

The Markham community was presented last week with a 30-thousand square foot fall-out shelter by the Markham Centre Merchants Association.

The shelter was built under the Markham Centre and includes 3-foot thick concrete walls. The Markham Centre can hold up to 2,000 people in a community of 4,300.

Mr. Piccinini said: "I think the type of shelter I saw today is perfectly suited for a community like Markham."

ever seen. It's enormous in size. Miss Diane Dufort modelled an atomic fallout suit in the shelter and showed newsmen and officials an emergency provision kit which can keep food fresh for fifty days.

The Tribune would appreciate their readers phoning or sending in the names of Christmas visitors. Phone 152 or 153.

Mr. and Mrs. John Timbers and girls of Cookstown were visitors with her mother, Mrs. Menno Grove on Sunday.

Have you ordered that portable typewriter yet for that boy or girl student of yours? Don't be disappointed, order now, Christmas is not far off.

Correction — We would correct a couple of typographical errors which crept into the columns of last week's issue of The Tribune. In the statement concerning the polling figure for Lawrence Hennessy, Whitchurch Twp., the number of votes polled was 256 not 258 as stated; and in the case of the Stouffville election, the total number of votes cast was 1200, not 12000.
