

With The "Clippers"

TOM BENSON, lanky six foot centre, is playing his first year of Junior Hockey, and is progressing very favourably. The 17-year-old youth tips the scales at 160 pounds, hails from Claremont, and plays centre between Wayne Hassell and Don Penny.

Tom works for Ajax Corp. Plastics located in Ajax, and plans on going back to night school. He also claimed that he wouldn't mind advancing further in hockey.

Baseball is Tom's summer sport but of the two, he prefers hockey. GP, 15; GOALS, 10; ASSISTS, 3; POINTS, 13.

Clippers Snap Losing Streak Defeat Uxbridge Chicks 6-2

SAUNDERS SCORES HAT TRICK

Stouffville "Clippers" broke a 5-game losing streak Monday night when they defeated Uxbridge "Chicks" 6-2 in a regular league game played in Uxbridge. Neil Saunders scored a hat-trick for the winners. "Clippers," who have failed to gain a point since December 8th, played good, fast hockey Monday, and now must start the climb back up the ladder to top spot, a position they held early in the campaign. Since they hit the skids, the "Clippers" slipped from first to third spot in the league standings.

Early Lead
The Stouffville club broke loose for three goals in the first period, coming off the sticks of Rod Kelson (2) and Neil Saunders.

Pete Reesor scored at the .15 second mark of the second frame to make it 4-0. Then the lights went out, literally. Apparently a fuse had blown, and one bank of lights flooding the ice faded, then died. Seconds later, the arena, including the gondola and canteen, was plunged into darkness. The situation, however, was rectified in short order and play resumed.

Confused Play
With the play in the Stouffville zone, one of the "Clipper" players shot the puck full length of the ice, a situation usually whistled down by referees as "icing." Linesman George Kydd followed the play into Uxbridge territory and as the puck slid across the red line, he raised his hand in smart fashion, indicating a whistle on the play. However, the referee didn't blow his tweeter, and Kydd slowly dropped his arm. The "Clippers," expecting the whistle to be sounded didn't follow the puck, rather slackened off in the centre zone. An Uxbridge player picked up the disk, skated the length of the ice, passing and stichhandling amidst a befuddled Stouffville team, and placed the puck neatly behind "Chuck" Doyle.

The player, Bill Payne, was mobbed by his fellow men for scoring the goal. However Rod Kelson wasn't quite as jubilant. He reminded Kydd of the "icing" but the official allowed the goal and the "Clippers" led 4-1 at the end of the middle frame. A fight developed early in the final period, with Jim Hood and Bill Payne tangling with each other. Hood, who stands a good 6" over Payne, got some pretty mean swipes at his opponent, but Payne, unafraid, wouldn't back down. Referee Kydd finally broke up the brawl, and assessed five minute fines on each player.

Neil Saunders fired his third of the night at 8:30 of the final frame when he placed the puck behind Dave Smith, who appeared shaky and nervous throughout the contest. However Smith did come up with some key saves, and stopped more than 30 shots.

Smith, on one occasion caught the puck and held on to it, without a player anywhere near him. According to the new rules this year, any goalie holding onto the puck for three seconds or more will be penalized for "delaying the game." Smith had the puck in his possession for a good five seconds, before Kydd whistled the play. Enter, Rod Kelson, who must know every rule in the book backwards to argue the situation. The assistant captain recited the rule to Kydd, then Kydd recited a rule to Kelson. Rod was given a 10-minute misconduct for debating the point. Also entered in the new rules this year is a clause that no one, including captains and assistant-captains, can argue with the officials. Kelson went to the cooler, but not before he expressed his feelings to "Clipper" coach Harold Hodgson.

Stops Breakaway
Uxbridge scored the final goal of the night, at 14:55 when Marcel Brocher scored on a breakaway. Earlier in the third period, Doyle stopped John McMillan on a breakaway. McMillan had clear ice from centre, but Doyle outsmarted him. Loyal "Clipper" fans, most of them young girls were on hand to cheer their team to victory.

The only afternoon game of the season will be played New Year's Day at the Stouffville arena when the "Clippers" tangle in a return match with the Uxbridge "Chicks." Game time is 2 p.m.

Saunders Nears 20 Goal Mark

Scoring a hat-trick Monday night in Uxbridge, enabled Neil Saunders to move within two goals of hitting the prize 20 goal mark. Only Rod Kelson has conquered the milestone so far this season. Saunders remained in fifth spot in the standings. However, he strengthened his lead over sixth place Jim Hood. McLean, Kelson, and Brown in that order are still the top three of the team, with Pete Reesor a close fourth. Here are the statistics:
