STOUFFVILLE - A new municipality, with new candidates and new proposals. Monday. Sept. 21 was thought to be a Nomination Night different from former years.

'clothed', rests with the Board, chairman Keith Kennedy said. He termed the issue 'a tempest in a teacup'. Mr. Kennedy explained that eventually, it was hoped to include a daycare nursery on the site and the piece of sculpture was meant 'to bridge the generation gap' by portraying an elderly man with his grandson. Its maker is Gerd Unterman of Hagerman.

Mr. Kennedy admitted that up to the time of the controversy, all members of the Board had not viewed the work. He said he did not want anyone to be offended by it since the Home relies on the general public for financial sup-

MARKHAM TWP. - Judge W.A. Charles has ordered a Cedar Grove man to undergo a psychiatric examination following conviction on a charge of possessing a weapon dangerous to the public peace.

Kenneth Howard Dimma, 30, pleaded guilty. A summary of evidence revealed that Dimma went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Andrus, 19th Avenue, at 11 p.m., July 22. He was carrying a 22-calibre carbine, and was looking for his 16 year old girlfriend. He pounded on the door and was admitted when he pointed the weapon at 17 year old Bill Andrus, inside.

In the home, he fired a shot into the ceiling, it was further revealed, and ordered Bill Andrus, the girl, who was boarding at the home, and a male boarder against the wall. He fired once more into the ceiling and then pointed the gun at his own chin, threatening suicide.

The commotion awakened Mr. and Mrs. Andrus, and when they approached, he pulled the girl into the dining room, saying that if Mr.

Andrus did not call the police, he would leave. Trying unsuccessfully to take the girl with him, he escaped through the front door and ran down the road to where his truck was parked.

Dimma was arrested when his vehicle ran into a pole at the intersection of conc. 10 and Hwy. 7.

Estimated cost - $400,000 under Main Street, one building on each side must be removed, the reeve went on, in addition to a storage structure on Market Street. One large culvert will be installed under Main and two bridges, one on Market and another on Sommerville, will be replaced. Reeve Laushway said that only two trees would be cut in the park with a culvert-type bridge at Burkholder Street. There the road will be lowered so water, during peak flood periods, will flow over the pavement. Several sections of the stream will be straightened. It will also be deepened, south of the disposal plant to the village limits.

Reeve Laushway said no start on this phase of construction would begin until residential development to the north was assured. "It could be this fall, next spring or two years from now," he concluded.

Engineering facts, offered in the Kilborn Report, will be finalized by Nov. 15, 1970.
