$7,500,000 Set For Reservoirs

The federal government will pay $7,500,000 towards a $20,000,000 four-year program to encourage development of small reservoirs for rural water supply in Ontario, the rural development department has announced.

In the last issue of The Tribune, the library at Claremont was included in the list of outlets at Brougham, Kinsale and Whitevale that would come under the jurisdiction of a township board system. The Tribune has been informed that this is not the case.

How Does The Depreciation Cycle Affect You?

If you are thinking of buying a used car as a second car for your family or as the main family transportation, then this is the best of all possible times to buy it.

The reason lies in the way the local car market is affected by supply and demand. When demand is lowest, it follows that prices are lowest and the stock most selective. That time is now.

Yearly depreciation is constantly chipping away at the value of all cars. Not in one big yearly drop, as many owners tend to think, but in a series of stages triggered by falling demand.

First is July with a lull after the Spring rush; next is Labor Day and the new car announcements, clogging over a style year when all cars become officially one year old; November cold and approaching Xmas reduce demand and market prices a third time.

The market then remains slow until the warm days of March when a given car may actually rise in value until the depreciation cycle resumes in July. Ahead now is a period of five months or more of little or no depreciation!

Lease and rental companies put large numbers of one-and-two-year-old cars on the market at this time of year, further increasing selection and decreasing prices.

A quality used car now from a reputable dealer could be your best buy.
