

Abandoned school turned into home

GOODWOOD — Most people know Mr. and Mrs. Graham Hudson from their florist shop, however for the past two and a half years, the couple has worked a miracle of sorts in converting a school into a home.

The school in question is the old two-story Goodwood SS No. 7 on the 3rd Concourse. The Hudson's purchased the building in March of 1973 and proceeded to redo it from top to bottom.

They related how most of their friends thought they were somewhat out of their minds to tackle such a project.

Mr. Hudson told The Tribune of a sad state the building was in when they purchased it. The inside was dirty, and most of the windows had been broken and were boarded up.

The electrical system was almost "non-existent" and there was no water supply on the property. The furnace was sound however and remains in the renovated building.

Mr. Hudson said that the building itself is sound. The walls are three bricks thick and the basement wall is made of stone and mortar. The school is unique in another way. It is one of the few two-storey, two-room schools in the area.

Along with contractor Bob Bruce, they designed the renovations themselves. It took just over a year to complete the transformation.

The Hudsons moved in July of 1974.

The transformation was remarkable. Instead of two 30x30 foot classrooms, a home.

The upstairs room was divided into four bedrooms and two washrooms. Downstairs, the ceilings had been lowered 18 inches and BC fir beams installed in the living room.

The bedrooms are lighted with some of the same fixtures found in the original school. The staircase was a major job. Instead of a long, single set of stairs, a landing was built. The original stairs, banister and all, were used.

A total of 14 tons of drywall was used. All the blackboards were retrieved. They are made of real slate and cut into pieces, make an interesting flooring for the entrance way.

Two other major changes were made. A large double door was cut in the front of the building (the school entrance had been at the side) and a large full-width porch was added outside.

The school had two water fountains and those have been preserved to be installed later.

The school retains some interesting relics of the past. The original fire escape (just a flimsy-looking metal ladder) still dangles at the rear of the building. Another fire escape of more recent design remains and is used as a second-floor entrance.

Mr. Hudson said that an attempt was made to retain the character of the building.

One of the prized possessions is the original clock of the school dating from 1893. An inscription reads:

"This clock was purchased with part of the proceeds of a concert gotten up by the Teacher and pupils of Goodwood Public School and given on the evening of Dec. 14, 1893."

Three of the outside walls had been sandblasted by the previous owner. But the west wall remains. The bricks are covered with names etched in. Such well-known names as Wagg, Feasby, Morgason, and Taylor can easily be read.

The Hudsons have made a hobby of searching out the school's history, but so far have not had a great deal of success. The school was built in 1893 after a frame one burned down. That school dated from 1870.

It was closed after a new school was opened in 1959, then was re-opened for special education classes. It was closed as a school in 1971. The Hudson's would love to find out more about the school's history. Anyone with information may contact them at the flower shop on Main Street, Stouffville.

Two months for trafficker

NEWMARKET — A 17-year-old Gormley youth was sentenced to a 60 day jail term following a conviction on trafficking charges in Newmarket Court last week.

Legion dance

This coming Saturday is the Stouffville Legion dance. A pot-luck supper is included. Express appreciation

Members of the Order of the Eastern Star wish to express their appreciation to the Kinettes Club of Stouffville for their assistance at the installation of officers. Those assisting were — Maris Anderson, June Harper, Pauline O'Hearn, Sylvia English, Neala Donn, Grace Hartington and Doris Smedwick.

Trafficking is usually the basis for making money," Judge Munro told the accused youth, he added. "This is a severe thing we have to deal with, it is not a dying thing as some may assume, but a growing thing."

Judge Munro also ordered a one year term of probation for the accused youth following sentence and added

"Trafficking destroys more lives than anything else I've ever heard of."
