

OLIVER 60

Twine-Tie
BALER

New All-Around Tonnage Champ with "Pivot-Balanced" Drive

Match this new Oliver 60 with any other machine in your small, rough, patch-pattern fields. There's where it gobbles up the windrows, bales up to 10 tons per hour as easily as on the straightaway.

You get Oliver's exclusive "pivot-balanced" drive... and exceptionally short coupling. Just follow the windrow with the rear tractor wheel—even around the sharpest corner. The Oliver 60 will get the hay. You save hours of time when time counts most.

Here's the baler with everything—speed-matched units that save leaves—swinging drawbar for safe transport...over-running clutch (extra)...protected knotters. The twine can be weatherproof; shafts are splined to prolong life. Adjusting bale length is quick and easy—12 to 50 inches. Engine model available.

Owners Protest Control On Ten-Acre Lots in Markham Township

A proposed bylaw for the control of ten-acre lots in Markham Township came under discussion at the regular meeting of council on Monday afternoon and it was evident that such control was not acceptable to a number of residents. At the present time a farmer may subdivide his farm into ten acre lots and sell without a subdivision plan, or a ten-acre parcel can be sold in block. The proposed new bylaw would put certain restrictions on these blocks.

Mr. Cattanch Jr. of Markham, solicitor, was present on behalf of a number of residents to present their objections to Council. Overstepping Planning Board. He stated that in his opinion the Council was usurping the field of the Planning Board under guise of the Land Use By-law and which was strictly planning.

He cited several examples in which the bylaw would create a situation where the owner could not utilize his land. Reeve Clark in reply said that there might be instances where the bylaw would apply to extreme cases but when taken over the entire township, it was necessary and would eliminate many bad conditions which had developed under the present arrangement.

Mr. Forrest, Planning Director for the township, took issue with Mr. Cattanch in that the Land Use and Planning are one and the same.

Mr. Cattanch replied that the Council was not endeavoring to regulate but to prohibit.

Claims Landlocked. Arthur Jobb, Mt. Joy, cited his own case in which he said he owns 39 acres being farmed in the production of milk. He stated that owing to the necessity of installing bulk milk equipment he will be out of business this fall. The raising of hogs is prohibited and council refused him permission to dispose of the corner of his property to Imperial Oil.

He stated that the taxes on the 39 acres will be in excess of $300 this year and he asked council to advise him just what he could do with his land to make this return. He added that he had a wife and four children.

"No ten-acre lots near me are neglected," he said. Reeve Clark replied he had only to go one mile to find an unsatisfactory condition.

Mr. Forrest stated that in the present situation council was only proposing to take partial control in regulating ten-acre lots. He cited that in some municipalities councils took full control up to 25 acres.

"The council is endeavoring to protect the farmer while regulating the ex-farmer who has sold or is holding his land for speculation."

Solicitor Lucas suggested that as the cases in the township which would be adversely affected, would not be numerous, it might be possible to have them named and exempt from the general conditions of the bylaw.

Wm. Thomas, solicitor, pointed out various situations in which council would require to make exceptions in order not to inflict hardship.

"It's my understanding that the Planning Board reserved 85% of the land in Markham for agriculture. Do farmers wish to hold their land for farming or just until they get a satisfactory offer?" said councillor Kathleen James.

The matter was left with the solicitor for further study and will be brought forward again at a later date with amendments.

THE WORLD OUTDOORS.

Returning to a favorite fishing stream after an absence of several years can quite often be a disillusioning experience. The deep hole where you always managed to catch a "big one" is no more. It has been filled in with mud or sand and the waters are slowly beginning to cut a new channel. Familiar landmarks about the stream, rocks, fallen trees and brush piles, are no more. And what's more, even the fish seem to have disappeared.

What happened to your favorite stream? There are a number of possibilities, but the most likely answer is pollution. Manufacturing waste carelessly dumped into rivers and streams takes a high toll of fish population in many sections of our country. In addition, careless land management practices allow tons of valuable top soil to be washed into streams by erosion.

Fish need clean, clear water if they are to survive and prosper. They are able to reproduce more successfully and grow much faster in clear water. When mud or silt invades the stream, not only does it affect the reproduction rate but as well it cuts down the available food supply. Clean water contains thousands of microscopic organisms upon which the small fish feed—but like the fish, these organisms have difficulty growing or reproducing in muddy waters.

Legislation, education and a desire on the part of industry to co-operate as much as possible has made chemical pollution of streams the exception rather than the rule. But this type of accidental stream poisoning will at 2.30 at the home of Mrs. Jim bring howls of protest from fish.
