The trustees of Public School Area No. 3 in Markham Township can breathe a little easier this week with the operation of their new program. Although a few changes in the system were required following the start of the September term, everything is now running smoothly. Highway disruption at the corner of #7 and Don Mills Road, and the widening process on Don Mills Road north of Victoria Sq. has cut traffic to a trickle, even on weekends. Local business people find their revenue cut by approximately 50%. At the White Road service station there is only one narrow strip of access this week, and the balance of the several hundred feet frontage is a wide ditch with the pavement sliced off. Hope of freer flowing traffic when new lanes are added and the job completed is the one consolation.

Margaret Champion is settled at Haverhill College for the coming school year.

Mrs. Clayton Jones entertained her music pupils at a picnic recently, and among those present were Mrs. Jones' children, Allan, Gail and Kenneth, Linda Hincks, Brenda and Paul Wellman, Barbara and Nancy Martin and Charlene Jones. The community owes Bill Hood a vote of thanks for his interest in instigating and supporting a boys' baseball team through the summer months. The boys didn't win the pennant, but they all had fun, and we know of no better public relations.

That impressive line-up at the Markham Township offices Wednesday morning was for hunting licenses which weren't on sale, and aren't even printed yet. The hunting season opens the middle of October, and in this township only 200 non-residence licenses will be granted. It should also be remembered that no fire arms are allowed south of #7 highway and west of Bayview Ave.

Progress on the new hospital at Richmond Hill has been held up because of strikes, and the opening, which was scheduled for the end of October, will be somewhat delayed. Dr. James Langstaff of Richmond Hill will be chief-of-staff, and all York County doctors who meet requirements are eligible as staff members.
