

Bowmanville eliminates Clippers season finished for May squad

By Pete Sanderson
Not even the "traveling road" version of the Perry Brown show could help the Ken May Clippers Sunday night in Bowmanville as the Eagle club eliminated the May crew from further playoff action by a score of 7-4. It was the efforts of young Brown that forced the fifth and deciding game as he scored three times last Wednesday night, including the tying and winning goals, as the Clippers nipped the Eagles 7-6 in overtime. In that contest, the Clippers had skated out for the period down 6-3, but Brown made it 6-4 after only 30 seconds of play.

Mike Wightman narrowed the gap even further to set the stage for Brown's last minute and overtime heroics.
Sunday night, the script was the same as the Clippers skated out for the third period down 5-2. Terry Sarginson and Ted Puk had given the Eagles a first period 2-0 lead, but early in the second frame, Geoff Roy scored to narrow the gap. Puk gave the Eagles breathing room once again but three minutes later at 11:03, Brown notched a powerplay goal to make the score 3-2. To this point in the contest, the May club had actually taken the play to the Eagles. But the one goal Bowmanville lead became three as the period ended. Sarginson and Roy Gibles finding the mark.

As in the previous two contests, the Clippers scored early in the third period.
Defenceman Damon Bennett ripped a shot past Eagle goalie Len Chappel, who turned in another sparkling performance. Fifty seconds later, however, the Eagle's lead once again became three as Don Spicher beat Clipper goalie Rick Marshman, who was subsequently replaced by Brad Steel. Clipper captain Ted Assinck gave the May club a glimmer of hope as he renewed the comeback bid with a goal midway through the period. Clipper coach Murray Sinclair pulled goalie Steel in favour of a sixth attacker, but the move backfired as Eagle Terry Johnston iced the semi-final series for the Bowmanville club, who now meet Lindsay in a best of seven final.
Perry Brown was once again outstanding for the Clippers. Defenceman Craig Waite turned in his usual strong game as did centreman Andy Leitch and midgets Steve Schell and Brad Steel played exceptionally well. A strong contingent of Stouffville fans followed the team to Bowmanville and were most vocal in their support.

The Ken May sponsored team had a fine year, this only their second in the Central Ontario Junior C league. Murray Sinclair did a truly superb job of coaching the team and its success this season is chiefly because of his fine efforts. Many league observers feel that coach Sinclair is perhaps the best coach in the league and the team's fine showing certainly supports the feeling.
There's little doubt that the team's best player this season was Perry Brown. After a slow start, chiefly through his own doing, Brown led the team with his aggressive, gutsy play. His playoff achievements were truly outstanding and his exciting brand of hockey was enjoyed and commented on by opposition fans in every rival arena.
Following close on the heels of Brown was defenceman Craig Waite. A forward at the start of the season, Waite became a rearguard with the exit of Chris Clarridge. He played like a veteran and most adequately filled the gap on defence. His heady rushes and smart playmaking made him the best of the Clipper's blueline corps.
Finally, honorable mentions should go to defencemen Paul Parsons and Damon Bennett, forwards Andy Leitch and Bill Meakes, and captain Ted Assinck, all of whom, through their desire and inspired play, made this season of Ken May Clipper Junior C hockey a most exciting and enjoyable one for everyone.

The Stouffville Clippers swarm over the Bowmanville Eagle's goalie, forcing him to make a glove save on the play. The game, which saw the Clippers lose by a 7-4 score, eliminated the Stouffville squad from the semi-final playoffs.

Perry Brown best by far

The mother of two Cobourg Cougars hockey players waited patiently outside the Ken May Clipper dressing room two weeks ago after the Clippers had humiliated her sons' team 11-2. She had asked for the stick of Clipper winger Perry Brown and upon receiving it, asked that the following message be relayed to the diminutive speedster. In her many years of watching Junior C hockey in Cobourg, she had never seen as good or exciting a player as young Brown. Despite the Cougar loss, the all-out efforts of Perry Brown had been much appreciated by the Cobourg fans because, without him, the series would not have been nearly as exciting as it had been. She concluded with best wishes to Perry for

Perry Brown finished one point behind Clipper scoring "ace" Kevin Barrick in the regular season team scoring statistics. He also played seven fewer games than centreman Barrick. He led the Clipper playoff statistics by a country mile. And if there was a means of measuring desire, no one on the Clipper team would even come close. When the league announces its final all star selections and its most valuable player, it would be a grave oversight if the name Perry Brown wasn't included somewhere in the list.
Without doubt, Perry Brown was the most valuable Ken May Real Estate Clipper in this, their finest season.

As we look back upon the 1976-77 season, we can only be encouraged by the thought of perhaps an even better season next year, and certainly thankful for the fine job that Ken May and Murray Sinclair and their Clipper hockey club did this year.

Olympic lifter coaching

Stouffville weight club under way

STOUFFVILLE — Those interested in toning up any flabby muscles. The Spartan Weightlifting Club was formed with the co-operation of the S.D.S.S. student council who donated a set of Olympic standard weights, and the Stouffville Lions Club who donated the Olympic standard competition platform.
Founder and coach is John Roberts, a teacher at S.D.S.S. along with the experienced help of Vladimir Chrappa, a former Olympic lifter with the 1964 Czechoslovakian team. Both students of the school and interested outsiders make up this growing club of 16 members.
The club wants to encourage a high degree of physical fitness among the members in the Stouffville area. Weightlifting competition includes area, provincial and Canadian matches in the two Olympic lifts, the snatch and the clean and jerk in preparation for the 1980 Olympics.
The members of the club are: Doug Smith, Dave Dart, Armin Schopf, Paul Gautier, Mathew Crane, Michael Redquest, Atis Paulens, Peter Hamilton, Larry Ross, Al Sooley, Jim Couch, John Turner, Ron Yakely, Gord Lynde, John Roberts and Vladimir Chrappa.
Mr. Roberts said Mr. Chrappa had been up to Stouffville two years ago, but at that time there was no equipment for weightlifting. Now, however, Mr. Roberts thinks that they have the best equipment in York county.

Matt Crane is doing an exercise that requires both skill and strength: It's the last part of the exercise routine at the weightlifting club and the apparatus is called the pegboard. While holding the pegs and dangling in the air, you have to move the pegs up, notch by notch until you reach the top.

Patrick opening with win

STOUFFVILLE — The Patrick Motor Polar Bears, with a 3-2 win over Lindsay last Wednesday night, took the opening round of the novice A playoffs two games to none.
The first period was a close checking encounter with Todd "The Fox" Rex-Graham getting the first Polar Bear goal. Lindsay came back with just over a minute left to play in the period to even things up.
The second period saw Rex-Graham score his second unassisted goal to again put the Polar Bears in the lead.
In the third the Bears went up by two on a goal by Jeff "The Mt. Albert Terror" Conway. Lindsay were not going to fall that easy however, and with 2:42 left in the game they pocketed their second goal. In the dying moments Lindsay threatened to tie the game up but the strong Bears defense helped preserve the 3-2 win and series victory.
Dave "The Cruncher" Fockler played superbly between the pipes, substituting for the injured Chris Harper.
The second round of the playoffs start Wednesday night against the Bowmanville Novice Toros in Stouffville.
