Collect 12,000 Bus. of Cones For Seeds

To meet requirements for tree planting on public and private lands, Ontario's tree seed collection program calls for the collection of more than 12,000 bushels of cones this fall, according to Lands and Forests Minister the Hon. J. W. Spooner.

Seed collection is necessary to maintain the Department's production target of approximately sixty million units of nursery stock annually.

Each year, about 1,000 private individuals assist the Department in the collection program picking cones under contract specifying species and quantity required. Contracts are issued by the district offices to local people; no contracts are issued or cones accepted at Toronto head office of the Department.

Prospective pickers are advised to obtain full details for their guidance from the district offices at the time they obtain contracts.

Reserve supplies are necessary to carry over lean years when seed crops are not good. White Spruce, for example, this year is producing the first good seed crop since 1956.

Cones must be picked when mature but before they open to discharge their seed. Seed extraction is done at the Department's seed extraction plant at Angus, near Barrie, where it is processed and stored until required by Department nurseries.

There is a wide difference, according to tree species, in the number of closed cones in a bushel and the amount of clean seed that a bushel of cones will produce. The number of seeds in a pound also varies widely with species, white pine, for example, averaging 28,000 clean seeds to the pound while black spruce averages 400,000. Average number of seeds per pound of some other species are: Red Pine 55,000, Jack Pine 126,000, Scotch Pine 63,000, white spruce 267,000, Norway Spruce 66,000, Red Spruce 140,000, Tamarack 328,000, White Cedar 289,000, Red Cedar 32,000, Balsam Fir 60,000 and Hemlock 264,000.
