Handyman About the House

SOME HANDY TIPS FOR THE BRUSHWORKER
 By Gordon Donaldson
 The other day when I got home, my wife was on a musical furniture kick — her once-a-year urge to change the look of everything around her.
 But this time she couldn't seem to get any satisfaction out of a new arrangement. "The place is just too drab," she said. So naturally, after some discussion I could see that we needed to paint the house.
 A house painting seems simple enough. Just buy some paint and slap it on — but what colors? After about a month of study of interior decorating magazines and one consultation with a decorator — I thought I was ready to begin.
 For one thing, I had discovered that some rooms need only a dash of color to lift them from drabness, give them decorative flavor. New curtains in a sunny hue and summer texture — a change of slipcovers for chairs or sofa, or even just a couple of colorful new soft pillows may be all that is needed.
 Other rooms may require a complete new background of color. Don't use the same color schemes you've been using for years. Experiment. Innovate.
 This year, paint manufacturers have added literally hundreds of new tints to their palettes.
 Here are some tips I gathered from my color study.
 Spring green, sky blue or a subtle blue-green are ideal for family rooms that must please many tastes. Try using them as well in Junior's bedroom, where their calm, relaxing effect will make his studying go more smoothly.

Monday are entirely too blue already, the homemaker may need kitchen colors that stimulate rather than soothe. Sunny yellows, which tend to make viewers both more cheerful and more alert, may be good bets.
 To "stretch" a skimpy room or brighten one short-changed of sunlight, try a sunny yellow, pale pink, soft peach or warm beige. "Sun colors" are the newest thing being offered by paint manufacturers.
 If you have problem rooms, use color for new perspective. Some homes, for example, have outside rooms with barnlike atmosphere. The cure, deep warm shades on the end walls, pastel tints in the same color (or even a contrasting hue) for side walls.
 Other tips: don't use more than three colors in a room. Achieve variety and decorative interest by using shades and tints of the color or colors selected. In other words, you seek a colorful individuality for your room by varying hue (the color itself), varying its value (lightness or darkness) and varying its chroma (brightness or intensity).

Plan Gay Christmas For Mental Patients

Mental patients in the hospitals and approved homes in the County of York will have a gay Christmas when the plans of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Mental Health Association are completed for this year.

The White Cross Christmas Gifts Campaign began recently when the Volunteer Association found that the majority of Mental Patients in the various institutions received no gifts from relatives or friends, nothing from "outside" at this season. Their only remembrance came from money subscribed by kindly hospital attendants.

"Put a gift for a Mental Patient on your Christmas list" is the appeal of the local Gift Committee under the direction of Mrs. Donald Strickland, Thornhill.

The whole motive of this project is to show the sick person that someone outside, well and healthy, wants them to come back, to recover, cares about them. The committee is hoping for a generous response to their appeal. Cash contributions are not being solicited, a gift such as you would buy for a friend is asked for the seven hundred mental patients in the County of York.
