Late Alex Rutledge

NEWMARKET — Mr. Alex Rutledge passed away Feb. 1, in his 89th year. He was a resident of East Gwillimbury Township for most of his lifetime, a farmer and former thresher of the district.

Surviving are two sons John and Charles at home and one daughter, Viola (Mrs. Floyd Pegg) of Sunderland, four grandsons and one great-grandson. A sister Eliza Widdifield of Barrie and two brothers Merten of Ravenshoe and Guy of Stouffville also survive.

Mr. Rutledge was born at Holt, a son of Alexander Rutledge and Annie Bosworth and one of a family of 15.

In 1904 he married Annie Williams of Bloomington who passed away in January 1948. He was an uncle of the family of the late Richard Williams of Lincolnville and a member of Trinity United Church, Newmarket.

The service was conducted by Rev. Norman Pick from the Roadhouse and Rose Funeral Home on Feb. 3 with interment in Newmarket Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Bruce Foote, Allan Mills, John Williams, Carman Rutledge, Bruce Rutledge and Murray Rutledge.

Biography Of Missionaries

STOUFFVILLE — Mrs. Jim Richards was hostess to the W.M.S. of the Stouffville United Missionary Church Feb. 9. Mrs. Garth Good, the president, was in charge of the meeting, at which 23 ladies were present.

The devotional was presented by Mrs. Stewart Wideman and Miss Myrtle Sider and Mrs. A. Walsh led the prayer.

Mrs. Earl Honsberger presented a biography of Miss Bertha Fidler, now Mrs. Allan Hoover of Gormley, who worked among the Armenian people. Mrs. Jake Grove gave the history of Miss Rose Altic and Miss Edna Fusee, now Mrs. Elgin Brubaker, also missionaries to the Armenians. Mrs. George Byer summarized the work of the missionaries in Armenia.

More than 600 pupils of both Stouffville public schools enjoyed a skating party at the arena. Summitview had the ice on Monday afternoon and Orchard Park on Tuesday.

DEAR DORIS — I wish to make a will soon. What should I do with my belongings? I have a lot of things which I made myself, such as lovely quilts, crochet work and knitting.

Should I sell everything, then they can all enjoy the money? I wish you could give me some suggestions before too late, as I have had three strokes already. All my furniture is good. I have a nice little home.

DEAR MOTHER — Ask yourself the question: "Is there any one of my children who needs the financial help my money would give more than any other?" Perhaps among them is a young couple who are finding the going tough in raising a family.

Handworked quilts and linens are to be prized; and if there is no great need, should be passed on just as they are.

As for the furniture, perhaps a request for its sale is the best way to dispose of it. Proceeds may then be divided evenly, if this seems wise.

DEAR DORIS — My husband loves to drink. We never go to town but I sit and wait for him to come out of the beer parlor. I fly off the handle and give him a piece of my mind and then he sulks for days.

I think I could overlook some of the drinking if only he would recognize me. If he isn't sleeping on the chesterfield while in the house he's reading. He never sees anything the boys are doing and there are times when a word from him would help me. He is the most unscrupulous sort of person I know.

Ignored — It is more baffling to be ignored than to receive regular beatings!

An alcoholic (1) is reacting to his life situation in an immature way; and (2) something in his background or present situation leaves him feeling frustrated and unexpressed.

He is much older than you; he hasn't your education. I'd guess that as a child he never had encouragement to express himself and that he senses that his thoughts aren't on your plane.

Can you begin thinking of how to show him you need him? Praise and something special in the way of friendliness might still bring about the miracle you want.

Centennial Fashions

The Kinnetts Annual Valentine's Dance, which took the form of a Centennial Costume party, was a great success. The ladies went all out in their sewing efforts. Mrs. Lorne Boadway wore one of the only truly authentic dresses, which was Mr. Boadway's great aunt's wedding dress and is 95 to 100 years old. Of a beige silk taffeta, it was a two piece suit, with hand gathers and a bustle. Mrs. Lionel Begin made four of the lovely dresses to be seen, as well as her husband's blue cutaway jacket. Mrs. Murray Sinclair chose a slim skirt and puffed long sleeves, in a golden yellow material with tiny self covered buttons. Mrs. George Conroy wore one of the loveliest dresses to be seen. It was in yellow gingham, with hand gathers on the sleeves, collar and bustle, which was a cascade of yellow ruffles, applied to a detachable apron.

Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Sider, missionaries from Bikar, India, are expected home on furlough on Tuesday, Feb. 21st, to Gormley, Ont. Mrs. Sider is a native of Victoria Square.
