

Presbyterian Church Antique Show Attracts Hundreds

Conduct Wedding - 1867 Style

MARKHAM—When John Brown and Mary Smith were wed back in 1867, it was a solemn and reverential occasion.

Such a scene was reenacted at the fourth annual Antique Exhibition and Sale, sponsored by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and held in the Markham Arena. The detailed description of the ceremony was provided by the commentator, Mrs. Norman Duff.

The part of the blushing bride was portrayed by Liz Hamill. The handsome groom was Douglas Cromey. Other participants included Kathy Monteith, the bridesmaid; Neil Holden, the best man; Ann Cromey, mother of the bride; Greg Smith, father of the bride; Pat Adair, mother of the groom and (Rev.) Brooke Wheelon, the minister. Each member of the bridal party was suitably dressed in keeping with the occasion. At the conclusion, the couple departed by horse and buggy for an unannounced honeymoon trip into the next County.

This portion of the program was expertly handled as was the entire show. It attracted hundreds of viewers.

During the afternoons of both Friday and Saturday

a fashion show of centennial-styled gowns were modelled by Irene Armstrong, Mary Bretherton, Ann Smith, Winnie Thomas, Rosalind Nimmo, Barbara Edwards, Laura-Mae Little and Ruth Ingram. Portraying children's fashions of the same era were Colleen Egan, Scott Rutledge, Ann and Nancy Holden, Kelly Petch, Sean McGill, Barbara Armstrong, Leslie Edwards, Sherry Patterson, Barry and Trevor Graham. Their descriptions were also provided by Mrs. Duff. Antique dealers had a glittering display of articles on hand and each expressed satisfaction with sales. Many have already reserved space for next year.

Kurshal Davie Karn Is September Bride

SUTTON — St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at Sutton, was decorated with baskets of mixed flowers for the wedding of Kurshal Davie Karn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Karn of Udora and Donald Floyd Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Chapman, Jackson Point, on Saturday September 2, 1967, at 3 p.m. Rev. W. I. McElwain officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Keith Thompson, the bride looked lovely in a floor-length white silk organza over peat de soie, with a round neckline, long lily point sleeves and a train which fell from a bow at the back of the neckline. Her four tiered net veil fell from a lace and pearl flowered headpiece. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white carnations and lily of the valley.

Her maid of honor, Evelyn Thompson of Claremont wore a floor length dress with a bodice of orange lace and a bow at the empire waist. Her skirt was yellow silk organza over orange satin, and her crown of seed pearls was in matching orange.

The bridesmaids, Henrietta Beelan of Pickering and Lorraine Hope of Uxbridge wore gowns similar to the maid of honor, but were yellow over turquoise, with matching head pieces. They carried yellow and white carnations and lily of the valley. They also wore crystal necklaces with matching earrings, the gift from the bride. David Kydd of Sutton was the best man. Mrs. York of Sutton was the organist. Jim Chapman of Jackson Point, brother of the groom and Wolfgang Ruckwart of Pine Grove were the ushers.

For the reception, which was held in the church parlors, the bride's mother chose a fine white and black, 2-piece suit of arnel, beige accessories and a pink rose corsage. The groom's mother wore a brown-brocaded dress with beige accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

For their honeymoon to Northern Ont., the bride chose a lime green straight cut dress with a full lace over dress, black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The happy couple are making their home in Jackson Point.

Guests were present at the wedding from Toronto, Scarborough, Jackson Point, Sutton, Sudbury, Streetsville, Uxbridge, New Jersey and Markham.
