THE CHANGING CAR BUSINESS

AN EGG ISN'T ALWAYS AN EGG

A New York advertising agency ran a trade journal advertisement a little while ago in which they made the point that the difference between one agency and another was really just people. They did it by showing a picture of what looked like an ordinary, run-of-the-mill chicken egg. To a lot of people, an egg is an egg and they're all alike as peas in a pod (which, come to think of it, are actually all different too).

Well, they pointed out that one egg could look like any other but inside it could be a prairie owl or a Plymouth Rock or a Rhode Island Red or it could be sterile or ticking with life. Their egg turned out to contain a potential lady alligator!

Car buyers are making a mistake if they think that car dealerships are all alike except for what appears to be slight differences in price.

Car dealerships are very different. Some stress high volume sales and play down service. Some advertise heavily with price ads, train salesmen to be aggressive and believe that the long term repeat customer is usually, not worth the trouble.

Well, we DO stress service, we don't normally advertise heavily and we try and stress quality when we do. We train our salesmen to be aggressive, but in seeking out the best solution to the customer's needs in order to make a sale. Most of all we think that a repeat customer is worth all the trouble you can possibly go to to keep him.
