Mental Health Week

Ontario's Hospitals for the mentally ill "a safe, quiet refuge" away from the cares of the world. There are patients in Ontario who work in the mental health general hospitals, and patients emotional or mental problem. the problems of mental health and of mental illness. This is Mental Health Week and it is now being observed for the seventh year all across Canada. The emphasis is not only on Mental Illness, and people sick in mental hospitals, but also on the promotion and safeguarding of good mental health in the community.

Are you curious about what goes on in a mental hospital? Have you ever thought about the men and women who are patients there? Have you ever wondered about the life they lead? the kind of treatment used to help them? the number of years they have been there and proved. how soon they will recover? Have you ever considered a career in mental health, as a psychiatrist, an attendant, a nurse or social worker?

Mental Health Week is a time when you can very easily find out about some of these things. Mental hospitals and mental health clinics all hold open house during the week and during guided tours you have an opportunity to chat informally with patients and hospital staff. Perhaps you have already toured the hospital or clinic in your community. Doubtless there will be other ways in which you can participate in Mental Health Week. Film festivals, public meetings, workshops and other "come see, come learn" activities will be of Mrs. J. Kingstone. sponsored by local voluntary organizations, and they deserve your attention and support.

There will be some who feel that not only Mental Health Week, but even mental health problems are of no significance to them. To the contrary, this is everybody's business, and all of us in the community have an important role to play, to remove the stigma, the element of hushed secrecy from those afflicted with some mental illness, and to be aware of the need for projects that promote positive mental health.
