Church Is Pastor's "Home" During Renovation Of Manse

When Rev. T. H. Fleetham of Greenwood returned home from his mid-summer vacation trip to the East Coast, he discovered that major renovations to the manse had not been completed. He soon solved his own accommodation problem. He moved, bag and baggage into the basement of the Greenwood United Church.

Rev. T. H. Fleetham

"It was strictly my own idea," he said, "I wanted to be free to come and go." He said that he received many offers from residents in the community. He is now living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Harrison while they are on holidays. By the time they return, the work on the parsonage should be finished.

All Facilities With reference to his church "home," the pastor said that he wanted for nothing. There was hot and cold water, a stove, refrigerator and an improvised bed located in a curtained-off portion of the Sunday School room. "About the only thing missing was a telephone," said the minister, "this might be considered as both a handicap and a convenience."

Rev. Fleetham noted that while most members of his congregation were sweltering in a mid-summer heat wave, he was living in comfortable quarters, "air-conditioned" by mother nature. "It was the coolest place in town," he said. The pastor noted that mid-week activities in the church are at a minimum at this time of year and aside from a meeting of the U.C.W., his privacy in the sanctuary was not interrupted.

Own Breakfast Still enjoying all the privileges of single blessedness, Pastor Fleetham has become quite proficient at the culinary art of frying eggs and boiling potatoes. He admitted, however, that while he prepared his own breakfast, he was always an invited guest at someone's home for dinner and supper. "One thing about living in the church," he said, "the congregation could always be sure that I would arrive at the service on time."

Use Of Strap Approved By Area No. 1 Board

The trustees of Public School Area No. 1 in Pickering Twp. has agreed that corporal punishment should be retained in the school system.

This decision was included in a recent memorandum to the principals. It recommended that the teacher keep a record of the date of the strapping as well as the number of strokes administered. The board also recommended that a witness be present and that, if possible, the child's parents be notified about the punishment.

The board has decided to reinstate all responsibility for natural ice rinks, previously maintained at three of the schools in the Area. They are—Paradise School in Pickering Beach, Cherrywood and Claremont.

It was felt that it wasn't fair to keep three rinks in operation while thirteen other schools had no skating facilities at all.

The board agreed that organization in the three communities should be contacted to see if they would carry on with this project. Representatives will be made welcome at the board's next meeting on Monday, Sept. 13th to discuss the matter.

The board has decided that the retirement age for their teachers should be 65 and that every teacher who becomes 65 during the school term be required to resign at the end of that term. The trustees agreed that retired teachers could be hired on a year-to-year basis after retirement.

History Of The Common Nail

By Harry M. Spang (Prog. Chairman, Pickering Twp. Historical Society)

History is an all-embracing subject. With the advent of tomorrow, today with all the many and varied activities becomes history. Even something as ordinary as a nail has a history.

There are Biblical references to the use of iron nails as far back as 1100 B.C.

British artisans made nails for their Roman masters by hammering a piece of iron on an anvil. In North America, pioneer families would spend their winter evenings hand forging iron nails on a small forge beside the fireplace. The first machine to make nail rod was invented in 1777 in the United States. Wire nails did not put in their appearance until 1835 when a machine for their production was invented in France. This was the first machine for producing nails at a low cost and in quantity and was therefore, responsible for wire nails becoming the most popular fastener. As wire production techniques were improved, nail surfaces became smoother, reducing the nail's gripping ability in wood fibre. This fact resulted in efforts to improve the nail's holding power. Special coatings, deliberate deforming of nail shanks, barbing, threading, etc., until today we have the spiral nail to fill present
