THE VOTERS' CHOICE: STABILITY or COLLAPSE

Toronto Telegram writer asks serious and responsible consideration for the stable and majority government plea of the Liberal Party.

Reviewing the coming election in a front page article in a recent issue of The Toronto Telegram, John Saywell, professor of the Department of History of the University of Toronto, states:

"For several years Canada has been facing problems which together have sapped the very foundations of her existence as a nation — basic structural weaknesses in the economy; the need for a new internal and economic orientation; defense and foreign policy; and heightened sectionalism and the revolt of French Canada.

"Few major decisions have been made. Those that have, often have aggravated the illness rather than cured it. Indecision and inconsistency have marked the course of the Diefenbaker government for several years, especially in the Pitiful Parliament that recently died.

"The results of June 18 increased those diseases until they became fatal. The government collapsed and the Conservative Party disintegrated.

"But the old problems remain unsolved. And unless the country is to collapse also, the government must act quickly, and decisively. Time is not on our side.

"A minority government, dependant on the whimsical support of another party, can act neither quickly, nor decisively, nor wisely."

LIBERAL VOTE ONLY ANSWER

In a front page editorial Saturday-March-23rd, The Globe & Mail said:

"This is what Mr. Pearson has pledged himself to do: First, to initiate a program to stimulate and expand the economy; Second, when there are profits from this stimulated and expanded economy, to use those profits to buy a better life for the people of Canada.

"But if Canada is to be set upon this hopeful highway, it is first necessary that we elect a stable government with a working majority. That we will do so seems, at this stage, to be in doubt. It should not be. We hope that Canadian voters will examine the facts calmly, sensibly, and vote accordingly.

"Those who voted Conservative in past elections should find it no philosophical problem to vote Liberal in this election. It has been a long time since there has been any philosophical difference between the two parties. This has been one of the voter's problems, there has been little to choose between them except in the character of the leadership. And in this election Mr. Diefenbaker has simplified the choice by ignoring the realities to which Mr. Pearson has returned.

"Those voters who may feel tempted to say, 'A plague on both your houses,' and cast their ballots for one of the fringe parties, should recognize that they cannot thus make any contribution to solving their country's problems. They can only make them worse. Neither fringe party can possibly form a government. To vote for them is to run the risk of repeating the national indecision of last June. We cannot afford more of such indecision, it could lead to national collapse.

"We have been without government. We must have government. This is the overriding issue which faces us on April 8. We can resolve it only by electing the Liberal Party with a working majority."
