W.I. Cornroast
No doubt passers-by thought it was a group of teen-agers having a cornroast in the Wilkins' garden on Wednesday night of last week, but in truth it was Buttonville W.I. members and their friends, some of them pushing seventy, who were indulging themselves in a spot of outdoor eating and singing. When it comes to community service, work or fun the Women's Institute members are ready for anything, and by the time you read this a good many of the Buttonville group will be bound for a day at the CNE by chartered bus.
