

After escape series of thefts

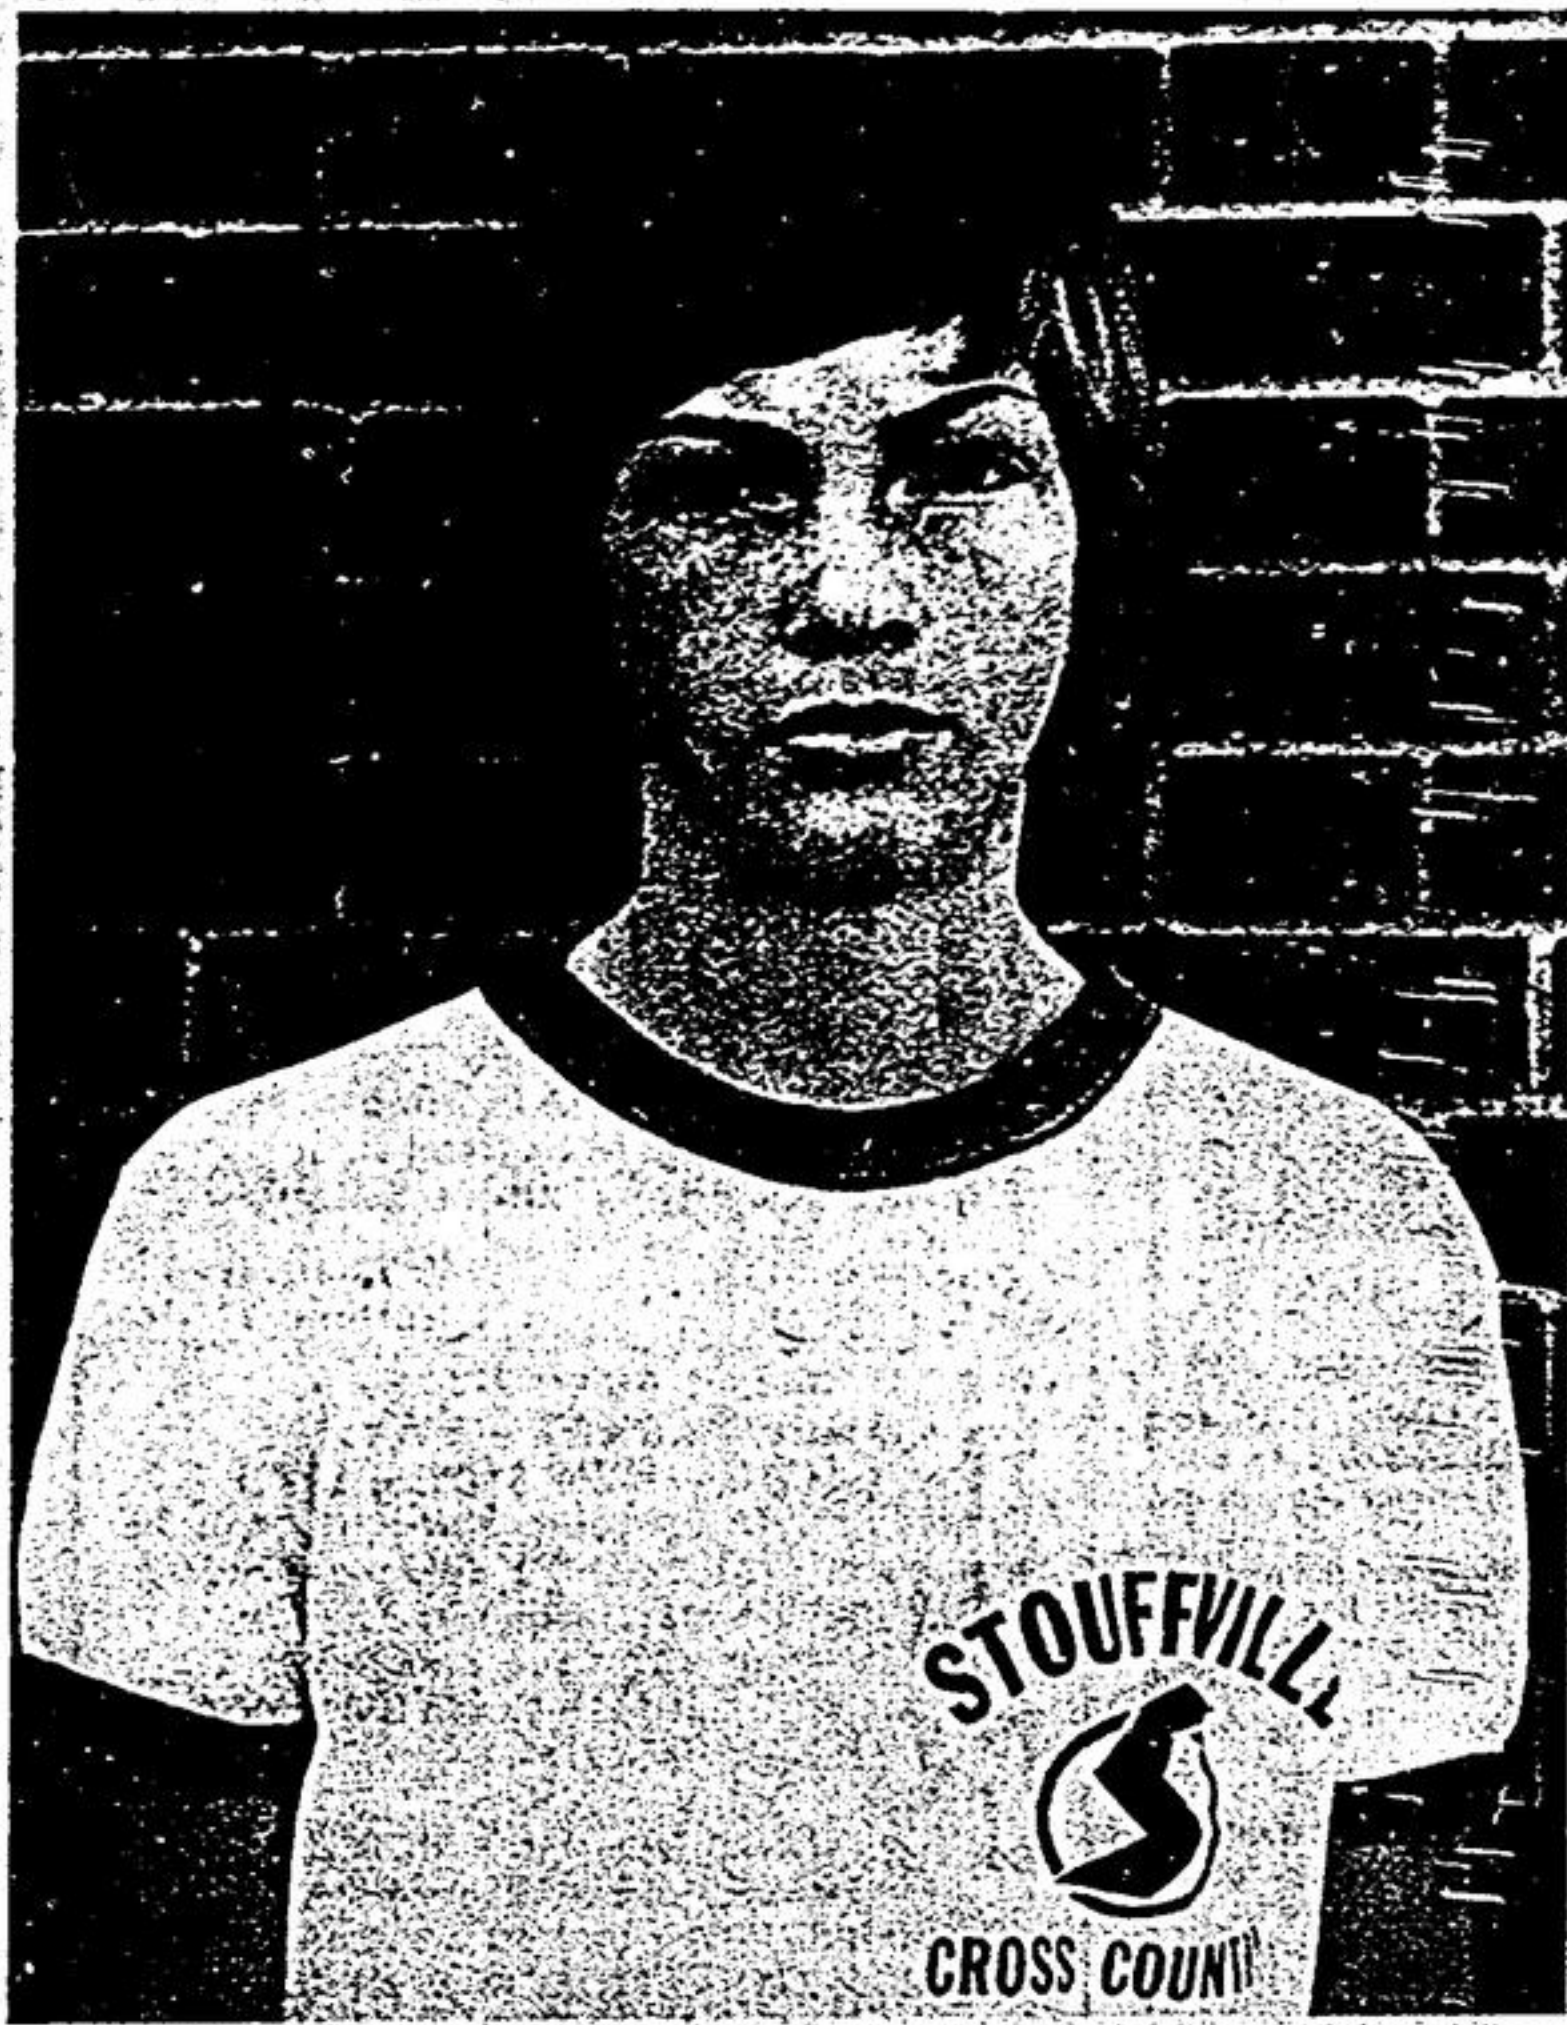

STOUFFVILLE — One 14-year old boy is back in Bowmanville Training School and a Stouffville youth is in custody, following a series of thefts last week.

The chain of events started July 10 when the lad, escaped from the Training School and was alleged to have stolen a 1974 model car from Cowan Buick Ltd.

Early the next morning gas, oil, a radio and binoculars disappeared from Harrison's Gravel Pit in Goodwood. The police were notified and two youths were arrested at Musselman's Lake, July 11.

Along with car theft and the gravel pit thefts the boys are charged in four Richmond Hill incidents which involved theft of two cars. Other thefts credited to the youths include two tape decks from cars.

Three charges were laid against the one lad and five against the Stouffville youth.

Danny Glenn, 15, of Mill Street, made 18 new friends and saw part of Canada as result of his recent trip with the Young Voyageurs, a group jointly sponsored by the federal and provincial governments.

Tribune profile Travels to Ottawa, Quebec

STOUFFVILLE — It's not every day that you have an expense-paid trip to Ottawa and Quebec — along with 18 other members of your age group.

But that's what happened to Danny Glenn, 15, of Mill St. recently. Danny traveled with a group of other high school students from the York region as a participant in the "Young Voyageurs Program."

"I thought it was really nice. You learned a lot, especially in Ottawa," Danny said about the trip. Danny will enter grade 10 next fall at Stouffville Dist. Secondary School.

The program is jointly sponsored by the provincial and federal governments. According to a promotional pamphlet, "the Young Voyageurs discover for themselves the variety and beauty of Canada and form new friendships that may enrich their whole lives."

In the case of Danny, the program appears to have succeeded. He was a stranger to his 18 fellow-travelers when he began the trip on July 9, but "we all became good friends before we left," he said.

A favorite part of the trip for Danny was a visit to the Thailand embassy in Ottawa, where they viewed a film on Thailand and talked to the ambassador. In Ottawa, the group also toured Parliament, the Supreme Court, Carleton University, the National Art Centre, and the Nation Gallery.

They stayed in a 16-floor university residence in Ottawa, along with other Young Voyageurs from all over Canada.

On July 11 the group toured Upper Canada Village, which Danny said is "like Blackcreek pioneer village, except bigger."

The students had a unique experience on their visit to Montmagny, Quebec. There, they stayed in the homes of French speaking residents. Danny said that he communicated with his hosts by speaking "a little bit of French and a little bit of English."

After almost a week there, he said, he was speaking and understanding French better. His previous exposure to the French language had been in Grade 7 and 8 classes.

In Quebec, the group visited an exact replica of Cartier's boat, which Danny found "pretty interesting." "You had to duck your head because it was the real size. All the men were smaller than," he explained.

Unionville scratched

UNIONVILLE — Differences between Bell Canada and residents of Unionville have been settled.

Ma Bell has admitted her mistake and all is at peace within the family again.

The problem occurred when Unionville as a name was scratched from the 1974 Bell Canada directory and replaced by Markham West.

Residents protested and took their complaints to Markham Council.

"It was all a mistake," admitted Bell Information Officer Malcolm Lennox.

"In a company this size, decisions are made by many people, some tend to be very technical in nature, while others involve communities. Some areas are anxious to retain their identities and we should have been more conscious of that," he said.

The change back from Markham West to Unionville has been approved. Mr. Lennox said and will be corrected in the 1975 edition of the directory.
