Late Margery Mertens

Loved her garden

STOUFFVILLE — The immaculate home and garden that belonged to Margery Mertens, Duchess Street, Stouffville, will never seem the same. For Margery, that was her 'life', her home and her garden. And she gave them her greatest care and attention.

Margery Mertens passed away, Aug. 14, in York County Hospital, Newmarket, after several months of declining health. She was admitted there earlier this summer and never returned to the place she loved so much.

Margery Mertens was of strong pioneer stock and often spoke with pride of her ancestral background. She grew up as a girl just west of the old village, the daughter of Joseph and Emmaline Mertens. The property known as Maple Farm, was settled by the Mertens family about 1834 and history records that a meeting to establish Stouffville's first Christian Church, was held at the Mertens' residence.

Aside from the two years she lived in North Markham, Margery Mertens retained a close connection with Stouffville, moving to town with her father about 25 years ago.

The Horticultural Society was one of her main interests and she attended meetings regularly. She served as secretary of the organization in Stouffville, thirty five years. Her floral entries were consistent winners at local shows.

She was skilled at making quilts and rugs that found ready sale to persons who recognized their quality. She was also an excellent clothesmaker.

For quite a number of years, Margery was a member of The Tribune staff, working on the north side of Main Street and later at the present office site. She handled the 'local and personal' section of the newspaper, a weekly chore she enjoyed. In addition to this, she would always call the paper's Editor during night-time hours, when the fire siren sounded, a service she performed up to the time she was admitted to hospital.

She was a member of the Stouffville Missionary Church.

Surviving are four nieces and nephews, Ivan Goudie, Stouffville; Eleanor (Mrs Mervin Bunker) Altona; Helen (Mrs Donald Davis) Georgetown; and Donald Goudie, St. John, New Brunswick. An only sister, Ina (Mrs Fletcher Goudie) predeceased her eight years ago.

Rev. Eldon Boettger conducted the service from the O'Neill Funeral Home, Stouffville, Friday afternoon, with interment, Stouffville cemetery. The pall bearers were: James Goudie, Gordon Brown, Carl Reesor, Earl Hoover, Don Doner and Jim Thomas.

Book exchange

YORK CTY — The Grade 13 book exchange for York County schools, is now in operation at Bayview Secondary School, daily from Tuesday to Saturday until
