New Careers Night Planned

It used to be (and not so long ago) the weatherman was a kind of Juxury in our society whose job is was to predict a fair day for the Sunday school picnic. Now, mid twentieth century, day by day his importance increases. His forecasting for plane schedules, space ships and rocket flights must be absolutely accurate. This is just Lawrence on Monday morning one example of an old career

As he goes up into space to satisfy his curiosity and his spirit of adventure - so Buttonville (Don Mills Rd.) to at the same time, he probes Bloor and Church Sts., arriv. deeper into the earth and farther into the seas. As he builds toward an extraordinary future - so he becomes more and more curious about his part and delves farther into history and even into pre-historical

This is our world to-day. Careers of no importance yesterday will be all-important tomorrow. A progressive and inventive society gives birth to new vocations and to-day's child may well be doing tomorrow something non-existent in his father's day. It is with a view to exploring some new careers of to-day and to-morrow that CGCC Special Interests Committee has invited four people whose positions demand refrigerators, televisions, in | that they deal as much with the stalled in your home.
