. Mr. and Mrs. Reesor have lived all their lives here and have been and will be always a part of Cedar Grove. We hope they will be very happy in their new home.

A meeting was held last Friday evening at Cherry Hill to elect officers and committees to help set up a Museum for a day at the Folk Festival this month. Russell Wideman was elected chairman and John Lunau Executive Secretary. The project was received with great enthusiasm by both the members and Mrs. Madsen. It is hoped that the contributions will be many and varied in order to make this museum a success. Either the chairman or the secretary would be happy to hear from anyone who has something they would like to exhibit.

Mothers—better call out the baby sitters. Fathers have been included in the plans for a Bowling Party to be held by the Mother's Club on June 21st. The place—Markham Bowl; the time—9 o'clock.

Blodwen Davies was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson at Stayner this week.

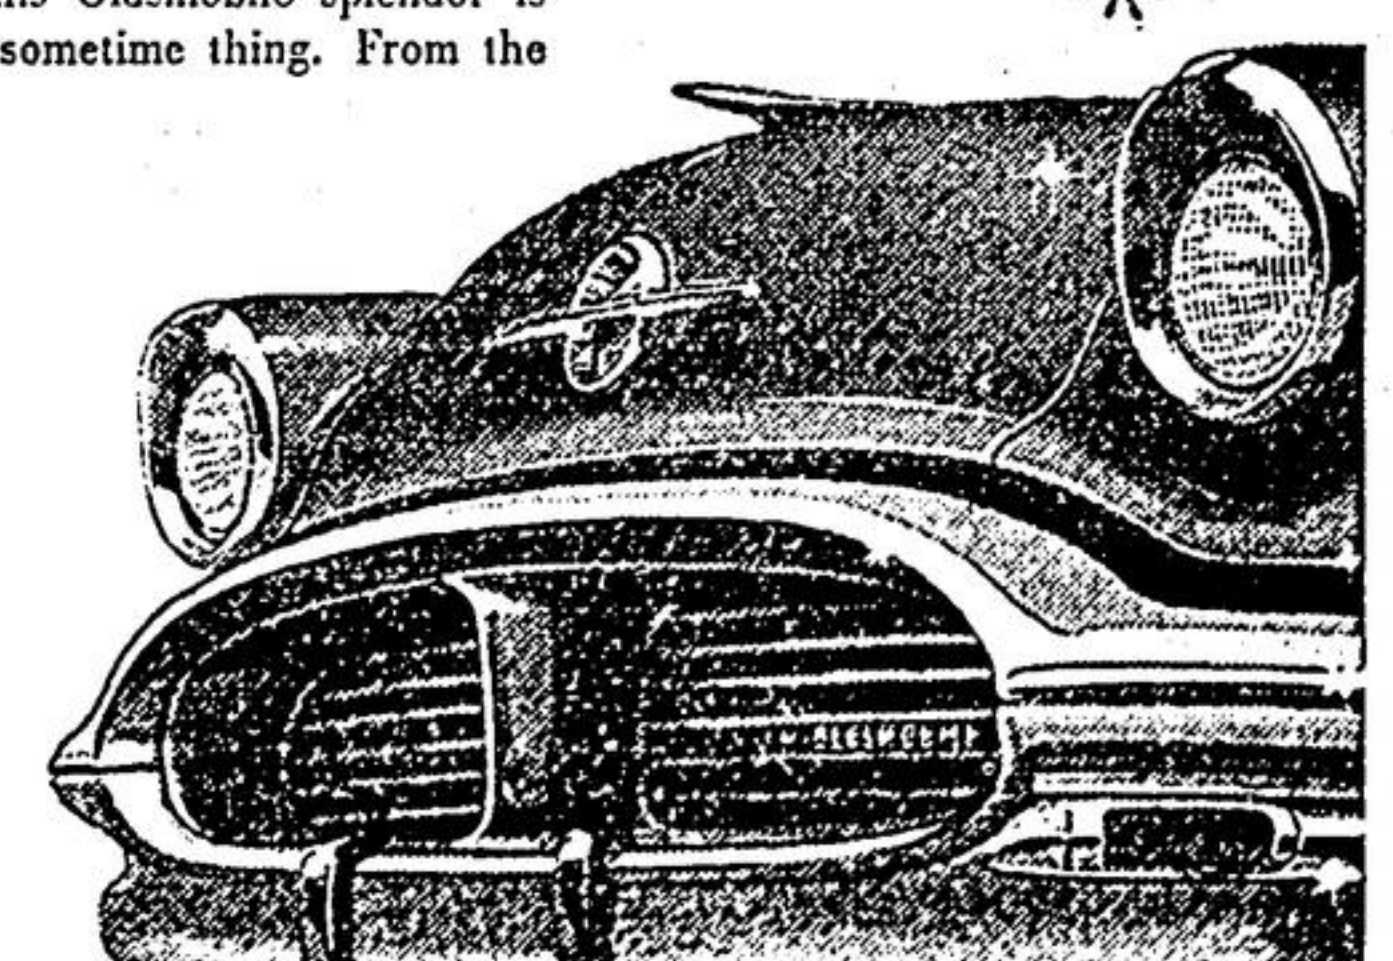

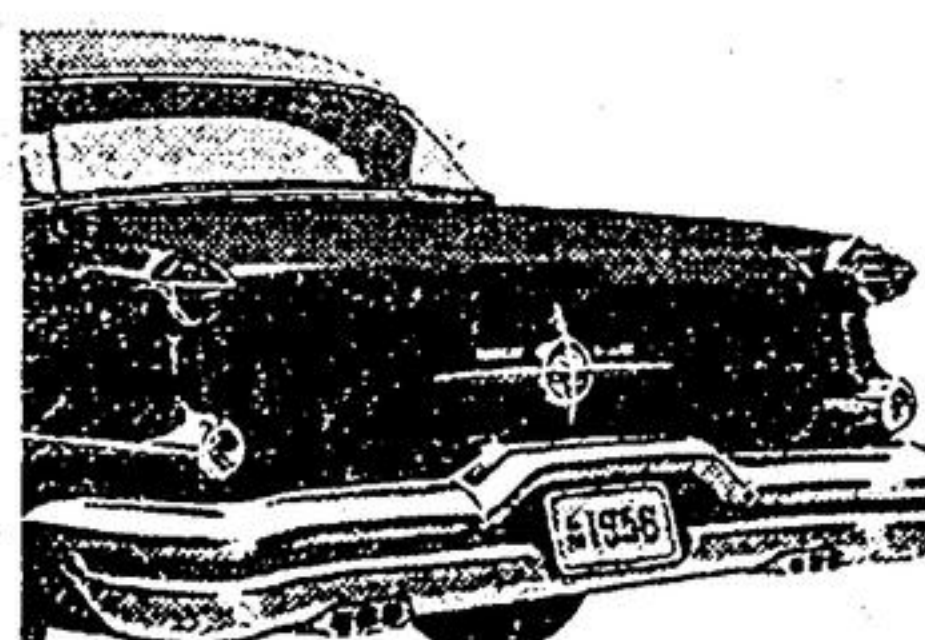

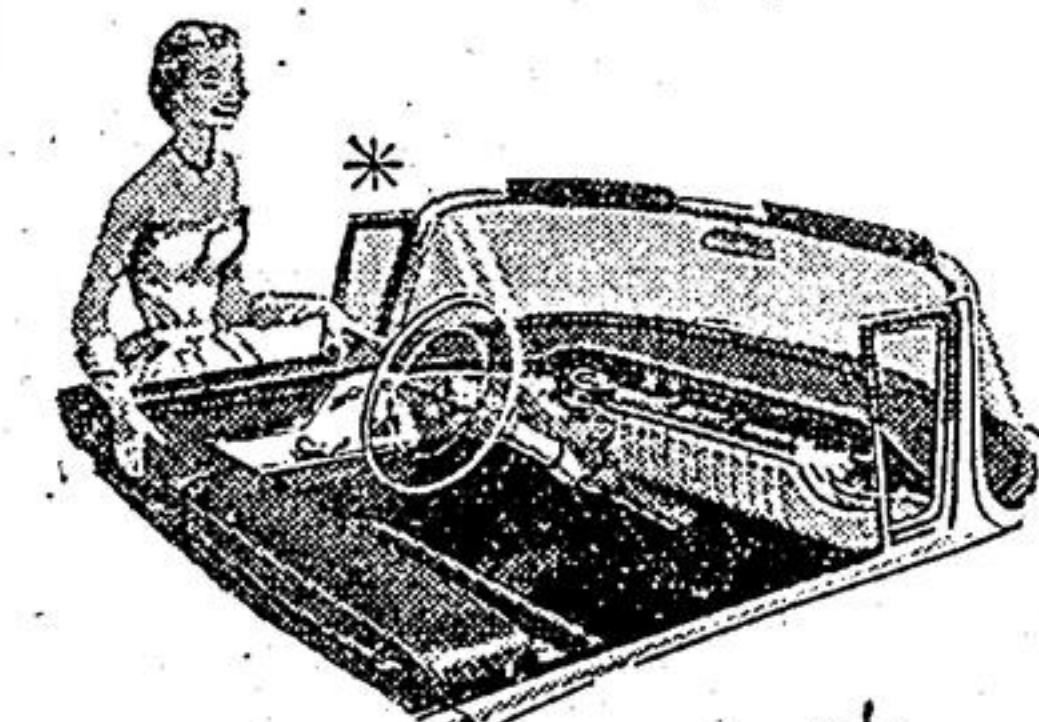

The Many-Splendored Thing...

Splendor is everywhere in Oldsmobile.

There's the splendor of distinctive Starfire styling—fresh, dignified, but so alive. There's the splendor of rich, custom-tailored interiors—luxurious, gracious and so comfortable. And there's the splendor of mighty power, tamed to go quietly about its task of producing swift, smooth motion.

And this Oldsmobile splendor is not a sometime thing. From the moment you proudly take possession until that distant day when you decide to trade it in on an even more exciting Olds of the future, you'll keep discovering new splendors in this unusual car. And you'll keep reflecting all the while how wise you were in 1956 to step up from the ordinary into an Oldsmobile.

Lack Baptist Clerics for Smaller Centres

The Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, which last week heart of a steady decrease in membership, voted to increase its budget by $30,000.

The convention approved a report presented by John Mears of Niagara Falls who called for increase in convention expenditures for the coming year to $410,000 from $380,000. Home and foreign mission boards each were allocated $114,000.

Shortage of Ministers A report on ministerial training said there is a shortage of well-trained ministers for isolated churches and those with small congregations.

The convention decided not to increase the present minimum salary of $2,600 for ministers, but a concession was granted in car allowance. That was raised from $200 to $400 a year.

Expected to be the major topic of the meeting is discussion on future of Hamilton's McMaster University. The 69-year-old university is under Baptist control but a withdrawal of financial responsibility by the church this year is considered possible.

Opposition was voted to any increase in the number of outlets for alcoholic beverages in Ontario.

An anti-gambling resolution, also approved, appealed to service clubs and philanthropic societies to halt promotion of "gambling practices, however good the objectives for which the money is raised." Bingos and car and house lotteries were mentioned.

Oppose Train Liquor

Dr. P. P. Ziemann of Toronto, general secretary-treasurer, asked, and was given permission to wire the Ontario Liquor Control Board, expressing "the Baptist belief" that alcoholic beverage service should not be allowed on trains running through Ontario and Quebec.
