Dr. Doug Brodie, Glad Park Ave., had to do some fast talking during the early hours of the morning when, clad only in his pajamas and a bathrobe, he was confronted by Stouffville's new police Chief, Orland Keating. It seems that the doctor had gone downstairs in preparation to leave for the Scarborough Hospital where a pending maternity case was waiting. Before he could leave, however, he received a call from the hospital authorities that the birth was not imminent for at least one or two hours. Rather than go back to bed, he decided to do a little work around his basement garage. Mrs. Brodie, in the meantime, believing that her husband had already left for Scarborough, heard noises and called the police, fearing that a prowler was in her home. Chief Keating was on the scene within minutes and directed his lighted flashlight squarely in the doctor's eyes, demanding an explanation. After some convincing, the Chief left with both men possibly agreeing that in their professions, it was all in a night's work.
