

Crisis housing program

YORK REGION — The Emergency Housing Task Force of York Region has announced that it is now in the process of implementing a Housing Registry for people who are in need of short-term emergency accommodation.

The Task Force, which was formed last fall as a sub-committee of an Inter-Agency Housing Committee, is actively searching for residents who are able to offer this kind of housing to people in need.

Michael Crowley, Chairman of the Task Force, states that there is a "real need" for this service in the area. From his experience as a Probation and Parole Officer, Crowley states that he is personally aware of instances when a young probationer, even after counselling, finds it necessary to move away from his home, even for a brief "cooling off" period.

"Within the past few years, enough studies have been done, which clearly indicate the need for emergency housing," states Crowley. "The thrust of this particular committee is proving that the residents of the Region are as generous and warm-hearted as anywhere else in this Province."

The Task Force believes that the range of persons needing this service is a wide one, including families affected by house fires, single parents after marital disputes, Children's Aid Society emergencies, and people being discharged from hospital who don't have families.

"There are a number of areas concerning the registry that should be stressed, but I think that the most important aspect," states Crowley, "is that this is really an agency referral service, primarily. We hope that all persons placed into housing will have either been clients of some agency worker, or else will have to be willing to be assessed by someone from our committee."

If you wish to be a part of the Housing Registry, you are requested to phone the Health Unit number in your area. This information will be turned over to the Family Y in Richmond Hill, and someone from the Task Force will then contact you in order to visit your home and discuss details. "I'm hoping," states Crowley, "that this service becomes an important part of the services offered in York Region. We can use volunteer help with the project, and I think that this could become a very rewarding job for someone with a good deal of time and with good administrative skills."

All area agencies who might utilize the list are being invited to attend a meeting at York Central Hospital on May 5.

Police to attend courses

NEWMARKET — The York Regional Police Commission last week approved applications from Police Chief Bruce Crawford for members of the Force to attend special courses to be held in Ottawa.

Inspector William Smythe will be going to attend an Executive Development Course at the Canadian Police College of the R.C.M.P. May 17 to June 25.

The course is open to men holding the rank of Inspector or above, who are eligible for command or policy forming positions, and includes such topics as leadership, planning, sociology of crime, internal controls etc.

Chief Crawford will be attending another course set for May 5th to 7th inclusive, planned by the Solicitor General of Canada and the Department of Criminology, University of Ottawa.

The theme of the Conference will be "The Community and the Administration of Justice."
