Camper difficulties ended

Uxpool budget refused

UXBRIDGE — The Uxbridge Fair tentatively scheduled for Sept. 5, 6, 7 this year, is hoping to put an end to past difficulties with campers on the Fairgrounds.

This was a concern stated by Fair Board president Dr. Rod Freeman, who headed a delegation to Township Council. There have been problems, he said, with campers in Elgin Park refusing to leave during the Fair; he also mentioned vandalism problems.

Mayor Dr. Carl Puterbaugh said there was "no way" the township could force the campers out. Elgin Park is registered with the Ontario Ministry of Industry and Tourism, the mayor said, which entitles it to free publicity and to certain grants.

After some discussion, township solicitor Alec McLennan suggested that the municipality rent all the camping spaces to the Fair Board for the days of the annual event, at a nominal charge of one dollar. This met general approval, and will be incorporated into the agreement between the Township and the Fair Board.

The second matter concerned a new building the Fair Board wants to erect on the grounds. This is to be used for local women to display arts and crafts during the Fair. A block building, said Dr. Freeman, would cost about $6,000 to build. A similar structure, of frame construction, would cost $1,000 less, but would be susceptible to vandalism. The Fair Board so far has grants totalling $5,000, and Dr. Freeman suggested the Township might be able to make up the balance so a sturdier building could be constructed.

While no definite action was taken, council seemed disposed to consider the request. A bylaw was passed to authorize signing of the agreement, and this will be finalized after some minor changes.

STOUFFVILLE — A total of 12 projects were chosen last week at Summitview Public School's Science Fair to go on and represent the school at the Area Two competition.

Of the intermediate (grade seven) students a project in the earth sciences category on snakes by Michael Mumford and Danny LeBlanc was chosen.

Mary Lang and Beth McBride will be taking their project on endangered species to the area fair and also in the intermediate earth sciences category is a project on plants by Karen Middleton.

Two efforts in the life science division were selected. Patti Richards and Angie Jones' project on calculators which included a home made abacus was picked, and the other project, completed by Steve Swartman and Brian Bowes was on drugs compiled from information received from the Addiction Research Centre in Toronto.

Intermediate winners were: Tim Humphries with his exhibit on time, an entry on the ocean by Randy Cornelisse, Raymond Dart's project on telescopes, a joint effort on microbes by Darlene Wagg and Francesca DegliAngeli, and a study of primitive man by Michael Rehill and Mark Boadway.
