Step Up Work At Pickering Hydro Site

Contracts totalling more than $550,000 have been awarded for erection of temporary buildings and installation of essential services at Ontario Hydro's Pickering nuclear power station.

A contract valued at about $90,000, including taxes, went to Leaside Contracting Co., Toronto, to provide sewer and water mains. Hydro will also reimburse the township for preparing connections and later will pay full commercial water rates.

Of the 8,200 feet of sewer line, about 3,000 feet will be closed off when construction of the $266 million station is completed. Also temporary is some 3,400 feet of water main out of a total 4,200 feet.

Cooling water, used during operation of the plant to condense steam, will come from the lake through facilities built and maintained by Hydro and unconnected with municipal systems.

John Wheelright, Ltd., of Weston, are erecting four of the temporary buildings - a warehouse, project main office, garage and machine shop. McKay - Cocker Construction Ltd., of London, will provide such interior finishing as plumbing, lighting, heating and partitions for the main office.

Eight or ten more temporary buildings are to be erected by Hydro from stocks of prefabricated metal sections taken from storage and from recently-completed projects.

Work force on the 500-acre site has reached about 85 men. The number of workers tends to increase in a steady upward curve, Hydro officials say, and the peak work force of 1,200 at Pickering should be reached late in 1968.

Pile-driving for the first of the plant's twin 540,000-kilowatt units is expected to start early in December.

Pickering Generating Station, scheduled for initial service in 1970, is being built by Hydro with nuclear portions designed by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.
