

No addition at Summitview

STOUFFVILLE — The Province and not the York County Board of Education, will decide on when a new building is required to replace the present Summitview Public School on Main Street East. This is the opinion of John McMurray, trustee representative for Whitchurch-Stouffville.

In an interview with The Tribune, Mr. McMurray said no structural addition was planned for Summitview, despite residential build-up already underway in an area to the north. He suggested too, that he doubted more rooms would ever be added there. "Summitview will serve as a stop-gap until a new school is needed," he said. He observed that a donation of park land to the south, approved in a subdivision agreement, would provide an extension to the present playground. He pointed out that wiring and heating services at Summitview had been completely overhauled. While discounting plans for an addition, he said several portables could be used and would be moved in when required. Question: Do you anticipate any accommodation problems at schools in the Whitchurch-Stouffville area this September?

Answer: No, I do not anticipate any problems in this regard. The building program at Ballantrae is progressing well and I fully expect the new addition to be ready by Sept. 4. The Kindergarten department should be completed by Sept. 15 and the remainder finished by Oct. 15. I'm very pleased with the whole thing.

Question: Stouffville's Grade 7

students will remain in Orchard Park and Summitview Schools in the coming year. Is their withdrawal from the High School a proper move? Answer: Many parents I have talked to favored keeping their children in public school a little longer. And I tend to agree. Boys and girls grow up fast enough, so why push them? An extra year helps them get their feet on the ground. In one or two years, the Grade 8's will be withdrawn from the high school also. Of course, the Grade 7's this year will not have the benefit of Shop and Home Economics, but this can't be helped. I attempted to arrange a shift system whereby they might continue these periods, but it couldn't be worked out.

Question: Do you favor the open-concept type of system as practiced in many public schools in York? Answer: The Board is committed to a semi-open concept plan. There are some children who do exceptionally well in the 'open' system, while others need a more structured environment. I feel there should be a balance of the two. However, the open plan should not be condemned without a fair trial. In my opinion, if the teaching staff has the interest of each child at heart, they can make either system work, whether they're teaching in a school or a bar.

Question: Do you feel new staff educational offices should be built in York County? Answer: I voted against the proposal last January. I wanted to know more about it. Since then, I have looked over the present building and I now feel better accommodation is needed. It doesn't need to be any push affair; it should be functional. The Town of Aurora owns the present quarters and have given notice they want it back.

Export controls A slap in the face for farmers

"The Federal government was wrong to succumb to demands by opposition members and the media for controls on exports of beef and pork," says Bruce Taylor, executive member, Ontario Federation of Agriculture. Taylor is a livestock producer in Enniskillen, Ontario. "Controlling the export of beef and pork will put chaos into the market place," protests Taylor. "It is regrettable that the Federal government yielded to the artificial pressures of the opposition and the media."

long time in coming. "In the meantime, the border is closed, and packers are jumping at the chance to slice a few dollars off the price to the farmer." He warned, "The result of interfering in the market place is a slap in the face to farmers. It does not take many blunders like this to destroy the confidence of farmers in the future, and could ultimately reduce the supply of meat on the market. This is no idle threat today, when meat supplies are already tight."

Last week, the government cut off all exports of live cattle and hogs, fresh, chilled, and frozen pork and beef. A permit system is promised so existing orders can be filled. Taylor claims the permit system could be a "Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau admits that the rail strike is increasing the cost of food. He would be doing something constructive if he brought the strike to an immediate end so that food can be distributed across the nation. Curtailing exports merely adds more disruption to an already chaotic marketing system."
