Prepares for forest fires

The old saying that "March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb" has been very true this spring. With the advent of mild weather people start to think about the warm balmy days of late spring and early summer.

An urge comes over a lot of outdoors people to get their boats ready, their camping equipment repaired and spruced up. The arrival of the Sportsmen's Show makes them raring to go even more.

As people prepare for the summer months, so does the Ontario Natural Resources Ministry prepare for their arrival in our provincial parks and crown timber lands.

Foresters and budget officers have already planned the amount of money needed to move fire fighters into the potentially most dangerous zones.

The ministry has committed $7 million to fight forest fires during the 1977 summer.

It is an outstanding first amongst state and provincial governments throughout North America. It means that your Ontario government has slotted money before the season even begins.

What is so great about saving current monies for future emergencies? If no planning is done now, it is like saying that everything in Northern Ontario is perfectly alright when just the opposite is true.

Northwestern Ontario has had a steadily dropping water table for the past two years because of a lack of rain or snow and because of the ravages of fire for the past three years.

Fire control officers report 50 or more fires are smouldering in the muskeg now. These fires were started by hunters and fishermen who thought that these fires went out by themselves.

The drought is so bad in the northwest that Thunder Bay has received only 24 per cent of normal snowfall or Red Lake only 55 per cent of normal snowfall.

So the timber resources up there are sitting ducks for serious outbreaks of fire. In 1976, figures show that Ontario had 3,983 fires burning 1.3 million acres of forest. The highest figure is 2.1 million acres in 1924.

Aside from committing $7 million, the natural resources ministry has set up special training courses on fire prevention.

A six-man team has contacted people in the pulp and paper and tourist industries to alert them to the dangers.

The ministry has let out contracts for 16 helicopters and is considering the purchase of infra-red detectors which can pinpoint the hottest areas of a fire.

All vacations for fire control officers' between April 1 and June 30 have been cancelled.

Those are some of the measures which natural resources has taken to reduce the possibilities of forest fires.

A bigger effort must still be made to educate the public about the extent and causes of forest fires.

The public too must be more careful in the use of fire during camping or fishing trips. So if you go on such a trip, be careful in using fire. Your caution may well save thousands of acres of valuable timber.

Farm report

Milk quota

will be set soon

This is the last chance for dairy farmers to lend or borrow market share quota. Quota can be transferred to match shipments up to the end of March, and then it will move back to its original owner.

The quota lending program set up by the Marketing Board is really good, but producers have to apply before the end of March. If it isn't done by then, overquota milk shipped up to that date, will be hit with the penalty of $8.60 per hundred pounds. On the other side, anyone who has produced less than 90 per cent of his market share quota will lose that amount of quota.

February milk statements have each producer's record on quota, and we have application forms to lend or borrow at our office.

Last week's mild weather was great for getting rid of ice and snow around buildings, but probably bad for overwintering crops like wheat and alfalfa. With no snow cover, these plants can easily drop below the critical temperature of about 15 degrees.

Tests have shown that if temperatures stay below this level for any more than a few hours, large numbers of plants are killed, and those that do survive will produce only about half a crop.

So we need a more gradual change to spring weather, without plants exposed to freezing, flooding, and ice cover. As usual, we can only hope it works out that way.

Nitrogen is a big help to wheat just as it starts to grow. Ammonium Nitrate at 200 lbs. or Urea at 150 will give the crop a real boost, and the earlier the better. It can go on top of snow if the field is reasonably level.

There was surprisingly good hay at our Seed Fair last week. Despite all the rain at having time last year, our exhibitors had top quality green hay, with those precious leaves still on. Harry Goulding from Kleinburg and Richard Frisby from Unionville had the top entries, with Norman and Brian Gee of Victoria Square and Gerald Livingston of Woodbridge close seconds.

Neglect ground transit

By DR. CHARLES GODFREY MPP DURHAM W.

The urban transit passenger is a casualty of the "Federal" Government's high flying air travel. The recent statement that urban transit will not benefit from Federal funds, promised in 1974, points out clearly the failure of the Federal Government to set priorities in the spending of tax dollars for transportation.

Although Metro Toronto has been promised aid for upgrading the Toronto Union Station, to purchase double-decker cars for the Go-Train system, and to install new systems such as the Toronto Streetsville system - all of these promises have been broken because of budgetary constraints.

However, at the same time, the Federal Government acknowledges that it has spent more than $110 million (plus carrying charges and lost tax revenue) to purchase 18,000 acres in Pickering as an "option" in case they are unable to solve the Malton airport noise problem.

The result of this is that attempts to decentralize the Metro congestion, by provision of frequent commuter services to outlying areas, will fail. This failure to meet the problem of urban living, one of the most important problems of the twentieth century, will continue as long as the Federal Government fails to set proper priorities in the spending of tax dollars.

What Southern Ontario needs immediately is relief from ground travel congestion problems.
