kinds, hanging lamp, Limoges china (35 piece set), moustache cup, blue milk glass, copper tea pot, settees, vacuum cleaners, electrical appliances, all kinds of dishes, many antiques. This will be a large sale, and you never know what might be for sale. Plan to attend. Come early, buy articles in Bill 155 amending the Municipal Act. The bill includes a clause which will make it easier, not more difficult for Metro Toronto to dump garbage outside its own boundaries. One upsetting aspect is that the bill does not contain any guidelines for such dumping rights. Surely Metro Toronto and any other large municipality should have to prove that it has no other means of coping with the problem of garbage disposal within its own boundaries. The second aspect that dismays me is that it is not then the responsibility of Queen's Park to decide where the garbage should be disposed of. All methods and sites for garbage disposal should be considered, not just those beyond the boundaries and responsibilities of the large cities.
It would now appear that we face months of controversy as Vaughan and outlying municipalities endeavour to protect their citizens and beautiful countryside.

Don Deacon reports

I was dismayed last week to watch the government rush through Bill 155 amending the Municipal Act. The bill includes a clause which will make it easier, not more difficult for Metro Toronto to dump garbage outside its own boundaries. One upsetting aspect is that the bill does not contain any guidelines for such dumping rights. Surely Metro Toronto and any other large municipality should have to prove that it has no other means of coping with the problem of garbage disposal within its own boundaries. The second aspect that dismays me is that it is not then the responsibility of Queen's Park to decide where the garbage should be disposed of. All methods and sites for garbage disposal should be considered, not just those beyond the boundaries and responsibilities of the large cities.
It would now appear that we face months of controversy as Vaughan and outlying municipalities endeavour to protect their citizens and beautiful countryside.
