

The Fairlane 500— sleek, trim lines and Thunderbird GO make it style and performance champion of its class.

Ford's strength is beauty-wrapped

Just one look and you'll know why this great new Ford is every man's favorite land-craft. Here is new style in steel. New low, lean lines that linger with you long after you lose sight of the sculptured rear deck. Inside, fine-car appointments and trim you'd expect to find only in higher priced cars.

But look again! There's brawn beneath the beauty. Ford's strength begins with the frame itself—the great new 'Inner Ford.' Its heavy frame rails are bowed out to let you ride inside the chassis for maximum safety and comfort; and it's welded, braced and bonded to form one incredibly strong and silent unit.

These and other quality features are standard in every Ford at no extra cost to you. See your Ford Dealer soon, for the full, fine, low-priced story.

Ford's exclusive Giant-Grip Double-Sealed Brakes are self-energizing, provide superior braking power, are ruggedly built for longer life.

Ride Stabilizer: Ford builds in this front stabilizer bar on all models. Gives you more positive steering control, greater riding comfort.

Wooden Floors Still Add Beauty, Warmth

There has been much talk about resilient floor tiles in recent years, but wooden floors haven't gone out of style. Far from it!

Wooden flooring is being sold as fast as the mills and plants can turn it out. It's not really surprising. For warmth and beauty, nothing tops a good-quality wooden floor. It has a richness all its own and probably never will lose its appeal.

Anyone planning to put down a wooden floor, either over an old floor or over a subfloor, has a wide choice of types of flooring as well as kinds of wood.

Nails Hidden
There is the ever-popular strip flooring, as well as the plank, block and, parquet styles. The strip flooring is the kind you usually see in widths anywhere from one and one-half to three and one-half inches.

At one time, strip flooring came only with square edges. The lengths were butted together and then face-nailed; that is, nailed through the tops of the strips into the joints. These days most strip flooring is tongue and grooved. The nails are driven into the tongues at a 45 degree angle and thus are hidden by the grooves of the succeeding boards. The only face-nailing done is in the first and last strips put down.

Should you put down the flooring yourself, be sure, in nailing through the tongues, that you do not drive the nails all the way with a hammer. Just be sure the nails are flush with the wood, stop hammering directly against the nailheads and do the rest of the driving with a nailset. This eliminates the danger of damaging the tongues with the hammer.

Provide Luxury
Plank flooring is similar to strip flooring except that the boards are wider and usually are laid in random widths. You see them very much in ranch-style homes. There are many variations of plank flooring, some of which use wooden pegs as a decorative touch.

Like strip flooring, the planks come either square-edged or tongue-and-grooved. However, each plank is fastened at either end with screws, even though nails also are used. That's to prevent warpage, which occurs more frequently in wide boards than narrow ones. The planks usually come in widths from three to nine inches.

For those who want real luxury underfoot, parquet floors will do it. They consist of square or rectangular pieces of wood installed to form eye-catching, and sometimes intricate designs and patterns.

In most cases, those who can afford parquet floors should spend the extra money to have the installation done professionally, since it's more difficult than other types of flooring. Some manufacturers now are putting out special kinds of flooring which give the parquet effect yet are easier to install.

These wooden blocks can be put down, depending on the particular type, chosen, with nails or with mastic, the latter kind suitable for use over concrete. Some come in units of four or five blocks joined together.

Priced Higher
Besides making up your mind on the type of flooring, you'll have to decide what kind of wood to buy. In a few cases, you will find that the particular type you have selected is available only in one or two kinds of wood.

But generally, you will have a choice. Among the hardwoods, oak, maple, birch, pecan and beech are popular, although hickory, ash, cherry and some of the less readily available hardwoods can be obtained if desired—usually at higher prices. Hemlock and a few other softwoods make excellent floors and must be given consideration when over-all price is important.

No matter what kind of wood you select, you can get it in different grades. The differences in grade generally affect the appearance of the wood rather than its strength and durability. Sometimes, a very cheap grade of wood is chosen because the natural defect and variation in color make a more interesting floor.

And don't forget — if you are planning on covering the floor with wall-to-wall carpeting, you'd be silly to pick out an expensive wood because of its beautiful appearance.
