On The Farm Front... Cty. Milk Committee To Be Formed In York

(A.A. Wall, Agricultural Representative for York County) With the new Milk Act proclaimed, the new authority for the marketing of all milk begins to take shape. Practically all of the functions being looked after up to now by the Milk Industry Board, the Whole Milk Producers' League, the Concentrated Producers' Marketing Board and our Producers' Associations, will be taken over by new agencies. The Ontario Milk Commission, headed by George McCague, is at the top of the heap. It will be responsible for governing the entire dairy industry in Ontario. By far the biggest and most difficult job it has, is in milk marketing. So a Marketing Board has been set up under the Commission to look after the entire marketing job. This 14 man Board is headed by George McLaughlin. It takes over the job of negotiating prices, setting quotas and has the authority to set up a pooling operation for all milk producers in Ontario. These two bodies hold virtually all the power in the new set-up. However, there will be a County Milk Committee organized in each county. It will be the voice of all producers, and the combined opinion of these county units will certainly influence the decisions of both the Commission and the Marketing Board. It is expected too, that eventually members of the Marketing Board will be elected by county committees. We will be starting to organize our committee in York County very soon. It will be made up of not more than fifteen members, to be elected by a ballot vote of all producers. I hope we can arrange to have this vote within the next few weeks. It will be well advertised when the time comes, so that all dairy farmers will be assured of a vote. In my opinion, the new county milk committee will be an improvement over our previous set-up. Our producers were divided before by different markets, and different districts. Communication between groups was not the best. In addition, with two different groups involved in the marketing end, there was always some confusion in the minds of ordinary producers as to each group's responsibility. A county committee of course, can't do anything basically to solve the marketing problem, but if it can contribute to better knowledge and understanding for producers, and give them a stronger voice with those who have the authority, then it will be a good step forward.

Near Deficiency In Dairy Products Claims Minister

Preliminary plans for the inauguration of Ontario's comprehensive milk plan, passed at the last session of the Legislature, have proceeded so well that the Act is likely to be proclaimed in November, 1964. Mr. Stewart, Minister of Agriculture, told the Waterloo Holstein Breeders' Association at Kitchener recently. The Minister indicated that this was at least two months earlier than had been thought possible at the conclusion of the last session of the Legislature. "It would appear likely that as soon as possible after the proclamation of the Act, that secondary milk prices of fluid shippers will be brought more in line with established manufacturing prices," said the Minister, adding that present prices would seem to be inconsistent in many cases. Mr. Stewart said that during the preparation of the legislation he had kept in close touch with the top dairy officials of his department, and with the officials of both the Ottawa and Quebec Governments. "We were assured by the Federal Minister of Agriculture that a national dairy commission would be established, to work with the provincial marketing boards or any regional agencies that might be established," said the Minister. "I may add that that was welcome news." Mr. Stewart said that it was his belief that there must be a national dairy commission to provide for a long term policy for the country as a whole. A dairy policy on a yearly basis could no longer be tolerated. Under a national policy, responsibility would be assumed for the removal of the comparatively small surplus which, in effect, established the price on the domestic market. "Whether we realize it or not, Canada is dangerously close to being a dairy products deficit nation," said the Minister. "This may seem to be an incredible situation. In 1964 we produced only 27 per cent. more dairy products than we consumed in Canada. Bearing this figure in mind, there seems little justification that the export — or world market price — for such a comparatively small amount of our production should have been allowed to determine the price for our entire manufactured production." Mr. Stewart pointed out that Western grain growers recognized the value of a national agency to strengthen their position. "Is it not true that Canadian dairy farmers followed suit with a similar agency such as a National Dairy Commission?" he asked. The Minister said there should be a unified approach to

Vandals Blamed For Closed Hunting Lands

MAPLE—Irresponsible hunters are frequently the major factor in causing the posting of "No Trespassing" signs on private property and according to C. E. Livermore, a conservation officer, "a person has only to drive down a township road to see evidence which cannot help but produce prejudice against a sportsman — traffic signs, railroad signs, public utility and no trespassing signs are bullet-scattered — some so damaged as to be almost unrecognizable." Mr. Livermore says that although this damage is the work of a minority of individuals, it is unfortunately blamed on most hunters in general. He offers the following suggestions as to what the honest sportsman can do to protect the dwindling area in which he may hunt: "He should go out of his way to seek permission to hunt on the farmer's land. Many farmers will let him hunt on posted land, providing they know who the hunter is, and that he is a responsible person. "Teach young hunters the value of good relations with the landowners and teach them to strive for a better image than that which has been presented by hunters before their time. "When a sportsman sees someone poaching or causing damage, he should go out of his way to tell the person that he is wrong, and explain why he is wrong. The irresponsible individual would be set at a psychological disadvantage. If reasoning with the offender is of no value, the sportsman should contact the enforcement agency responsible for dealing with the situation and be prepared to spend a few hours of his time in court. "A small amount of effort by each sportsman would produce worthwhile dividends of better hunting and better relations in the future." Of course, there is discipline in modern family life. How many parents do you know who would dare to disobey their children?

strengthening the position of dairy farmers in both Ontario and Quebec. "Ontario and Quebec must work more closely together — not only in the interests of national unity, but also in the interests of self-preservation as Canada's two largest dairy provinces." The Minister stated that he had been interested to note that both Liberal and Conservative party spokesmen have proposed $4.00 per cwt for manufactured milk used on the domestic market. "I endorse this announcement," said Mr. Stewart. "It is evident that the leaders of our Federal parties recognize the need of pricing at this level, and that they recognize it as a national responsibility. "I believe in a two-price system based on domestic market requirements, with the exportable surplus selling at world prices," he said. "It is the only satisfactory way to resolve the worsening financial position of Canadian industrial milk producers." Mr. Stewart said that the members of the Milk Marketing Board had been appointed after careful consideration, and that it was his hope as soon as it was practical, that the Board be elected from producers across the province. A loaded firearm in a vehicle is the cause of many shooting accidents and the reason for many convictions under The Game and Fish Act.

LIBERAL TIMES ARE GOOD TIMES

PROSPERITY IS CONTAGIOUS

Canadians today are more prosperous than ever before. Labour income has grown 9.5% a year since the Liberal government took office, and taxes have been cut by 10%. Half a million new jobs have been created by Liberal economic policies... as much in two years as all six Diefenbaker years. Record wheat export sales, arranged by the Liberal government, boost our economy and help all Canadians. Unemployment under the Liberal government is at a 9-year low (2.5%) compared to 11.2% under Diefenbaker in February 1961. Industrial production has grown at the rate of 8.3% a year since 1963, but only 3.2% a year for the six previous years. Our standard of living has greatly improved since the last election. If national production per person increases, the average man is better off. The amount of our national production per capita is rising five times as fast as it did during the Diefenbaker years... a fact that takes into account population and price changes. But prosperity does not yet extend to every Canadian. A majority Liberal government will mount a massive war on poverty and keep Canada moving ahead with increasing prosperity.

MEDICARE

"Everyone must have access to medical care whenever needed and without fear of crippling bills", John Addison maintains. A majority Liberal government in Ottawa will introduce a National Medicare Plan. Prime Minister Pearson has set a target date of July 1st, 1967. It will provide comprehensive physicians services including specialists, be universally available without means tests, be portable anywhere in Canada, and be publicly administered by the provinces. The $300 million federal share will be financed through general revenues from our expanding economy. No increase in federal taxation will be required. A Liberal government will also assure expanded health training and research facilities, and more trained medical people, through a special $500 million Health Resources Fund. The Fund will provide for construction, renovation and equipment for health training facilities.

EDUCATION

"My goal is free education for all Canadians with ability, and free education immediately for post graduate students," said John Addison recently. Educational facilities will be greatly expanded under a majority Liberal government. Federal aid for university education alone, amounting to $330 million next fiscal year, will be provided. This amount is almost equal to the total expenditures in 1964/65 by the ten provinces and the federal government combined. The Bladen Report on Higher Education also called for $1.7 billion of federal aid over the next ten years. A Liberal government will ensure this support. Agricultural education for young farmers will be expanded and federal aid will be provided by a majority Liberal government in Ottawa. Training programs for people threatened by unemployment, automation, or presently unemployed, will be enlarged and vastly improved by a Liberal government. No increase in federal taxation is required to meet these objectives. Our expanding economy can readily afford these measures. They are necessary to ensure a prosperous and secure future for all Canadians.

MAJORITY GOVERNMENT

Three elections in three years is too much. Canada needs a majority parliament that can govern for a full four-year term. A majority Liberal government will attack the important long range problems with decisiveness... Medicare, national unity, educational aid, transportation, water resources and poverty. To deal with these, Canada needs a strong central government with representation from every region... a clear majority as in all 10 provincial capitals. The smaller parties have no chance of forming a government or of becoming the Official Opposition. A vote for them is, in effect, either a vote for Diefenbaker or another unstable minority government. The balance of power in a minority House rests in the hands of a few who use it for political advantage rather than the national good. This can be dangerous at worst, crippling at best. The Liberal Party is the only party in this election which can elect a majority with representation from all parts of Canada. You owe it to your country's future to vote Liberal... vote for John Addison. Since 1962, John Addison, MP, has served York North well.

For continued progress and prosperity
