Tire Pressures

One thing that makes us especially proud is the number of people who buy their first used car from us, let us service it, and then as they move up, come back to buy newer cars from us.

Take the simple little matter of keeping tires properly inflated.

Tires that are overinflated wear out quickly in the middle of the tread. Underinflation is just as bad. It brings overheating which causes the layers of fabric inside the tire to separate. Wandering and weaving on the road can be caused by underinflation, and a pull to one side can result from unequal inflation on the front tires or from not having matched treads. Underinflated tires can cause a shimmy, too.

All this worry can be saved by nothing more complicated than checking your tire pressure. When you've been running around town, pressure should be no more than three pounds above the recommended cool pressure; on the open highway five pounds above is all right.

These are the important little things you'll learn by talking to the people on our lot and in our service department. When something really goes wrong, those mechanics have the machinery and the know-how to fix it. But like any good doctor, when nothing is really wrong, they'll tell you.

New $1 Postage Stamp

The Postmaster General today released details of a new $1.00 regular issue postage stamp which will go on sale to the public on the 14th of June. Export trade will be the theme of this stamp.

Mr. Denis stated that foreign trade is the most important factor in our economy today. This, he said, is due to the fact that our country's productivity in goods exceeds its consumer requirements and it is this excess which must be made attractive and sold to foreign markets.

The Postmaster General added that export trade was selected as the subject for the stamp basically for two reasons. To focus attention abroad on the fact that Canada is one of the great trading nations in the world and to make Canadians themselves aware of the need for continued diligence in the promotion of trade.

The design of the stamp, which is the work of Mr. A. L. Pollock of Toronto, depicts a wooden crate being lifted in a sling by a large hook. The crate and hook are pictured in the left foreground against a backdrop of a map of the world, representative of Canada's extensive export to all countries. Across the upper portion of the crate appears the word "Canada" in simulated stencil form. The colour chosen

Sunday School Lesson

Golden Text: For the righteous LORD loveth righteousness; his countenance doth behold the upright. —Psa. 11:7.

Approach to the Lesson

When judgement is mentioned we almost invariably think of an unfavorable decision (does conscience make cowards of us all?) but, in fact, it always has two sides, one to be decided "for" and the other "against." Judgement, therefore, must necessarily have two sides. We should bear this in mind in today's lesson.

Psalm 72, according to the superscription, was written by David for his son Solomon most probably on the latter's accession to the throne. It takes the form of a prayer. Bearing in mind that an important part of a monarch's duty was (and still is) by delegation; in Great Britain, for example, they still refer to Her Majesty's Judges and Queen's Counsel) that of civil judgments, we have here a prayer from a father's heart that his kingly son may judge righteously. We who are called to be kings and priests unto God (Rev. 1:6) and to live among the ungodly as evidences of the righteousness of God, need the integrity of which this song speaks. Those of us with children going out into the world cannot pray better for them than that they may, out of their lives, evince his practical righteousness. The Psalm finds its richest fulfillment, of course in our Lord Jesus Christ.

Psalm 82 is a stern reminder seldom more necessary than today, that the God who stands in the midst of all peoples is righteous and active, and, therefore, requires us "to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with our God" (Mic. 6:8.) Salvation by faith is no substitute for evidence by our works that we are Christians. We who delight to claim our Lord's promise of His never-failing presence, need to remember that righteous presence when we deal with our employers or employees, make up our income tax returns, shop at the stores, and contact folk of all classes and more than one color in our ordinary lives. God sees and hears all. Again, the Psalm finds its ultimate expression in the coming judgments of God—a solemn, but very necessary subject about which we all need to be forewarned.

Heart of the Lesson

This is God's world and, He being righteous, it is framed to obey His laws. In the natural world we learn and conform to these laws (gravity, electricity) to our great advantage. Failure leads inevitably to death. In the spiritual realm we think we can ignore His laws with impunity. Nothing could be further from the truth for, "the soul that sinneth, it shall die" (Ezek. 18:4), and, "righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people" (Prov. 14:34). Would that this could be recognized in our centers of government! But if that cannot be, at least let us be sure that it is written indelibly on our own hearts; for if it is true that a nation has the sort of government it deserves, then the much needed righteousness in national and international affairs will only come with a rising tide of spiritual sensitivity in each of us. "This Psalm represents the conviction which was so profoundly fixed in the Hebrew mind, that Justice is the fundamental virtue of society, and that its corruption implies total disorganization and ruin."

27 lbs. Sugar For $1.00 At Bloomington in 1896

Since, at this time in 1963, there are no stores or a post office in our little hamlet, it is difficult to imagine that at one time there was a much larger population almost independent of other towns with its crafts, post office and stores. Now our mail is brought to us by truck and placed in the mail box at the gate. Formerly it was brought by horse and buggy or cutter from Stouffville to Bloomington Post Office, each person getting his mail from there. The first tradesmen were travelling merchants of whom the first was Tom Storry, uncle of our Art Storry.

The first Post Master was Maxson Jones, who built the house which is now the Bloomington Nursing Home. The bricks were all dipped by hand in paint by his daughter Ida. Mrs. John Cleaver, David (Scottie) Kennedy was the next Post Master. He lived in the old hall, later he bought the ten acres at the back of the houses on the west side of the ninth, next to Joe Lemon's farm. He kept post office in both these houses. At one time, Mr. Jas. Lazenby and Mr. Thos. Barnett kept a store and P.O. in the corner house, where Mr. Ed. Sheppard now lives. Then Barton Ward, followed by Everett Barnes, held this position. The latter from 1910 to 1921, when the Government closed the office. All these men also kept a small general store in connection with the post office.

There were also stores in the houses where Clare Preston and W.A. Fockler live; Mr. James Patterson had a photographic studio in Arnold Harper's house and his son was the photographer. Mr. Patterson Sr. was also an auctioneer.

Now, for a special treat, here are some store prices of 1896: 7 lbs. choice prunes 25c, 7 lbs. rice 25c, 1 lb. candies 5c, lemons 4c doz., washboards $4c, pineapples 8-10c each, gingersnaps 6 lbs. 25c, broom 10c, socks and hose 10c pair, thread 2 for 5c, tea 12 1/2 lb., 27 lbs. sugar $1.00.

Boys and girls, how would you like to take your nickel to the store now and get a whole pound of candy?

The Beef Ring

The beef ring was an organized group of 20 farmers, who provided fresh beef each week, usually beginning in May or June and continuing for 20 wks. Each farmer would provide a well-finished animal which was divided into 20 shares of about 20 lbs. each. If the families did not use all their share, they could sell part of it to their neighbours. The butcher had his shop in the barn on Mr. Inslley's lot, formerly owned by Joel Lemon. Some of the butchers were: Joel Lemon, Phillip Lemon, Tom Barnett and Art Smith. Farmers would come early Wednesday mornings to get their beef. The Stouffville Tribune of 1903 says: "The beef ring society met at the home of Joel Lemon and settled business for this season and made arrangements for the next. Everything passed off satisfactorily."

A horror story was also told to us by an old timer in connection with this beef ring. It is understood that the blood of the slaughtered animal usually ran down the creek behind the butcher shop. One dark night, when a fellow cut across the fields at this very spot on his late homeward walk, he fell into this creek and you can well imagine what a horrifying spectre he made when he arrived home.

The beef ring society continued until about the year 1940, when it was disbanded. Can you guess why? No? Well then, think of where your mother keeps the meat now.
