(Continued from front page) started the way it did. Any councillor has the right to investigate such legislation, but it should be done ahead of time and the findings then presented in a complete report. We have had an example of what can happen if it is not done this way."

"It should have been discussed in committee first," agreed deputy-reeve Bill Parsons, "that's the unfortunate thing of the whole episode."

"I am a member of that committee," countered councillor Lewis.

"Yes, but you're not the chairman," replied Mr. Parsons. "The chairman (councillor Lonergan) had attended numerous meetings and had an understanding of what the result would be."

shooters who blast the in-When a misguided moose sulators from Hydro poles mows down a Hydro pole and towers. the resulting power stoppage is unavoidable. And

Every year many thousands of dollars are spent replacing insulators shattered by gunfire. The problem is compounded by the delayed action of much of the damage. Power lines may break long after the marksman has had his fun.

Shooting insulators from lines is a serious offence. The Criminal Code of Canada provides heavy fines and imprisonment for persons found guilty of this kind of vandalism.
