Bi-lingual Anthology For Centennial

A 600-page volume containing "the essence of Canadian literature" in the last century will be published for the centennial year, John Fisher announced Monday.

The centennial commissioner announced a $25,000 grant for the bilingual anthology. Material used will be in either of the two languages in which it was originally published — French or English.

The editors are associate parliamentary librarian Guy Sylvestre, chosen by La Société des Ecrivains Canadiens, and H. Gordon Green, a contributing editor of The Family Herald of Montreal, chosen by the Canadian Authors Association.

The project is under the joint direction of the two literary bodies, with the centennial commission's assistance.

Mr. Sylvestre is a well-known biographer, essayist and critic, while Mr. Green is described as a prolific fiction writer, biographer and magazine contributor.
