ing out too satisfactorily. The Estimates are being considered on Thursdays and Fridays from seven to ten-thirty in the evening. This only allows seven hours per week for this essential business of the House. The House Leader of the Government plans the work of Parliament and is directly responsible. The fault with this procedure is that one Department is in-troduced, discussion is carried on for three and a half hours and if the discussion is not completed that Department is dropped and a new one is introduced the following day. This has been carried on this Session and, as a result only a few departmental estimates have been completely aprpoved out of approximately twenty departments.

If the Government expects to complete this work before the Christmas prorogation, a more concentrated effort will be nee-

The Government is still unprepared to make a definite statement as to whether they are willing to extend an in-crease to disabled and blind pensioners. The increase to these people was always made simultaneously with the increase to old age pensioners.

One can only assume that there is a great reluctance on the part of the Government to extend the ten dollar increase to this deserving group.
