

Ont. County Health Unit Immunizes Three Thousand Pre-School Children

The major feature of the area during the past month has been the outbreak of influenza and other respiratory illnesses. First official notification of high absenteeism due to sickness came from Ajax High School at the beginning of October; this was followed, in quick succession, by similar notification from all the other high schools in the area. In general, younger children and the older age groups appear to be less markedly affected. The incidence of influenza in the high schools at least, reached a peak shortly before the middle of the month and has since been declining.

Through reports from physicians, public health nurses and teachers, the usual illness appears to be of sudden onset, with fever, headache, aches and pains, often with slight cough and sore throat and, sometimes, vomiting. The fever lasts, usually, for two to four days, and is followed by a further period of general weakness. Complications are rare.

The Health Unit stresses two points to the public: 1. If you develop signs of influenza, go home to bed immediately; do not carry on working, so making your own condition worse and helping to spread the illness to others. Parents should not send their children to school if they seem unwell; many children have gone to school in the morning, only to be forced to return home sick an hour or two later at considerable distress to themselves and difficulty for the school authorities.

2. Do not return to work or allow children back to school immediately the acute illness is over. Take a few days convalescence to regain your health and strength.

Immunization Programme—The completion of the course of poliomyelitis immunization which was started last winter for the children of the area has been one of the first objectives of the health unit. In the six weeks since clinics were started three thousand children, or the majority of those of pre-school and school ages requiring immunization, received their third dose of poliomyelitis vaccine.

The programme has, unfortunately, been halted, temporarily, by the influenza outbreak but will be restarted and completed as soon as possible.

In addition to poliomyelitis immunization, routine vaccination and protection against Smallpox, Diphtheria, Tetanus and Whooping cough, continues to be given at the two child health conferences which have been started to date.

Public Health Nursing—During the past month almost half the time of the public health nurses, was spent in the schools. Here, their programme for the year ahead, includes an inspection of the general health of all pupils at certain grades; at these inspections, the opportunity is taken of talking about health habits, nutrition, and any other related matters with the pupil. The eyesight of all pupils in grade 4 and of all pupils referred by the teacher for apparent vision difficulties is tested by the nurse in the school.

The parents of the children who are found to have defective eyesight will be notified of this by the nurse so that steps may be taken to correct the situation. Such children will be re-examined at intervals.

In addition to inspections of the school children at different grades both as a routine and where especially indicated, the Public Health Nurse also acts as a consultant in health matters to principals, parents and teachers.

The remainder of the time of the nursing staff was largely taken up with organizing and staffing the poliomyelitis clinics and child health conferences and making home visits. Of these visits, during the past month, 47 were to maternity cases, 59 to infants, and 17 to Tuberculosis cases and contacts.

In conclusion, the Ontario County Health Unit wishes to thank the members of the community who are already assisting or who have offered to give their time and assistance with the clinics already operating and those which are planned for the future.

VILLAGE VETOES BEVERAGE ROOMS

Citizens of Pickering village voted Wednesday against having beverage rooms in the village of 1,191.

Despite rain, 64.1 percent of the voters turned out to vote 300 to 102 against having a men's beverage room, and 296 to 106 against a ladies' beverage room.

The village remains true to form, with this vote. No intoxicants have been sold in the village since 1904. Only 3.7 percent of the ballots cast were spoiled.

"Dry" advocate John Lay expressed his satisfaction with the result of the vote by saying: "I knew the idea would be cast out, if enough voters went to the polls."

Several previous attempts to vote in beverage rooms in Pickering, over a period of almost 100 years, have met with the same result.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(Lesson for November 3)
THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTIAN WORSHIP
1 Corinthians 11

GOLDEN TEXT—But let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.—1 Cor. 11: 28.

THE LESSON AS A WHOLE

Approach to the Lesson
Some are strong on doctrine and weak on church order; some are rigid in matters of church order, but are little concerned with doctrine. Again some are ethically sound but have little regard for church order, while others are sticklers for church order but not too careful to their ethics. Now the New Testament makes much of all three—doctrine, behavior, order. They all have their place in the total picture of the church, and there is no reason why one should weaken the other, if all are kept centered in Christ.

The first canonical Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians touches on all these phases of church life. It has its doctrinal section, especially the fifteenth chapter, which expounds the doctrine of the Resurrection. It has its ethical section, particularly chapters 5 to 10, where questions of moral conduct are dealt with. But a great portion of the Epistle has to do with questions of church order. This week's lesson is in this section, discussing the order of the Lord's table.

But it must not be thought that doctrine, ethics, and order are three separate, watertight compartments of the church. They are strongly interrelated. Our lesson is a case in point. Watch how the streams mingle. Doctrine and ethics are both used to enforce proper church order.

Verse by Verse

1 Cor. 11:20—"... ye come together ... not to eat the Lord's supper." The Lord's Supper cannot be partaken of in an atmosphere of division such as is described in verses 18, 19. The Supper, among other meanings, is a token of the unity of the saints (10:17).

Verse 21—"... every one taketh before ... his own supper ... hungry ... drunken." This doubtless refers to the "agape," or love feast, which preceded the Lord's Supper. This was done in cliques, some groups eating and drinking to excess, and others having but scanty fare.

Verse 22—"... houses to eat and to drink in? ... I praise you not." A feast which emphasized class distinctions and other factional differences had no right in the meeting of the congregation. The apostle praised where he could, but was faithful to reprove where reproof was needed.

Verse 23—"... I have received of the Lord ... delivered unto you: That the Lord Jesus ... took bread." Notice the apostle's claim to direct revelation, and the fact that he had already taught the Corinthians about the Lord's Supper, so that their abuse of it was inexcusable.

Verse 24—"And when he had given thanks he brake it ... my body ... for you ... in remembrance of me." It is from this giving of thanks that the Lord's Supper is sometimes called the Eucharist. The word "broken" is not in the Greek, but its presence does no violence to the thought.

Verse 25—"... the cup, when he had supped ... new testament in my blood ... This was probably the last cup passed in connection with the Passover, which Jesus made the first of the new order. The New Covenant had superseded the old, sealed with better blood than that of bulls and goats.

Verse 26—"... ye do shew (proclaim) the Lord's death till he come." The Lord's Supper is not only a remembrance but a proclamation. See the emphasis on the death of Christ in this ordinance. It has a forward look too, thus binding the two advents.

Verse 27—"... unworthy ... guilty of the body and blood of the Lord." Unworthy means "in an unworthy manner." It has nothing to do with our personal worthiness, for none of us is worthy. Because of the symbolism of the Supper, frivolous or profane participation lays serious guilt on the offender.

Verse 28—"... examine himself, and so ... eat ... and drink ... To avoid such guilt, the participant should solemnly consider his motives and attitude in coming to the Lord's table.

Verse 29—"... damnation to himself, not discerning the Lord's body." For "damnation" here read "judgment." It is not eternal damnation which is in view, as is apparent from verse 32. It is serious business to treat the Lord's table lightly.

Verse 30—"... many ... weak and sickly among you, and many sleep." Some take this verse to signify spiritual weakness, etc. I am satisfied that the reference is to physical infirmity and weakness, and in some cases, death, as the divine judgment on the desecration of His table.

Verse 31—"... judge ourselves ... not be judged." Self-judgment, as indicated in verse 28, would save men from the divine judgments mentioned in verse 30.

Verse 32—"... chastened of the Lord ... not ... condemned with the world." The divine judgment, or chastening, is part of our salvation. It separates us from the world of sinners who are hastening to destruction.

Verse 33—"... carry one for another." The "grabbing" of food, whether for hunger or gluttony, has no place at the Lord's Supper where the unity of the body is to be recognized and preserved.

Verse 34—"... if any man hunger, let him eat at his home ... come out together unto condemnation ... The Lord's Supper is not given to satisfy the hunger of the poor or the appetite of the rich. Home is the normal place for that, and to invert the ordinance from its own sacred purpose is to bring judgment upon ourselves.

The Heart of the Lesson

The Lord's table had fallen on evil days in Corinth. Instead of being an expression of the church's unity in Christ, it was a magnifying glass, showing up and aggravating its divisions. In this church, not only were there the factions mentioned in 1:12, centering upon personalities, but class distinctions were in evidence, especially at the love feasts, where the rich banqueted together to the point of drunkenness, while the poor huddled together over their meager fare. What a preparation for the Lord's Supper! No wonder the apostle wrote, "I praise you not"—a decided understatement.

What was the cure for such a situation? Paul believed that a reiteration of the meaning of the Lord's Supper would shame them out of such behavior. He had told them before, but now he put it down in black and white for them, reminding them that this was no tradition of man, but revelation from the Lord. Notice, then, the points of emphasis. The Supper was established by the Lord Himself as a memorial. As such, it focuses attention upon His death. The elements are symbols of His body given in sacrifice, and of His blood shed for the sin of the world. Thus it is an affirmation of the heart of the Gospel, the death of Christ, to be continued as part of the Church's testimony until the Lord's coming again. It is a covenantal rite, indicating and sealing the covenant relations between the Lord and His Church, sealed in His blood.

Such a sacred ordinance called for more reverent celebration than the Corinthians were giving it. Their profane approach to it amounted to a desecration of the body and blood of Christ, a wrong which had already brought the judgment of God upon them in the form of widespread disease among them, with a high rate of mortality. While we would be unwarranted in saying that all sickness is judgment upon one's own sins, yet it is clear from this and other passages that sickness is at times visited upon God's children as a judgment, and the relation of the two may be closer than we care to think. In such a case, it is part of God's ways in salvation, for He is drawing a distinction between us, His children, whom He judges in chastening, and the world which abides in condemnation.
