

Although Monday was not the hottest day of the summer, it was still warm enough to attract a goodly number of people to local beaches. Here, Glendale Beach is a hive of activity as people searched for ways to beat the heat. Cooler temperatures this week, relieved some of the worst effects of the mid-summer hot spell.

— John Montgomery

Boats were also apparent on the lake over the weekend and here Tribune photographer John Montgomery managed to catch seven of them in one picture. While it started out to be the hottest weekend of the summer, rain Sunday brought cooler, drier air.

Despite co-owners statement

Picnickers cause problems

COPPEN'S CORNERS — Despite recent protests to the contrary, problems at the Macedonian picnic grounds here are not solved, a nearby resident said. The Tribune last week

The Tribune had printed comments by Paul Nanoff, a co-owner of the grounds, last week saying that toilet, garbage and other complaints by neighbors had been taken care of.

Jean Ward, who lives adjacent to the ground, disagrees. "They always put a nice face on it," she said, "but problems continue."

She said that even after new rented toilets were installed, that trespassing by children onto neighboring property continued.

"Maybe it's not as bad as it used to be because they're smaller than usual," Mrs. Ward added.

The "fences" referred to by Mr. Nanoff, she said, are just "stump fences" made from extracted tree roots.

The only "proper wire fence" was recently installed by a neighbor, she said.

Mrs. Ward said that the P. A. system broadcasting music is indeed obnoxious to neighbors. "They don't really know what it's like... Every time the police come, they say, 'I wouldn't put up with that!'"

Regarding Mr. Nanoff's comments to The Tribune last week, Mrs. Ward said that

"every item that he's mentioned, it's quite the reverse."

She added that in the past, picnic grounds visitors have come over to their home to get water so that the Wards do not feel they can leave home on Sunday.

The picnic grounds are privately owned and used by Macedonian fraternal organizations.

Public meeting

Houses planned in deserted quarry

COPPEN'S CORNERS — A public meeting regarding a proposed official plan change for a portion of land about 1,000 feet west of here was to be held Tuesday night at the Uxbridge municipal building.

The Colicchia Group Developers are requesting that 24 acres of land be redesignated from "rural" to "hamlet" status so that development of a 32 lot subdivision may proceed.

The subdivision would be located in a small abandoned gravel pit, with vacant lands to the west and north and a regional forest to the south.

Durham Region Current Operations Branch prepared a report stating that the location was a poor one for a residential development at this time.

Reasons given included the large licensed gravel operations nearby, which would create noise, dust and traffic hazards for future residents; and the prevention of extraction of aggregates which exist on the site as well as making extraction difficult on adjacent lots.

The report said the subdivision could not be interpreted as either infilling or as an extension of Coppen's Corners, thereby contradicting present proposed regional planning policies.

Since 644 vacant building lots, 25 acres or under, exist in the former Townships of Uxbridge or Scott, there is no shortage of suitable lots for development, the report added.

The report did state that the site had been assessed as "suitable" as far as sewage, water and access go, but that the negative aspects outweigh those considerations.

Fake cheques hit four banks

THORNHILL — Close to $2,000 worth of counterfeit travellers cheques were passed to four Thornhill banks in a two and a half hour period last Tuesday.

A man presented himself as Sam Hat of Ohio to four banks and at three of the four he cashed 10 $50 Bank of America travellers cheques. At the fourth bank, only nine cheques were tendered.

Two Banks of Commerce, a Payroll Bank and a Bank of Nova Scotia, all located on Yonge St., were victimized.

Descriptions of the cheque passer vary but according to all accounts he was "well dressed in a business suit."

Scugog, Uxbridge for penitentiary

UXBRIDGE — One way or the other, it's going to end up in Scugog or Uxbridge. That was how Uxbridge Councillor Bill Ballinger described the prospects for a proposed federal penitentiary reception centre.

At the July 31

meeting of council, it was learned that Federal Penitentiary Services representative John Bennett had contacted Mr. Ballinger, saying he would be happy to meet with council.

Earlier, council had requested a visit by Mr. Bennett to discuss what the proposed penitentiary would entail.

Apparently, the reaction being received by council has not been strongly negative according to two members. Mayor Carl Peterborough said he was "not getting very negative replies" while Councillor Eleanor Todd said that "after sending out 125 letters concerning the penitentiary, she received only three replies."

Beer steins stolen

MARKHAM — Two 17 year old Markham area youths, who pleaded guilty to the theft of 45 beer steins last week, were granted a conditional discharge and placed on a one year term of probation.

Kevin John Cunningham and Steve James Botham were charged March 12 after they stole the beer mugs from a barn. The glass mugs, belonging to the Markham Rotary Club, were being stored at a local barn.

According to Crown Attorney Bill Gorewich, the two accused youths had been aware the Beerfest mugs were at the barn for some time before they decided to confiscate them.

After 30 years of service

Surprise resignation shocks regional council

SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE NEWMARKET

After 30 years of service to York County and York Region, Jack Rettie abruptly resigned last week — and it appears highly unlikely the region's top civil servant will change his mind.

His departure may touch off more resignations by senior regional staff, some of whom have stayed on the job primarily because of Mr. Rettie's leadership and commitment to the regional government concept.

A startled regional council heard Chairman Garfield Wright read Mr. Rettie's letter of resignation at a closed meeting Thursday morning.

After a sometimes heated debate, council gave the Chief Administrative Officer a month to reconsider his decision.

Mr. Rettie made the decision to quit the previous Tuesday. He did not attend the meeting Thursday.

In an interview Friday, Mr. Rettie said he "will think it over" until September, as council requested, but the tone of his comments indicated he is resolved to let the resignation stand.

He declined to give council or the press his reasons for quitting. But it is known that his frustration has been mounting, particularly during the past year, as a result of council's posture on two issues:

1. In Mr. Rettie's view, councillors have taken a parochial attitude towards regional government, and have refused to take firm policy stands on important matters affecting York's future. Some regional politicians oppose the very concept of government their council represents; he feels:

"I don't know if a chief of police is worth $38,500, I just don't know that." Mr. Twinney said. "The job is a very important job, and he has 913 employees. And so for the CAO here (in the region) to be upset and resign over what happened in the police department is sort of stupid, if you ask me."

The next day, Mr. Rettie said:

"Twinney's statement is entirely inaccurate. That (the salary issue) is not the whole story."

"You can fill a chair with a body, and it might be a competent body, but you just can't replace that kind of experience."

"I've had many a powerful disagreement with Jack Rettie, but never at any time have I ever questioned his integrity and dedication."

During Thursday's closed meeting, Mayor Evelyn Buck rebuked those councillors who speculated that Mr. Rettie quit because he didn't get his requested salary, or because of the pay increases given to senior police officials.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

Mr. Rettie said he was not in a position to predict his future occupational plans, although he left the clear impression they do not include working for the Region of York.

"I don't really have any immediate plans," he said. "I'm considering some things that I've been considering for some time."

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.

"I think that salary arguments could be a convenient excuse for councillors to use, but I think the resignation is the culmination of a great many injustices, not only to Jack Rettie, but to the people he is responsible for," Mayor Buck said in an interview.