UXBRIDGE — The Uxbridge Horticultural Society will present its annual flower show in the Anglican Church Hall, Toronto Street, Saturday, Aug. 29. The public is invited to view the exhibits from 2 to 4:30 p.m.
All entries must be submitted between the hours of 8 and 10 a.m. Show schedules are available from Mrs. Margaret Barton.
Junior gardeners are especially welcome and asked to bring their plants plus any special projects completed during the season.
In addition to floral displays, there will be exhibits of pottery, small antiques, needlework and handicrafts.

Family living and you (Your family life centre)

We often think of a family in the group sense, i.e. four, five or more persons living together, related through marriage and birth, with a commonality of interests and goals. And, from one point of view, this is more or less an accurate description of a family unit. But there is another perspective of each and every family which is equally valid and just as accurate. Here at the Family Life Centre, it is this second perspective of the family which we use most often and which I will try to explain here.

A family unit is also a collection of individuals, each of whom are very unique and different from anyone else in the family. Each family member differs from the others in a variety of ways - physically, emotionally, scholastically, socially, etc. Even twins or triplets have their own unique qualities - as their mothers will tell you. These differences provide the truly rich panorama of skills and interests which can add so much to any family - provided these differences are seen as worthwhile and accorded the respect and acceptance they should receive. Yet this is where many family problems begin; the differences are frequently seen as a threat to the family and to the traditional way in which the family has come to live and function. But why are differences so often seen as threatening? Why are they resisted so strenuously?

As an example, let's look at a fairly common family problem: the son who "doesn't try hard enough at school". Generally, the parents approach this boy with one basic message - that to fail in school is to fail in life. The son responds by appearing to not take the matter seriously at all. Upon inquiry, he may explain flunking a year as "needing some more time" to understand his work. The parents come to the Centre upset and confused by this difference in attitude on the part of their son. "Why can't he see it our way? Their concern is genuine, their intentions honorable - and their exasperation, often monumental.

Yet after a few family visits to the Centre, we come to see the boy in several new dimensions. He is an expert ice skater, and a top player on a local hockey team. He is also very good on the drums, and plays regularly with the high school band and a local rock group. He talks enthusiastically about a few of his compositions, and even has hopes of making a recording soon with a small company in Toronto. It becomes apparent, that he has several talents and skills, but they are different from what the parents see as most important, i.e. education. The goal then, is to help the parents refrain from any tendency to see the situation as being an "all or none" proposition; that their son is not lost or a failure because music is most important to him. Likewise, the son can be helped to appreciate that it was through school that he first learned the drums and experienced the enjoyment of playing with others. In other words, the qualities which make us different are the same qualities which enrich the potentiality of each family.

It is not necessary, nor is it practical, to feel that basic differences must be rejected - and only similarities accepted. And this is as valid a concept for our youth, as it is for adults - as both of these age groups often slip into this unfortunate pattern with those who are different. So we use the family visits at the Centre as opportunities to practice a more accepting attitude - which really is only extending faith and trust in the worth and abilities of those who are our family!

Lovely wedding — pretty bride

Colorful program planned

STOUFFVILLE — The program to be featured at the Stouffville Trade Fair, Sept. 10, 11 and 12, should be of interest to all age categories, the children, young people and adults.

The format follows: Thursday, Sept. 10 - Trumpet music by 'The Driftwoods', Paul's Fashion Show, Organ Music. Friday, Sept. 11 - 'Merry Men of Markham' barbershop group, Paul's Fashion Show, Organ Music. Saturday, Sept. 12 - Children's Pet Contest with entertainment by Dave Stewart, Paul's Fashion Show, Organ Music.

Chairman Art Dixon is interested in including local amateur talent on the program. Persons interested in taking part are asked to contact him as soon as possible.

Mr. Dixon also reports there is still room for local amateur artists to submit their displays in addition to wood carving, sculpturing or any form of hobby craftsmanship. Persons may also sell their wares if they so desire. Accommodation will be provided without charge. Leave your name with any Legion member or at The Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward William Venn, married June 27, 1970 in the Goodwood United Church. Markham Photo Centre.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bunker, Goodwood, and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Venn of Weyburn, Saskatchewan. Baskets of pink, yellow and white mums and two candelabra graced the altar for the four o'clock ceremony performed by Rev. Francis Cook, a former minister. Mr. Walter Taylor was the organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father looked lovely in a street-length white pagoda crepe dress with french imported lace, designed by herself and made by couturiere Jean Drury. She wore a large brimmed ivory organza hat, and carried a white bible with three orchids and maiden hair fern and long pink streamers.

Mrs. Lionel Gleason was matron of honor for her sister, looking attractive in a two-toned pink crocheted dress and picture hat, with white accessories. She carried an arrangement of white mums and pink carnations.

Mr. Robert Donald of Toronto was the groomsmen. Ushering were Mr. Harold Bunker and Mr. Douglas Venn, brothers of the bride and groom.

A garden reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received the guests in a lilac crepe dress with white accessories and corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. The groom's mother assisted wearing a light blue dress and coat ensemble with white accessories and corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Guests of honor were, Mrs. Martha Bartholomew, R.R. 2, Stouffville, wearing a two piece pale blue lace dress and Mrs. Margaret Bunker, R.R. 3, Stouffville, in a beige flowered dress. Both wore corsages of white fugi mums and are grandmothers of the bride. For travelling to points north, the bride donned a navy blue treveria pant suit with a silk jersey blouse and orchid corsage. The happy couple are residing at 24 Leith Hill Road, Willowdale.

How much home are you missing through outdated wiring?

When this house was built it was hard to imagine all the wonderful ways in which electricity would be serving us today. That's why the wiring in so many older homes just isn't adequate for today's needs.

So, if you're planning to modernize your home, think first of the wiring. Have a qualified electrical contractor check it. You'll be surprised at how easily and inexpensively it can be updated. Or just ask your Hydro.

There are many signs: Fuses blowing. Lights dimming. Appliances performing sluggishly. Cluttered extension cords. Not enough outlets.

The Name of the Game is Electrical Living.
