Report From Parliament

The Debate on the Throne Speech has now been completed. There were two votes taken during the debate and the Government survived both of them although the first vote was won by the Government by a very narrow majority.

The House of Commons will now be engaged in applying itself to the business of the Nation in debating the resolutions that are on the Order Paper, placed there by the Government for consideration of the Members of the House of Commons.

One of the Resolutions to be considered first is the establishment of an Economic Council of Canada. It is difficult to ascertain from the Resolution all the details of this legislation. Resolutions usually are very skimpy in their information and this one only mentions the appointment of a Chairman, Directors and other members of the Council and the payment of remuneration to the Chairman and the Directors, and certain other expenses of administration.

The Resolution also mentions that this Council will naturally assume that certain things will be done and will make suggestions in the hope that the Government will pay heed to them and include these suggestions in the legislation itself.

Members of Parliament taking part in this debate will naturally assume that certain things will be done and will make suggestions in the hope that the Government will pay heed to them and include these suggestions in the legislation itself.

Another Resolution on the order paper is one designed to provide financial assistance by way of loans to municipalities. The Resolution explains that such loans are for the purpose of enabling municipalities to augment or accelerate their capital works programs, subject of course to the approval of the Province concerned. It is in the Consolidated Revenue Fund not to exceed $400,000,000. These loans will be made to municipalities and certain other municipal capital works projects.

The Resolution states that legislation will be introduced in which there will be provision to establish a Municipal Development and Loan Board to administer this fund.

It will also authorize the acceptance of municipal debentures for any loans so made.

This is a long Resolution and many things are spelled out. One of the intriguing things in the Resolution will be, an author-

The ostrich is known as the "camel bird" because of the great strides it takes when running. The Encyclopedia Americana says that these strides measure from 12 to 15 feet when the ostrich is in full flight and that the bird's speed will reach 40 miles per hour. This speed compensates for the ostrich's inability to fly. A female ostrich lays about 15 eggs at one time, each egg weighing approximately three pounds and being the equivalent in weight claimed that some ostriches of two dozen hen's eggs. It is have lived for 70 years in captivity.

orization which will provide for a measure of forgiveness in respect of any loans so made, depending upon the date of completion of the projects for which such loans are made.

We will have to wait and see what specific details are included in the legislation itself in respect to this last provision.

There are other Resolutions on the Order Paper that I will deal with in a subsequent report.

During the Throne Debate we have had oral question periods, each and every day. The written questions, however have not been dealt with as yet and they are gradually piling up. To date there are some 146 questions on the Order Paper, submitted by Members of Parliament from all parties.

A section of the Order Paper is devoted to private Member's Notices of Motions and there have been some 38 motions submitted so far and listed on the Order Paper by Members of all parties. These will be dealt with during the one-hour periods from five to six o'clock each and every day.

Meanwhile, I find that the life of a private Member is far less arduous than that of a Cabinet Minister.
