STOUFFVILLE - Between the hours of 1 and 6 a.m., the majority of Stouffville residents are sound asleep.

But not all For some, the night time is a time to take advantage of others. As Metro buildup pushes steadily into the oncerural suburbs, the crime count continues to climb. This is the price of progress.

The law-breaker, that includes everyone from the petty thief to the drunk driver, lives in constant fear of being caught. Here in Stouffville that force on the side of crime prevention comprises four men, Police Chief Orland Keating and Constables David Hadden, Alvin Thompson and Tom Wauchope.

ROUTINE CHECKS

Few people realize the duties that an officer performs from the time he begins the 'night watch' at 8 p.m. to the breaking of the dawn the following morning. Most people are not really too concerned. They do like to know, however, that should their person or property be harmed, the police are as close as the dialing of 640-

'Admittedly, much of their work during the night hours is routine, like checking 126 business places of which more than 100 have been found open or insecure so far this year; patrolling the 13 miles of town streets; inspecting homes of people on vacation; checking strange cars passing through; serving summonses; answering fire alarms or assisting other departments at scenes of serious accidents. The extent of the department's operation is indicated by over 30,000 miles clocked on the town cruiser annually. TAKES 314 HOURS

A ... complete ! security check takes 31/2 hours. Should an officer find a door or window or a store on service station open, he immediately checks for signs of forcible entry. If nothing irregular is found. the owner or proprietor is notified. A list of all phone numbers is maintained for this purpose.

Horses For Hire

By HATTIE FINN On a recent visit to Black Creek Pioneer Village I stopped at the Daniel Stong grain barn where an attendant was showing the oldtime farm implements to a group of grade 6 boys. As he explained the purpose of the various pieces of agricultural equipment and how they been operated, the youngsters seemed surprised to learn that the ploughs and threshing machines had been hauled by horses. Obviously, these lads had not come from a rural area and were not familiar with the history of farm life in Ontario before the arrival of mechanized farm implements.
