

Cadets to recruit at Legion Hall

STOUFFVILLE — A special Air Cadet recruiting meeting will be held next Wednesday, April 13, 7:30 p.m., at the Stouffville Legion Hall.

Boys and girls between the ages of 13 and 19, and their parents, are invited to attend.

Currently, there are very few local youngsters involved in the Stouffville Air Cadet Squadron.

According to Ed Macdonald, Range Instructor with the rank of Lieutenant, the reason is that the squadron meets in Newmarket and transportation has been a continual problem.

"We will be providing a bus if we can come up with 20 kids," Mr. Macdonald told The Tribune.

A film will be shown Wednesday and refreshments will be served.

The air cadets meet for regular meetings Wednesdays and there are innumerable other activities either at night or on weekends.

There is a Monday night hobby club and pellet gun shooting. There is target practice Friday nights in Aurora, using live ammunition and cadets are trained to use large bore rifles and other weapons, such as Sten guns, at camps.

Sports or swim nights are held monthly and a few dances are held every year.

Every Sunday six cadets fly and each cadet usually gets to fly about twice a year. The squadron has four scholarships available to send cadets to a summer camp to train for their private pilot's licence.

A shorter course is available to train glider pilots and several other courses are also offered ranging from sports to leadership courses. All camps are free to cadets and senior cadets are sometimes paid at the same rate as Armed Forces Corporals.

"There is no way it is connected with the Armed Forces," explained Lieutenant Bill Kingsley, who is a teacher at Stouffville High School. Cadets cannot be inducted into the military. Cadets having difficulties in their school courses are also offered tutoring to help them catch up.

Once a month the squadron goes out on a weekend field trip which involves sleeping out in tents or barracks.

Mr. Kingsley describes the program, which includes photography, meteorology, weapons handling and firing drill and radio communications as an "all around program."

New planner needed by town

The company also filed an objection at the public meeting held on the new Official Plan. At that time, the company asked that development be considered in the new OP but to date council has not responded to the request.

The Dulverton subdivision, which is in two parts, is comprised of 134.5 acres and includes 480 single family homes, 68 semi-detached units and 2.16 acres of multiple housing, stretching from the 9th to the 10th concessions.

The company that lodged the complaint, Alliance Developments, owns 70 acres of land north of Elm Rd. and west of the 9th conc. which it has been trying to develop for some years.

The firm which hopes to put in about 270 units, has seen its plans refused by council on more than one occasion and in 1975 unsuccessfully appealed to the OMB for per-

Kart hours opposed

UXBRIDGE — Uxbridge council at their last meeting tried to dispel some of the worries residents have over the possible extension of go-kart racing hours in Goodwood.

Council received numerous correspondence from residents who objected to the plans to let the track run their racing events every second weekend, and also permit them to operate until 10 p.m. every day except on Tuesdays.

Most of the complaints dealt with the increased noise the karts would bring to those living close to the track. They were also concerned about the traffic on the 2nd concession road and the possibility of more fatal accidents on the road.

Neighbours comment on billiard hall

(Continued from page 1) establishment was run like it wasn't that nice of council," said Don Sheridan, "this is the first I've heard about it (the pool hall)." Mr. Sheridan expressed doubts about a pool hall. "It depends on the type of place I don't want a hangout. He felt that such an establishment would encourage drink, drugs, rowdiness and bad language. Mr. Sheridan conceded that this depended on how the establishment was run. "If it was a place you and your husband could go to without rowdiness," he said, referring to the reporter but thought this highly unlikely. He believes that it would be impossible for the hall to make money. "I don't think this town will support a pool hall. It'll fizzle out before summer's out. Let's face it, Stouffville's rural and people consider pool halls as evidence of a misspent youth. Parents suspect beer under the table."

Book store owner John Lord was in favour of billiards but took a dim view of the planned snack bar operation.

"Just what Stouffville needs," he groaned, "another snack bar. Do you know how many places there are to eat in Stouffville? Fifteen. But I don't see anything wrong with a billiard hall, quite frankly. Why not? Mind you there's things I'd rather see there, more profitable businesses."

Winifred Bere was very direct. "I don't think I'd like it," she responded when asked about the pool hall. "It's not the place for it and what kind of a crowd would you get there on a Sunday?"

Flossie Thompson was of the same opinion. "I'd rather it wasn't built there," she said, "they should build senior citizens apartments, it's right in the centre of town."

Regionwide craft exhibit

A juried exhibition and weekend conference for the Central Region of the Ontario Craft Council will be held at Seneca College, King Campus on April 29-30 and May 1. Co-hosts are the Crafters of Newmarket and Cedars of Musselman's - the two affiliate Ontario Craft Council groups in York Region.

The craft displays will be open to the public on April 27 and 28 from 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. and on Friday, April 29 from 1 to 4 p.m. Members of the Crafters of Newmarket and Cedars of Musselman's are handling local arrangements.

Crafts will be shown from the Central Region, which includes the Regions of York and Durham, Metro Toronto, and the Counties of Haliburton, Northumberland, Peterborough, Simcoe and Victoria. Features of the Conference will be textile demonstrations by Ottawa area weaver Joyce Chown, former Textile Master at Sheridan College School of Design, and ceramics demonstrations by Barrie area potter, Robin Hopper. After teaching in Toronto, Robin started the Ceramics Department at Georgina College and will soon move his studio to Vancouver Island.

The Ontario Craft Council is a non-profit organization concerned with the fostering and development of crafts and craftsmanship. Its membership of more than 4000 consists of crafters and people interested in crafts.
