Magistrate Praises Work of Markham Twp. Dog Catcher

Magistrate Kelly praised the efforts of Markham Township dog-control officer, Ron Herd at the regular weekly session of court at Buttonville on Friday morning. The Magistrate suggested that the officer was doing a very good job of keeping stray dogs under control. A case against a Steele's Avenue man who permitted his dog to run at large was aired before the court. Mrs. Zena Jubb represented her husband.

The defendant contended that the dogcatcher should have picked up the animal as proof that he had found it running outside her premises. Mr. Herd stated that more than 60 dogs were being left in his pound every month. "I'm not in business to destroy the animals," he said. "The reason we chase them home rather than pick them up is to prove their identity," he said.

"I don't know how you get around so fast," stated the accused. "You must travel in a jet-propelled car."

"Markham Township is not alone in this problem," pointed out the Magistrate. "It's only fair to other persons in this municipality that this law is obeyed." He found the defendant guilty but no fine was assessed.

FROM OUR EARLY FILES WAY BACK — WHEN?
 May 10, 1889

Great Scheme — The much needed improvement in the walk in front of Todd's Block (now Stivers) is in a fair way to be completed soon. The bottom of gravel has been laid and the asphalt pavement will be laid immediately. The job is under the joint management of Mr. Joe Todd and the sidewalk committee. A new walk is also to be laid on the street east of the block. When Mr. J. Baker's new house on the corner of Albert St. is finished, the residents hope to see the two plank apology for a walk, replaced by something more in keeping with the fashionable West End.

Eggs — Mr. W. B. Sanders, on Monday last, sold twelve hundred dozen of eggs to Mr. J. W. Curtis of Port Perry. Most of these were purchased at our Market during the past week.

Mr. Walter Davy, Goodwood, has been spending a few days with Mr. E. J. Hill, this week.

Prospective — Messrs. Sanders, Sangster and Leaney were at several places last week smelling for gravel and concluded that "Gravel Hill" produced the very article.

In the May 10, 1889 issue of The Tribune we note from the Assessor's figures that Markham Village had a population of 1,063 and Stouffville had 1,100.

Market — Only a narrow passageway existed between the two rows of rigs tied all along Main St. on Thursday morning. The marketers began to arrive before 8 a.m. and by 9, every available tying place was occupied. Stouffville Market has come to stay and is growing weekly in the favor of both buyers and sellers of produce.

Runaway — What might have been a very serious accident took place on Saturday evening shortly after 6 o'clock. As Mr. and Miss Breuls were driving westward through the village, they were obliged to stop at the railway crossing as a freight train was about to pass. When the locomotive came in sight, the horse, a young one, suddenly wheeled to the right and capsize its occupants unceremoniously into the ditch nearly in front of Mr. Wideman's marble shop. The horse broke loose from the buggy and came back to the village at a gallop, bringing up in Mr. Von Buseck's yard. Excepting for a slight shaking up, no one was hurt.

About 1,500 hospital beds must be added in Ontario every year to provide for normal growth in population.

A VILLAGE CHANGES

The year was 1898 . . . the scene an Ontario village.

A local historian, reflecting on the things she remembered about the village, wrote that the village had "No electricity, no stone roads, no radio, no telephone, just coal oil lamps for light."

Today in her village the coal oil lamp has vanished, pavement covers the dirt roads, and telephones, radios, and electric lights are taken for granted.

These changes were possible because of steel. In 1898, Canada made less than 10 pounds of steel per person. Last year, the country's steel industry produced 660 pounds of steel per person.

This higher productivity comes from the factories Canadians have built. For example, The Steel Company of Canada, Limited has invested nearly $365,000,000 in plants and equipment since the Company started operations fifty years ago.

Canadians produce more mainly because Canadian companies are continually improving their plants and equipment.

TEACHING CHILD PHONE COURTESY

When you use the telephone do you know that it is only one of about 4,500,000 phones in Canada? This is one for every 36 persons, a ratio exceeded only by United States and Sweden. The average calls per Canadian annually is 483, the average per telephone 1.726. The estimated number of calls in a recent year was over seven and three quarter billion!

No mother can disregard training her child in the use of the phone and this should begin at an early age. Her own example from day to day as she talks on the phone will color her child's ideas. Courtesy and rudeness in conversation are as catching as measles!

If small Jean hears Mummy talking in a pleasant, low, distinct voice, with an occasional "please" and "thank-you," this child will conclude this is the right way to talk. But if when phoning, her mother is abrupt and almost rude, if she gossips at length, before very long Jean will be copying this way of talking.

Mothers are sometimes surprised and hurt when they discover their child telling a lie. They often forget that "the little white lie" a boy or girl has heard his mother tell over the phone puts the stamp of approval on getting out of an unpleasant situation or an unwanted invitation by this means.

Every small child should learn to begin a phone conversation by announcing his name. "This is Bobby Green speaking."

Children should not be allowed to make themselves a nuisance by answering the phone or insisting on talking to a stranger who is in a hurry and wants to speak to the parent.

The requests for new phones often outrun the supply and many families must be content with a party line who would prefer a private one. Do teach children to be polite, and use the "Golden Rule" in the use of a line shared with another home!

A fond grandmother or aunt living in the same city can help a child become accustomed to the phone, and also to speak clearly, by talking to him at a time when the phone is not in demand by others.

Mother should show a child how to hold the phone and see that the mouthpiece is the right distance—about an inch from the lips.

In a home where there are teenage boys and girls who are going to school or starting to work, the use of the phone is often a contentious issue. Once "dating age" arrives, communication with friends by telephone is bound to be very popular. When a child has reached adolescence, it is a bit late to try to change his telephone habits.

The different members of the family should have a Family Council and come to a reasonable agreement on the length of a telephone conversation, the number of outgoing calls during the "rush hour," and taking turns in the use of the phone. Here is one place where democracy can be at work in the home incorporating consideration and efficiency in the use of one piece of equipment which is important to each person in the family.

Children as they grow older should also have a purpose for a phone call, not just "putting in time." The telephone is a responsibility, a privilege, and also an opportunity for business and social conversation.

At 12.01 a.m. January 1, 1959 25,000 insured patients, then in hospital, began receiving Ontario Hospital Insurance benefits.
