As I See It

By A. B. BONNER
 Markham Village Fire Brigade has a complement of 17 men with a total of 240 years of service. About one-third of them have an average of some five years service which means that out of the remainder there is an accumulation of 174 years of service and experience in fighting fires. With these facts and many others in front of him, I wonder why the junior member of Council has kicked up so much dust about hiring a fire chief. There is little doubt the present members of the brigade are much more familiar with the town and its buildings than anyone outside would be. There is also little doubt that there has to be sufficient experience within the brigade to handle the job. When the previous chief was hired he was considered acceptable without any written or oral tests because he was an experienced man. When he resigned, it was hinted he was an amateur at the business because it was now necessary to hire a "Professional" in his place.

There are some facts of life the members of Council, particularly the Fire Committee Chairman, should be made aware of. First of all, there are no amateur firemen. All firemen are professional, some work at it full time. Others, as with Markham Village, volunteer. It doesn't matter in any case because when fire occurs they all wear the same pair of shoes, those of the professional. To say a professional will be hired as fire chief is merely another way of saying the job that has been done up to now is unsatisfactory. And yet the same people mouth words of commendation. It boils down to a lot of hogwash either way. If improvement is necessary, that's one thing but if it isn't, there is no need to look beyond the Village for a replacement for the chief.

Also, for the Fire Chairman's information, the men on the Fire Brigade are volunteers. No one asked them to act as firemen, no one told them. Neither did they sign any agreement with the Village that they now have to live up to. They took on the job to protect the property interests of the Village, from fire and to fight fire when it occurred. They did not have to do this then, they do not have to now. Saying they have a duty to the Village is nonsense. They have already fulfilled their duty, and fortunately and in spite of the Fire Chairman, are still doing so. They can, however, withdraw their services any time they desire; and when they are slapped in the face with remarks that label them as amateurs and when they see ads in out-of-town papers, for replacements, if replacements are available here, they just might have good reason to withdraw their volunteer services.

There has been a volunteer brigade in Markham Village since 1856 and with only one exception it has functioned well over the years. In the last fifteen years it has become a close-knit organization, well prepared to handle its duties. It has, however, only taken the present Council a little more than half its term to reduce a smooth working organization to a state of almost complete demoralization. This has been accomplished simply by Council's operating in an undiplomatic and amateurish manner in its attempts to replace a fire chief.

A man who uses a pick and shovel is a professional. He doesn't need to carry a certificate in his pocket to prove it because it is self-evident in his work. This same thing is true of volunteer firemen. If Markham Village is bound and bent on using "Professionals" in its operation, the best place to start would be at the top. Perhaps if the present members of Council were to stick to their own professional vocations, Markham Village would elect professional municipal councillors in their place. At least that way it might not take 328 meetings a year to get something done.

Town tag days

A 'courtesy' request

STOUFFVILLE—Formal requests from organizations requesting permission to conduct tag days in Stouffville, have been questioned by councillor Mrs. Ethel Mole. At a meeting, Thursday, she challenged council's right to either approve or disapprove the collection of money from sidewalk shoppers. She queried the legality of the issue following the receipt of a request from the Ontario Humane Society to hold a tag day here, Sept. 27 and 28. "What is council's legal right?" she asked. "I would like it clarified, both for this and other tag days. What is the use of our voicing objection if we can't enforce our own ruling?" Although she declined to say it, her obvious concern dated back to March of this year when Stouffville council rejected an application for permission to canvass the village in aid of civilians in Vietnam. The campaign across the County raised over $700. Reeve Ken Laushway said that, to his knowledge, council had no legal right to refuse the collection of funds in this manner. He said that such requests should be regarded as a matter of courtesy on the part of the organization involved.
