Cathedrals

bit lonely around for a small girl. Mr. Renier would take me in his canoe and show me the "cradles" in the rushes; would tell me about birds and their habits, which I loved to hear. After a few weeks, lo, a miracle! Thousands of little "jewels" would be seen all over the lake, swimming, diving, plunging, bobbing up again, having a wonderful time. Later we would hear their "quacks", the splashing of their wings in enchanted waters, and the voice of the loon at dusk!

The woods too, where the great white owl made his nest, were busy places; though while the "babes" slept and developed in their nests, stillness prevailed (for babes of the wilds, like our own precious ones, must get rest and sleep, too, if they are to grow "big and strong" like their parents!) But after that, sweet songs echoed forth everywhere again and the wild beasts too, were glad. So was old Mr. Renier. He was in his best when all his feathered friends were back. He would sing as though, hearing joyous notes, he felt he too must do something about it. But I liked his whistling best, as off he did while chiselling or hammering away at something or other. Many were his Nature stories. I would listen wide-eyed, ever eager to hear more. He spoke so well, too, perhaps because of his deep reverence for "life". To him, every creature of the earth had equal right to live, and I never saw him kill except strictly for meat. His own personal belief was, (for he never could read from books), that "God—Life—Love" were the same — all three in One. Hence the teachings: "God is everywhere". Which makes sense!

He also believed in fair-play. One evening he forgot the chicken house window. An owl came in the night and made havoc with the hens. Next day his wife asked that their blood be avenged, to which he promptly replied: "But haven't I already done so, m' dear? How many birds have I brought in from the fields since we've been here? And what about all that good fish—every bit for free?" No more was said about the hens. But one day when she ran short of eggs, I did see her take some from a wild duck's nest!

But birds were not all one could see at the ranch. There were animals too, and the night also had "a thousand voices", the most predominant being the howling and barking of wolves and coyotes, accented by the weird, ghostly hootings and screeching of the owls. Sleeping alone upstairs I was terribly frightened, and begged that my couch be brought down and placed "as close to the old couple's room as possible!" My plea was granted, and from then on, that was where I slept. But when I think of it now, even these would put our modern radio advertisers to shame! For there is harmony in the wolf's cries, and now that I no longer feared, I liked them, and listened in the night.

Thus it was at the ranch — a "Garden of Eden" for the wild-life in those days. I greatly missed the old couple, but am glad now they sleep and shall never know the hunger and suffering which the "critters" they so loved endure today.

No, unless we also build Cathedrals in the Woods, and worship there too, at the Altar of God, we need not build any more churches. For He will not accept our offerings until we first accept the right of ALL creatures to live, and enjoy the same freedom from want and fear that we, ourselves, ask and fight for. Only then shall He delight in our work, and "remove from us all sickness and multiply our days of heaven on earth" (Deuteronomy).

(P.S. — The "Tyson" mentioned in the 1957 Sportsmen's Show "hero", who killed 500 wolves plus! May their blood be upon his head!)

Mothercraft Training Available for Girls

Nearly all girls nowadays prepare themselves for jobs after leaving school, or take work that requires no special training. No doubt they all have a hope of a home and family some time, but in the meantime they want a period of independence and freedom.

The Canadian Mothercraft Society feels it offers more to a girl leaving school than any other training or work, for it offers two courses in one and both help a girl to become a good wife and mother. In the meantime the certificate of a Well Baby nurse is recognized by doctors and through her own Registry there is opened to her professional work in pleasant homes, and good remuneration.

The training for a Well Baby nurse is one year in the Hospital and training school of the Mothercraft Society in one of the most beautiful sections of Toronto, with a nearby residence for the students. The Well Baby nurse is just what the name implies — she has the knowledge to keep a well baby well, and has no connection with sickness or disease. This training which places health in its proper relation to life was laid down by Sir Truby King in New Zealand 50 years ago, and is only now being fully recognized by professional people generally. Any girl is the better for Mothercraft teaching, even if she wishes to go on to general training later. However, she must have her matriculation for general training, but is accepted by Mothercraft without that standing.

While a portion of Mothercraft work in Toronto—prenatal and postnatal instruction, the registry and educational work—are supported by United Appeal, the hospital and training school are not, and a charge is made for the training. There are, however, a few scholarships available, and in the case of girls unable to pay before starting to train and who are anxious to take the course, special arrangements are made. An enquiry to the Superintendent of the Hospital, 49 Clarendon Ave., Toronto, will bring details. The course begins in September and March; this is so all the senior nurses will not be leaving at one time.

RINGWOOD

Church service at 11:00 a.m. on Sunday, June 2nd. We expect the pastor, Mr. K. Edwards to be back with us again for this service. He has been visiting with his mother and brother in Suffolk, Virginia.

Did you attend the Sunday School Convention of Whitechurch Township, held at Gormley United Missionary Church on Thursday, May 30th?

The neighbors Mr. and Mrs. R. Knox-Leet will be entertaining on their spacious lawn on June 8th, a garden party sponsored by the Evening Guild of Stouffville Christ Church Anglican. This writer can recall a garden party held there almost fifty years ago when the old farmhouse with its big veranda was the stage and occupied by the Fleury's.

There seemed to be a small crowd at Mr. George Rodanz' Hereford sale but evidently most of those present were buyers, for we believe all the cattle listed were sold. The weather surely was pleasant for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Brown and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steckley and family spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Steckley, only Shirley missing from the family circle.

The Stouffville Veterans' group are to be congratulated on keeping up the tradition of fireworks on May 24th. Like us, many folks thought it worthwhile to gather at the park to watch the show.

Bill Holden fell off his bicycle just outside the school grounds and broke the forefinger on his left hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Fockler, Diane, Suzanne and David had supper with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer Fockler on Saturday night.

A teenage girl was shocked while using a vacuum cleaner. Maybe it was just the sight of it.

Come real warm weather and the women won't have as many pockets in which to store useless things.
