

Markham Fair Through The Eye of The Camera

In every class of competition at Markham Fair last week, there was a lengthy list of entries and the baked goods were no exception. Judge, Mrs. M. H. McKenna of Newmarket, shown here, knows a 1st prize orange chiffon cake when she tastes one. Mrs. Earl Cook of Lemonville won a red ribbon for this entry. —Staff Photo.

In the class for girls, 18 years old and under, Susan Ryan of Cedar Grove collected a total of 29 points. She counted 2 firsts, 6 seconds, 1 third and 2 fourths. Susan had fifteen individual entries in both the baking and sewing. She holds a prize-winning sandwich plate. —Staff Photo.

There should be no better judge of a 1st prize peach pie than Dept. of Agriculture, Home Economist, Miss Austr. Janitis. This 1st prize winner was made by Sharon Lapp in the 18 year old and under class. It is only the second year of competition for this age group and Miss Janitis (shown here) is confident that it will continue to grow. —Staff Photo.

It takes a brave barber to give a 2,500-pound-Holstein bull a haircut but this 1 1/2-ton entry from Romandale Farms near Unionville doesn't seem to mind a bit. David Houck handles the clippers while Allan Orr holds the bull's head. —Staff Photo.

The interior of the arena building presented a glittering display of products, ranging from baskets of apples to 1965 model cars. Thousands of people viewed the displays during the two-day show. The floor was then cleared for the dance on Saturday night. —Staff Photo.

Whenever Holstein cattle shows are held in this district, the R. R. Dennis Farms of Oakridges are always represented in the winner's circle. Mr. Dennis had both the grand champion cow and bull at Markham Fair. He is pictured here (right) receiving a red ribbon from York County Dairy Princess, Mrs. Lois Livingston of Woodbridge while showman, Bertram Stewart (centre) looks on. —Staff Photo.

Although traffic leading to Markham Fair was handled in a very efficient manner by police, it did not prevent a bumper blockade on No. 48 Hwy., south from No. 7 on Saturday afternoon. More than 20,000 people attended and some are pictured here in cars, looking north toward the intersection from the top of Vinegar Hill. —Staff Photo.

This entry would never win a beauty contest, but in the class for pigs, it won an award for W. A. Johnston and Son of Maryville Farms of Hawkestone. The giant Landrace hog tipped the scales at 300 pounds. —Staff Photo.
