Report From Parliament Hill

By Michael Starr, M.P.
Much legislation has been discussed and passed in the past two weeks. One of the important Resolutions to come before the House for discussion is the proposed amendments to the National Housing Act.

These amendments were formulated by the late Hon. J. Garland, the Minister and the President of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, Mr. Stewart Bates, who just recently passed away also.

Both of these gentlemen were greatly missed and it is unfortunate that neither one of them had the opportunity to see these changes debated and passed.

Some of the features of the changes proposed are loans to owners of existing houses in areas included in urban renewal programs; the construction of accommodation for university students and their families, which is a slight modification from a previous policy. There is also a provision for increasing the amounts of monies for other activities of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

During the past weeks we have had two distinguished visitors to Ottawa, our Capital City. One was the Secretary-General of the United Nations, Mr. U. Thant, and the other Mr. DeValera, the President of Ireland. Both of these distinguished gentlemen were accorded a warm welcome by Parliament and the Government.

The Flag issue has flared up into a national controversy and Canadians are lining up on both sides. One group is for the retaining of the Red Ensign as the national flag the other is in favour of Mr. Pearson's flag.

The debate, when it is begun, is shaping up to be a long and heated one. Some demonstrations have developed on Parliament Hill in recent days. The young people seem to be evenly divided on this issue as was evidenced by their participation in these groups.

An interesting flag appeared in one of these assemblies. It was the Red Ensign, except that instead of the Canadian Coat-of-Arms, it displayed ten silver maple leaves. The maple leaves I assume represented the ten provinces of Canada. The Opposition had been insisting that the Government indicate the legislation they propose to dispose of prior to any summer recess. On May 15th, the Prime Minister made a statement and indicated all the items of business the Government hopes to get completed before the House can give consideration to the possibility of a summer recess. He pointed out that the list was somewhat long and then he proceeded to outline the various pieces of legislation. He indicated that there would be another Supply Motion and also that the Government will be asking for consideration of granting monies to carry on the affairs of the country. In all, there were some 30-odd pieces of legislation that he outlined in this statement.

We understood at the time that these were pressing matters that had to be disposed of. Since then, however, he has brought forward the flag issue and has indicated that it will be debated prior to any of these important government measures.

The flag debate can naturally be expected to carry on for some time as every Member of Parliament, or most, would like to express his opinion on this very important matter. This would in no sense mean that a filibuster would be undertaken. An opportunity must, of course, be provided for Members of Parliament, who wish, to state their position. As a result, we have now relegated important legislation as a secondary consideration to the flag issue.

The Pension Plan has been shelved temporarily as some of the Provinces have not given their consent to amending the Constitution in order to provide survival benefits under this Plan. The Province of Quebec has indicated that it will be necessary for them to have approval in their legislature for such an amendment. This may take some weeks as no doubt the members of that legislature may wish to discuss this matter in some detail.

What is cancer? The Canadian Cancer Society tells us it is a group of diseases characterized by the disorganized growth of abnormal body cells. These cells can be identified by observation under a microscope. The cause of this behaviour remains unknown.
