

'Moment with Lucy Maud' Painter captures writers vitality

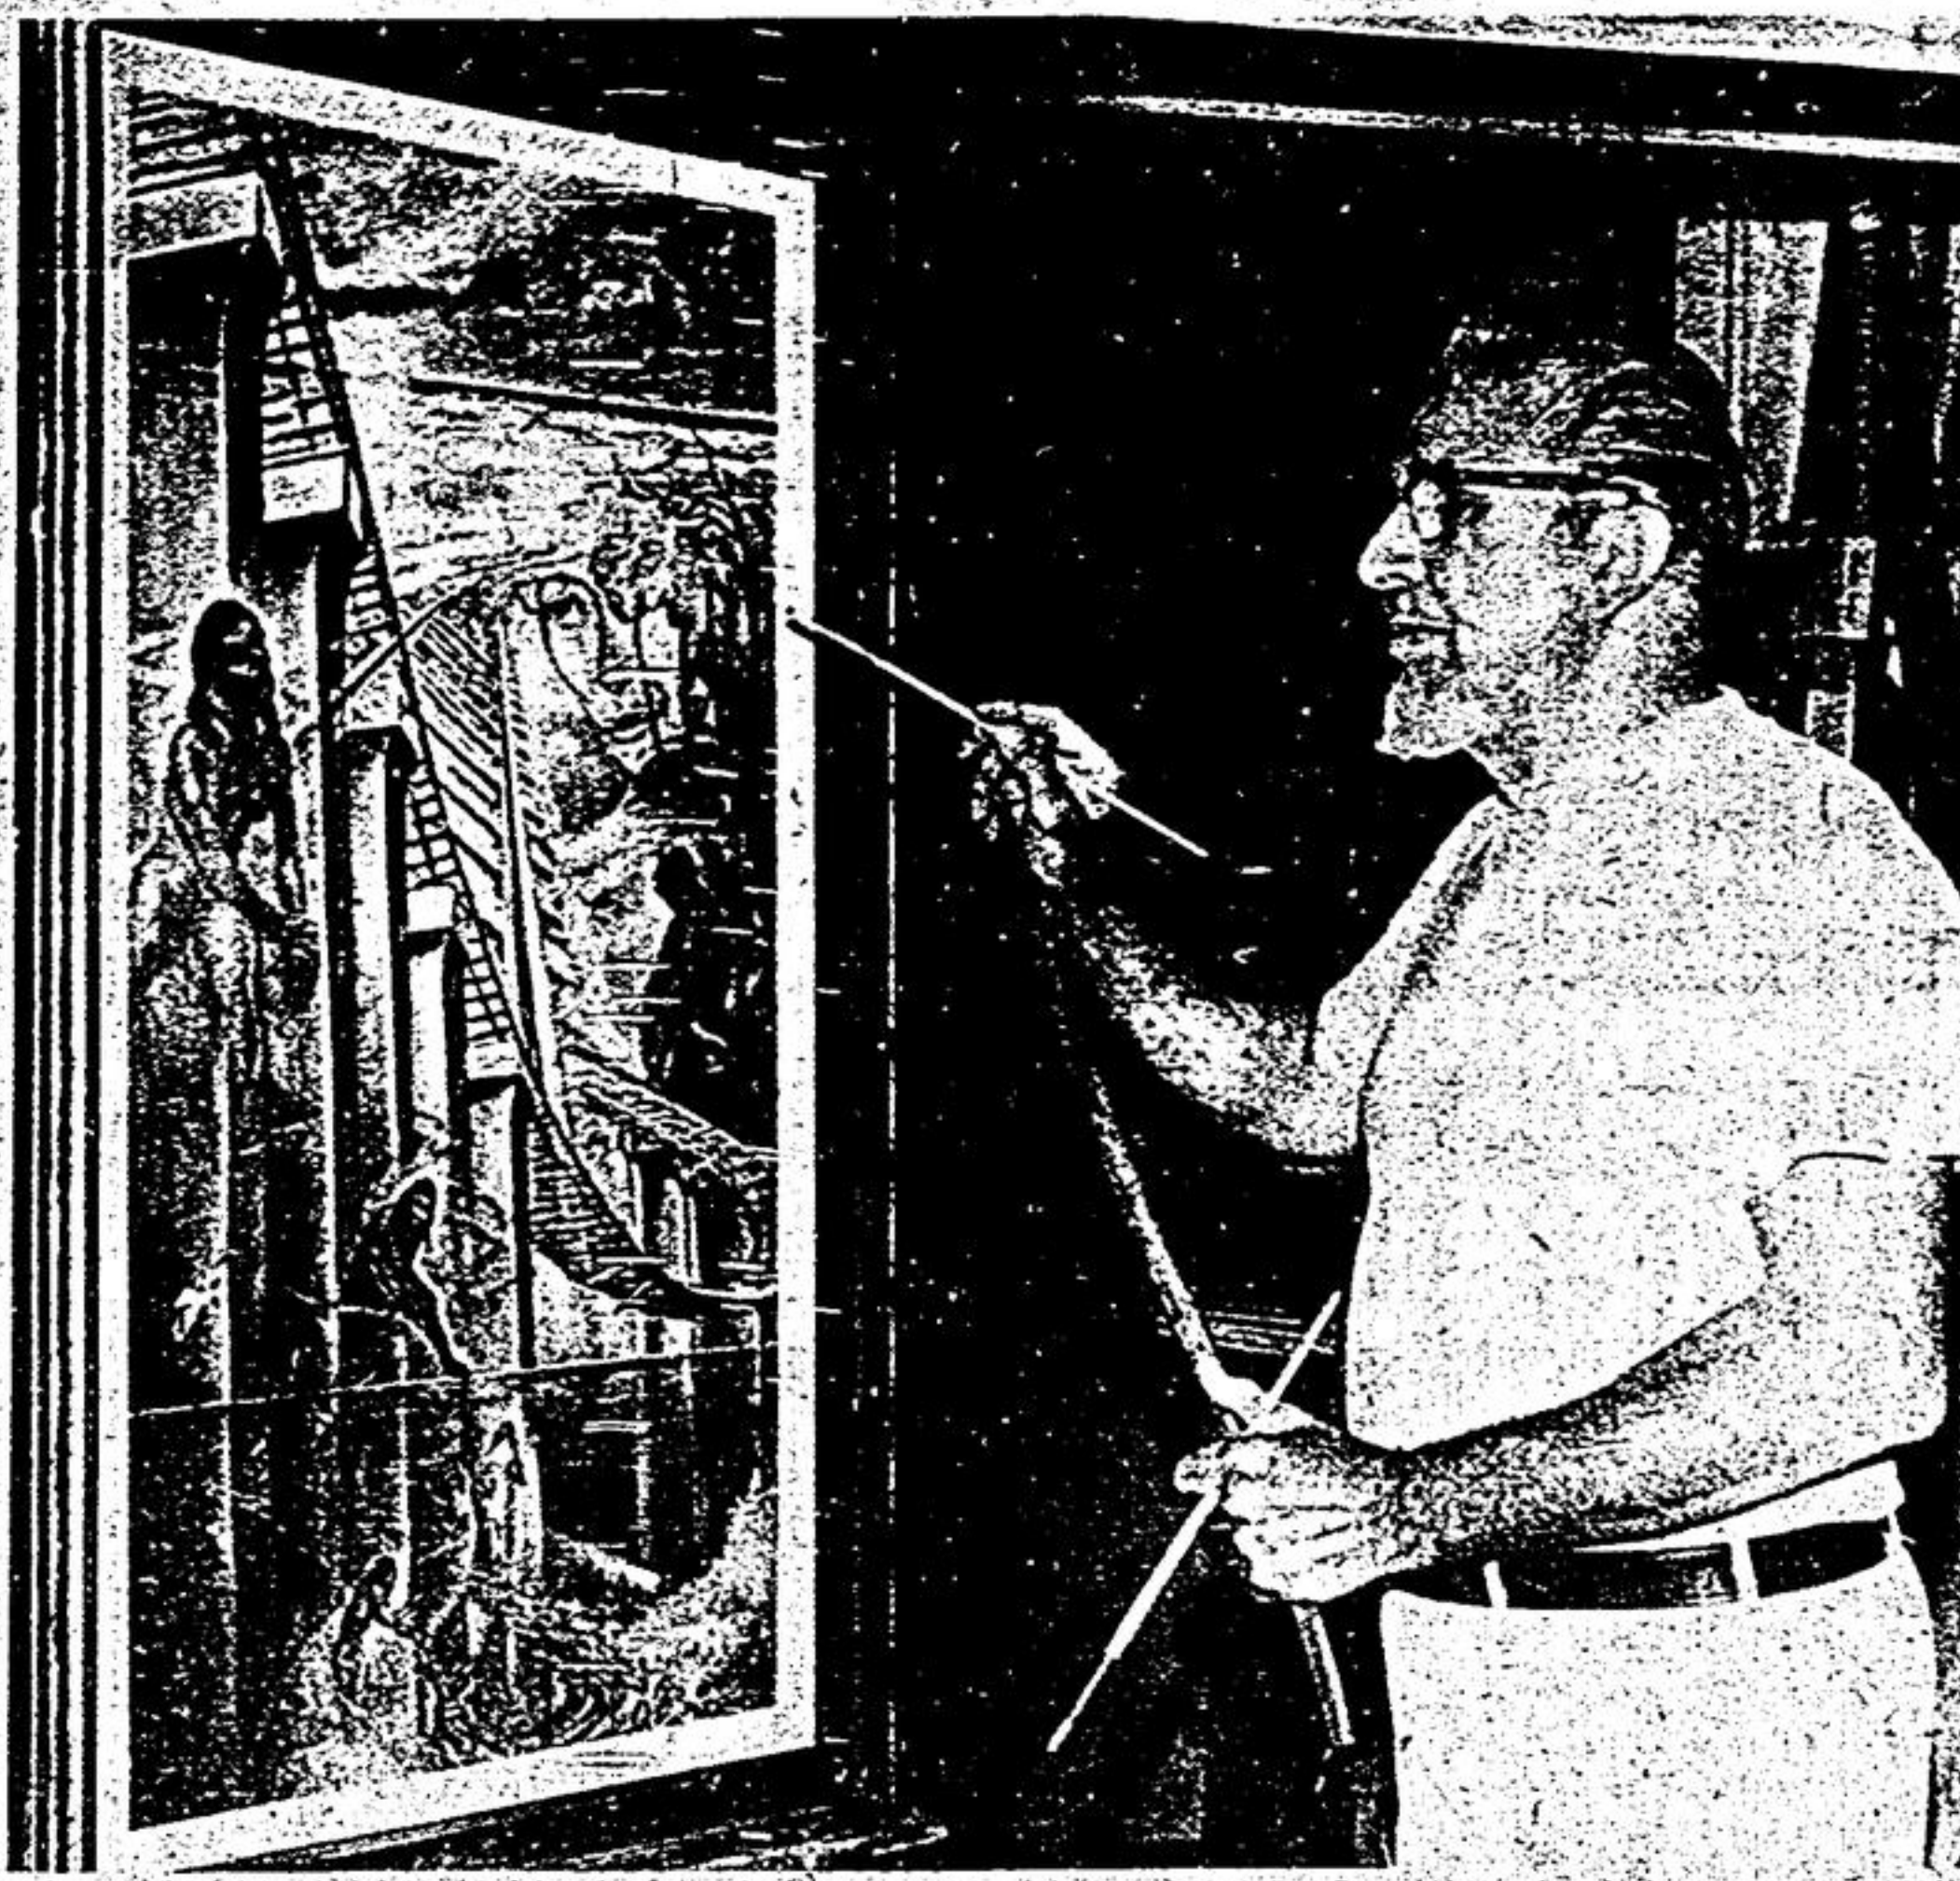

LEAKSDALE — of the Toronto Dominion Bank. Mr. Hodgkins is the owner of the Deerfoot Gallery. The painting itself tells the story of some of the influences that shaped Lucy Maud Montgomery. According to Mr. Hodgkins his intention has been to capture the spirit of the woman against the background of various influences on her life.

It will be unveiled this coming Sunday at the Uxbridge Music Hall. Miss Montgomery lived at Leaksdale from 1911 to 1926 as the wife of Rev. Ewan Macdonald, the Presbyterian minister. The portrait will be on permanent display in the museum at Quaker Hill, managed by the historical society.

The presentation of the painting coincides with the celebration of Miss Montgomery's 100th birthday. The program will begin at 2.30 p.m. Mr. Hodgkins told The Tribune that he did a great deal of research into Lucy Maud Montgomery before starting the portrait. It involved finding old pictures of her and asking residents who still remember her which ones resembled the authoress most.

He had to delve into her life story in order to create a painting with life and vitality.

That he succeeded in and will be seen this coming Sunday.

Watermain costs defrayed by town

MARKHAM — The Highway 48 watermain made its last stand at Markham Council on Tuesday when Council voted to accept a motion by Councillors Bob Adams and Ron Moran that will help defray the cost to the residents of hooking up to the pipe.

Normal costs of piping installation from the watermain to the residents' property line average about $700 but because of the bizarre circumstances that have surrounded this fight between the residents and the town, Council voted to implement a reduced rate.

Homes located on the east side of Highway 48, the side of the road that the line runs, will pay $350. Those living on the west side of 48 will be charged $400. The extra charge for west side residents stems from the fact that the pipes must be installed under the highway. This charge only covers the cost of installation up to the homeowners' property line. If hook-up to the house is desired the homeowner must hire a private contractor to complete the job.

In speaking to the motion Bob Adams said that it was unfair to penalize people just because they lived on a Provincial highway.

Councillor Gary Kay said, "I'll support this motion providing that this matter is not brought before this Council again."
