'Let Your Conscience Be Your Guide — Pastor

MARKHAM — "Every man must follow his own conscience," said Rev. Father J. MacNamara, S.F.M., in his address to parish members of York County at a Catholic Women's League meeting in Markham, April 27. His topic was "The New Morality." "Man must do the 'right' as he sees it. This has always been true. Man holds his own destiny, but this individual conscience, a true freedom of mind and heart, must be guided by a sense of human responsibility which may not be abdicated." "Every man has a sense of justice," continued Father MacNamara. "A knowledge of right and wrong. However, it requires a certain maturity to be able to apply the rules to individual problems."

"We must submit to authority," he said, "individual conscience and authority should fit together in harmony, but this is not always possible." Father MacNamara concluded with the admonition, "Don't live for principles, live for people."

Rev. MacNamara was introduced by the gathering by Mrs. J. J. McDermott of Stouffville.

Mr. Robert N. Thompson, former leader of the Social Credit Party, will address the centennial worship service in the Markham Arena May 31.

Hospital Extension To Cost 14 Million

NEWMARKET — York County Council has agreed to its hospital commission's recommendation of a $14 million dollar expansion program at York County Hospital, Newmarket and York Central Hospital, Richmond Hill.

Estimated cost of the expansion at York County Hospital from 257 to 404 beds is $5,308,000 and at York Central from 126 to 372 beds $8,700,000.

Capital cost grants from federal and provincial authorities will reduce the cost of the expansion to York County to a total of $4,650,000, $1,750,000 at the Newmarket building and $2,900,000 at Richmond Hill.

Considerable discussion took place on the two additions. Plans call for detailed planning preparations and working drawings to be completed this year with tenders called for in the spring of 1968, construction to take place between June, 1968 and the spring of 1971 when it is expected the additions will be complete.

Mention was made of the fact that Richmond Hill lacks sewage facilities to serve the new addition and that the OWRC is expected to have produced a plan for services to the area by the time the buildings are completed.

Pickering Museum Official Opening, May 13th

BROUGHAM — Pickering Township Museum at Brougham, will open for the season on Saturday, May 13.

More interest than usual is evident in the museum in Centennial year. Bookings for school-class visits are coming in rapidly, both from Pickering and outside the township. It is anticipated that over 2,000 children will examine the exhibits of pioneer life in Ontario during the months of May and June.

An exception was made to the custom of entertaining visitors after the mid-May opening last week to accommodate about 90 children and their teachers from Peterboro. Comments were made about the museum and the jolly time they had.

There has been a delay in moving buildings to the museum grounds to form a proposed small pioneer village. Deep snow in the early part of the year and a wet spring prevented the project. As soon as the land is sufficiently dry Mr. Ralph Harrison, the mover, will have the buildings on the road and into the grounds.

The buildings include 2 one-hundred-year-old houses, a blacksmith shop, a hotel and a harness shop. Barns will be demolished and re-constructed on the grounds, and a church shed will adjoin the old Bible Christian Church, already moved to the site.

Restoration of the church will begin immediately, then the ambitious project of restoring and furnishing the other buildings will take place. It is expected that the whole project will be completed by October this year.

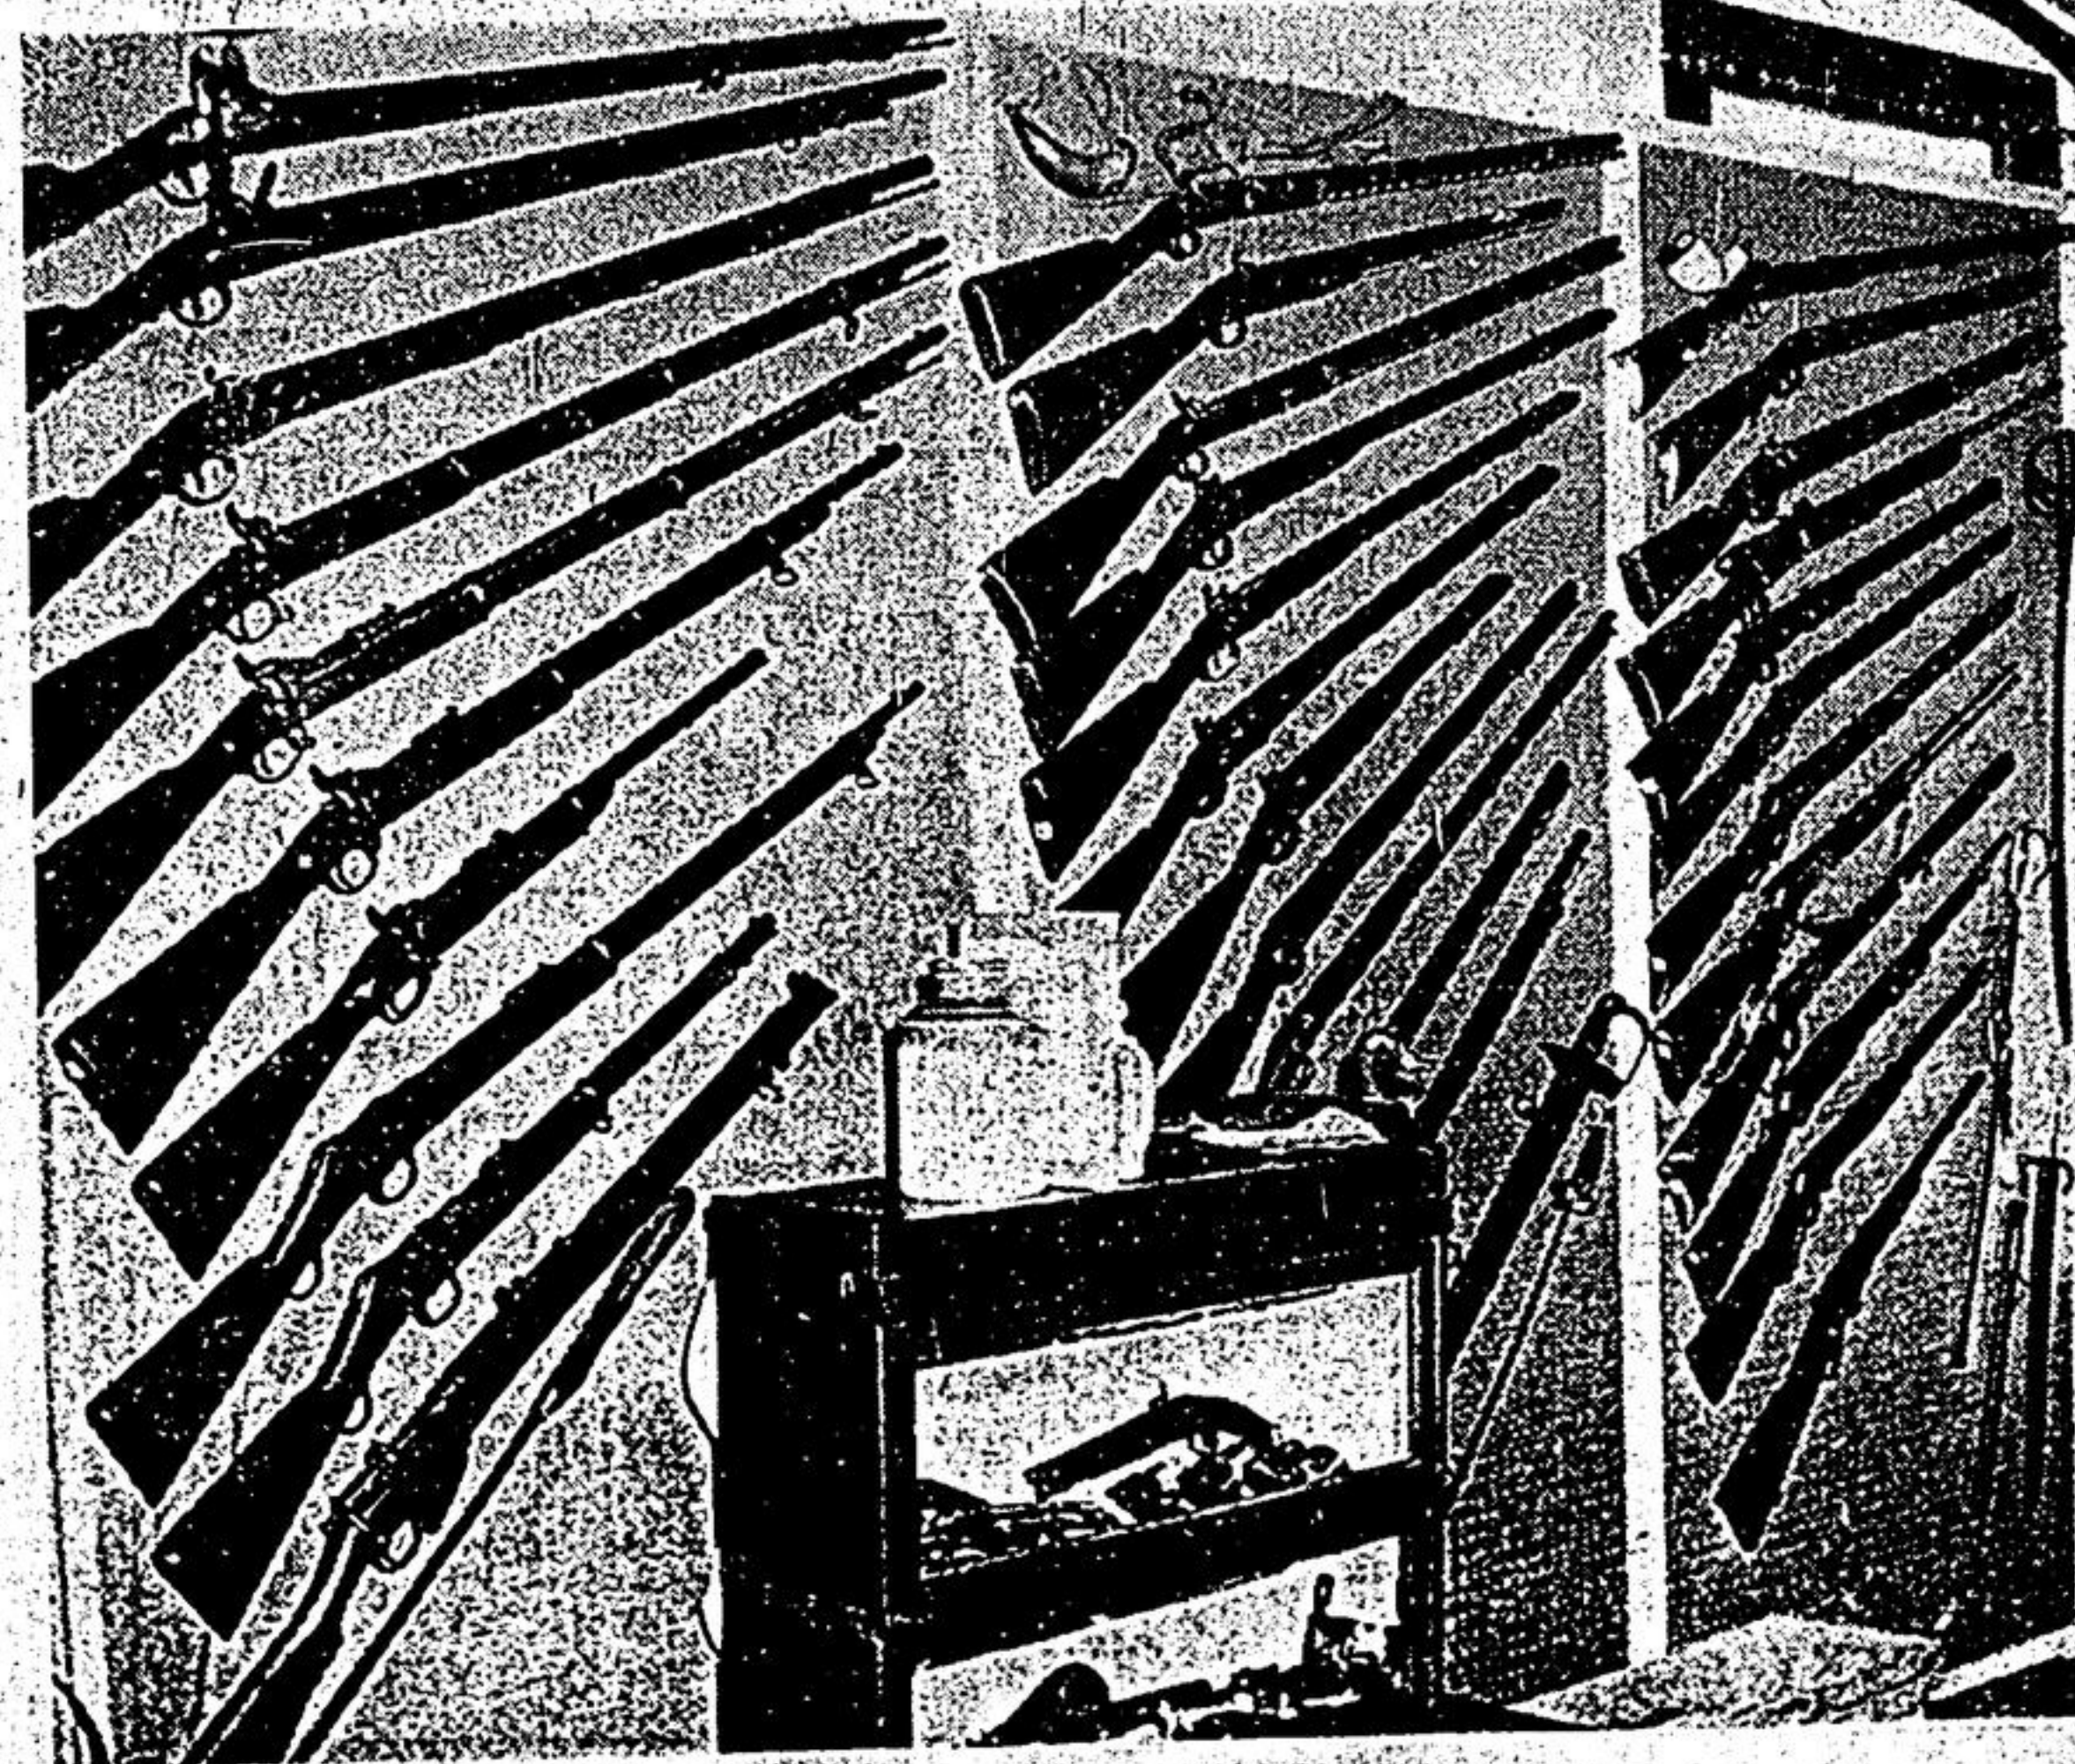

Personnel on the recently appointed Museum Assistance Committee will direct the development of the village. They include Dr. and Mrs. W. A. McKay, William Fraser, Mrs. Kenneth Fallis, Mrs. Ruth Hay, Donald Gibson, Ian Bell, Dr. N. F. Tomlinson, William Brown, John Faulkner, Harry Spang, Milton Mowbray, Hardy Craig and Kenneth Cooper.

The museum board, comprising Robert Miller, Chairman, Milton Parkin, Mrs. Deirdre Earle, Harry Cook, J. H. Fox, Reeve C. W. Laycox and Deputy Reeve, Mrs. Jean McPherson are hoping to welcome many friends, both new and old, on opening day.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bruins and daughter of Bradford were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Pilkey.

New Ontario Securities Act now law

Government action places new responsibilities. This advertisement tells you what they are.

Important changes in the Securities Act, 1966, and in the Corporations Act became law on May 1st, 1967. The new legislation will have far-reaching effects. It sets standards which everyone in the investment business must follow. It says exactly how certain vital procedures should be carried out. It demands a full range of information from companies offering shares to the public, and makes that information fully available to every interested citizen.

Here are five ways in which the Securities Act will help the people of Ontario.

Financial Disclosure The new Act requires companies to make a full report of their financial situation to the Ontario Securities Commission every year. These reports will be made available to the public.

Insider Trading Insiders of companies (senior officials and major shareholders) must now keep the Commission informed of their holdings in their companies, and must report changes as they take place. This information will be made available for public use.

Take-over bids New regulations govern the procedure to be followed when one company tries to obtain control of another by share purchase. They include a minimum period for which the offer is to remain open, and a 7-day period during which the shareholder approached may change his mind. Any investor involved in a take-over bid will now be kept fully informed.

Proxies Under the new Act, detailed information must be given whenever a company asks for a proxy vote, to be used on the shareholder's behalf. The shareholder must be told exactly who is to use his vote, and what his interest is. The company is limited in the way the vote can be used. The result will be to give the absent shareholder a more effective voice at company meetings.

The prospectus The way in which a company can describe new investments is controlled by the Act. One important change is that the prospectus must always be written in simple, clear, non-technical language. Another requires the prospectus to be published in two stages, with a pause of at least ten days between the two. The preliminary prospectus is for information only; trading cannot begin until the final prospectus is published. The effect will be to give dealers and investors time to think.

Further information This advertisement gives only a brief outline of some of the more important changes in the Securities Act 1966, and the Corporations Act. Nothing in the Act relieves the investor of the responsibility of making sound decisions based on good advice. Your lawyer, broker, or other qualified investment adviser will be able to give you full information; or copies of the Act can be obtained from the Ontario Securities Commission, 123 Edward Street, Toronto 2, and from the Queen's Printer, 26 Breadalbane Street, Toronto 5.
