Impaired Driver Said Confused by Traffic Signals

An Oshawa man, charged June 24th in Markham, for impaired driving, was convicted Thursday in Magistrate's Court and fined $50 and costs.
Cecil Marshall, 39, pleaded not guilty.
P.C. Rod Junkin of the Markham Village Police told the Court that he first noticed the accused man driving west on Wellington St. He said the car made a wide turn and proceeded north on Main street using both lanes of the northbound side of the road. Narrowly missing a parked car, the man backed his car into Centre Street where he was apprehended.
P.C. Junkin said the man staggered when he walked. Marshall was offered a taxi home but he refused and was subsequently taken to Buttonville.
Marshall said that he was going to visit his father in Newmarket, and became confused at the traffic lights in Markham. Not knowing the area he said he thought Hwy. 48 was Don Mills Road.
Marshall said he had had only two bottles of beer all evening.
"This section (223 of Criminal Code) is designed for the safety of the public," the Magistrate said. "I don't know how much he had to drink but I'm satisfied that what he did have was sufficient to affect his condition."
Besides the fine, Marshall's driver's license was suspended by the Department of Transport.

Fertilizer Benefit Obvious In Growth Of Summer Crops

(A. A. Wall, Agriculture Representative, York County.)
Every growing season is a little different, and I have noticed a few unusual things in the last few weeks. Perhaps the most striking is that response to fertilizer is very pronounced this year.
In corn fields especially, a clogged fertilizer run shows up like a sore thumb. Often when we have tried to demonstrate faster growth with high nitrogen for instance, the difference is hard to see. After seeing quite a few corn fields lately, the ones that are really booming are those that got 60 to 100 lbs. of actual nitrogen this spring. Fields that got only a couple of hundred lbs. of a mixed analysis like 5-20-10, generally are just plodding along.
An odd situation has occurred this year on some fields that were summer-fallowed last year. For some strange reason, growth this year is slower on summer-fallow. Normally, summer-fallowing gives both moisture and fertility a chance, to build up a little, and while I think it's a wasteful practice, it should put up a good crop the following year.
Corn Crop Slow
Some of the corn that was frosted in the spring, has not come back as well as we thought it would. I suppose being frozen and short of moisture at the same time, is quite a shock to get over, and this may be the explanation.

Generally, oil added to Atrazine this year has done a good job. It has given a much better kill on twitch grass and foxtail than Atrazine alone. Some who used it are suspicious that the oil set back the corn as well, and we will have to take another look at this angle.
After promoting direct seeding of forages, I am a little disappointed to find some failures this year. The seed just didn't germinate and grow, but the weeds did. Despite these failures, I still think direct seeding has a useful place. The trick is to not do it in a year when it's not going to rain at all in May and June.
Another item has to do with putting high moisture grain corn in a silo. We had part of a silo full spoil this summer. With any new practice, it seems to take a few years' experience to establish the hard and fast rules. And it takes a few mistakes to make them sink in. In this case, I think the corn went in too dry last fall.
More and more grain is being stored this way and the system has a great many advantages. Caution is needed though, on getting it in at the right moisture content.
