Students search out town's history in stone

On Nov. 22, a busload of Grade 3 pupils from Orchard Park School, visited the Stouffville cemetery, to record some of the town's history 'in stone', and later inspected the municipal reservoirs, west of Conc. 9. Here, Cindy Kennedy, Main Street West, takes a picture of the Thomas Williamson monument. — Jim Thomas

MY FAIR
There used to be something known as the "beauty parlor look". Over-reared, over-sprayed, stiff and artificial. And women I went to beauty parlors for that beauty parlor look. So they should look like they had their hair done. And everyone came out looking the same.

"SEBASTIAN"
A hairdresser would learn a certain style or technique and do the same for everybody. As one woman complained about an old-fashioned hairstylist, "he didn't even look at me."

If the hairdo of the moment happened to suit you, you were very fortunate. But what if it didn't?

Things are different now

Luckily the beauty industry has kept up with the times. You just don't see many hairdos these days with that "let's-had-it-done" look. But does that mean that women don't have their hair done anymore? Not at all. It just means that hairdressers are becoming more subtle about their art.

And they're paying less attention to fashion and more attention to you. They put a great deal of effort into studying your face, hair type and bone structure. Some even go so far as to view their patrons standing — to see the hairstyle in full perspective.

The natural look

I love to walk down the street and see all those lovely heads of natural-looking hair — hair that frames the face perfectly, effortlessly.

If I didn't know better, I'd think they were born that way. But being a professional, I know that the natural look is one of the most difficult things to achieve — you want it to look right!

A good hairdresser is someone who can make your hair do what looks best, and make it seem natural.

And that takes some doing!

First the hair itself is considered for condition and texture. Does it need deep moisturizing? Or body building? Much of what people found unattractive in those old-fashioned hairdos was the generally poor condition of the hair itself.

Then there's the bend of the hair. Is the hair too curly for the bone structure? Too straight? Does the color suit the skin tones?

And above all, the hair must be cut. Cut to fall right. Cut to flatter. And cut to look easy and natural.

FROM UNDER THE DRYER: "She never makes the same mistake twice. It's three times or more."

Voice of Bethel

Joy is Christian 'right'

DeForest Crosley, radio provided welcome communication in our home. Although the reception in the Northern Ontario town of Cobalt depended on the weather, it made me think of many exasperating times when the static was about all we received.

Sport and entertainment have become two of the better paying businesses of our day. Hockey fans, football fans, soccer fans are quite the accepted expressions. I understand "fan" is a short form for fanatic. We think it not strange that thousands should come to their feet if a goal is scored or a touchdown made. Cheers from 10,000 throats at a game is a foregone conclusion.

However, should someone show more than mild enthusiasm for the cause of Jesus Christ, he is quickly branded a "religious fanatic". Somewhere we have gotten the idea that the sadder we look, the more quietly we sing, the more somber our worship, the better we please God. What a misrepresentation of the Christian religion. The religion of Jesus Christ is essentially one of abundant and overflowing joy.

A way with sympathetic expressions for the person who becomes a follower of Jesus Christ.
