Special report from the Man Estate

By Howard Minaker
 A special communique has reached us from the Man Estate. Our correspondent, Will Discern, sends this report.
 After a long climb, I, at last, arrived on the plateau known for many centuries, as "Lower Than Angels". What a thrilling experience to enter this beautiful property. On the outer gate, written in very large letters, were the words, "Dominion".
 After a few words of greeting, I was ushered into the main hall of the mansion, where others were also gathering. As had been expected, the consulting physicians prepared to give a report on the health of Mr. Inner Man. However, all eyes were fastened on Mr. Outer Man as he had to be helped to a chair by Dr. Man-of-the-World and Dr. Do-Your-Thing. His personal secretary, "Lust - of - the - flesh," followed with several items to make him comfortable. In a few moments, Dr. Inspiration entered, followed by Drs. New Birth and Repentance. They sat in the three seats provided for them in the centre of the room. I was sitting Near Mr. Outer Man and was shocked to see the wrinkles on his face, his hair turned gray and his pale countenance. Dr. Inspiration arose and made this statement: "I must inform you that Mr. Outer Man is very ill and faces certain death. At this point, Outer Man fainted. Over the remonstrance of Drs. Man-of-the-world and Do-Your-Thing, he ordered an injection. Nurse Conscience was ordered to give him a shot of "Hope", after which Mr. Outer Man revived.

Horticultural Society Those early years

STOUFFVILLE—In April of this year, the Stouffville Horticultural Society will celebrate its 50th Anniversary. To acquaint residents with the history of this community organization, The Tribune is pleased to publish the following information in separate installments, covering the period from 1924 to 1974. The initial item includes the first, second and third years, (1924-26) as follows.

Fifty years ago, several local citizens expressed concern over the condition of Stouffville streets and other areas in the village and decided to do something about it.

On April 11, 1924, the Horticultural Society was organized at the home of Dr. F. A. Dales. Dr. Dales was elected the President. Other members of the executive included: 1st vice-president, Mr. Thomas Klinck; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. S. S. Ball; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Paul Bowdley; directors, Mrs. Nathan Forsyth, Mrs. Harvey Lawson, Mrs. Fred Silvester, Mr. F. C. Rowbotham, Mr. J. R. Hodgins, Mr. Archie Stouffer, Mrs. A. V. Nolan, Mr. Bert Miller and Mrs. W. J. Mather.

An open meeting followed with Henry J. Moore of Islington, the guest speaker. He suggested projects that might be undertaken to improve the appearance of the village and offered advice pertaining to the operation of the Society. The membership fee was set at $1 and has never been changed.

Public and executive meetings were first held in the auditorium above the council chambers, the site of the present clock tower and fountain. The initial project was a boulevard beside the council chambers. Red barberry shrubs were planted and remained up until the time the building was demolished.

A flowerbed was started in front of the Public Library and improvements made to the Hoover property where the Post Office is now located. The site was then a lively stable.

Prizes were given for the best kept backyards. A summer flower show was open to the public for an admission of 15 cents. Children could attend without charge if accompanied by an adult.

The 1st annual meeting showed a membership of 92 and a balance in the treasury of $45.18. The president for 1925 was Walter Muston.

The secretary treasurer was Ora Reamon. Mr. Muston was the owner of the Stouffville Greenhouse, Ninth Line South. However, due to pressure of business, he had to give up the presidency early in the year. Mr. H. O. Klinck was appointed to fill the vacancy. The Society contacted the Council and the churches with regard to a Decoration Day Service in the cemetery. It has been held annually ever since. A flowerbed was started in the south-east and front areas of the grounds. In June, the Society obtained permission to cut down the weeds along Main Street.

Another flower show was held in Ratcliff's Hall, above the former Ratcliff Store, Market and Main Streets. The books at the end of 1925 showed a balance of $48 and membership of 109.

The Horticultural year of 1926 had Mr. Klinck as president once again, and Margery Mertens, the secretary. The Society installed wire edging around their public flowerbeds and sent two letters to Council, requesting some control over dogs. The sod was straightened along Main Street and a committee was appointed to approach Council with regard to curbing.

A flowerbed, started the previous year at the East End intersection, was improved. Another was started at the West End, on the boulevard where the hydro station is now located. Planting was completed of 650 petunias at these sites. Three tubs, filled with petunias were placed at various locations in the business area. The Council granted the Society the sum of $5.

The Society's first picnic was held in 1926. The location was the village Park with over 100 in attendance. The get-together was continued for a number of years. The high school's orchestra played for the occasion.

Membership in 1926 was 201. The treasurer reported a balance of $53.3. The executive was re-appointed for 1927.

Chairman

Mrs. Joan Doble is the new chairman of the Whitechurch - Stouffville Recreation Committee for 1974. The inaugural meeting was held, Jan. 23, at the Lemonville Community Centre. New members this year are Cliff Dunkeld, William Street, and Jack Watson, Tenth Line South.

HEALTHY HAIR

MARKHAM — There's a lot of talk these days about healthy hair. And we all take it for granted that healthy hair is hair that looks good, feels good, and is on its best behaviour.

But did you ever wonder what healthy hair consists of? What goes into its making?

What pros know

Professional hairdressers know what to look for in evaluating a head of hair. They know what makes for lustre and body. And they know what makes hair resilient and strong. That's because they understand hair's structure. They know what good hair is that way. And they know how to help hair that isn't.

Elasticity
 Hair is, in many ways, structured like wool. Thus it shrinks with heat and stretches when wet — like a mohair sweater.

The ability of hair to stretch is known as elasticity. Hair, when pulled, should stretch about 1/5 of its length and then spring back. Elasticity is what keeps hair from breaking off with every little tug.

And proper elasticity depends on sufficient moisture. (Normally hair is about 10 percent moisture.) But sometimes hair dries up. It loses its ability to retain moisture, becoming dry and brittle, inelastic and frail.

Porosity
 Hair absorbs moisture because it has openings or pores. In order to be healthy, hair must have the right degree of porosity.

Chemical processing, however, has a tendency to make hair overly porous. Hair in this state loses its bounce and springiness.

What pros know

Hair is normally acid in its chemical make-up. But hair preparations — dyes, permanents, even shampoos — are frequently alkaline. Thus the normal chemical balance is often disrupted causing structural changes in the hair. Hair that is too alkaline becomes coarse and scaly. It loses its lustre.

To the rescue
 Luckily for us, hair that is less than perfect can, with proper care, be restored to glowing good health.

An experienced hairdresser can determine the elasticity, porosity and acidity of your hair and prescribe the necessary shampoo and conditioners.

Because part of being a professional is a thorough, in-depth understanding of hair.
